Militant Priest Raises a Stink

LINCOLN, England (AP) — For years the choirboys of Lincoln Cathedral have enlivened Sunday morning services by setting off stink bombs, small glass vials containing a solution of sulphurated hydrogen.

Monday, an Anglican priest marched into Walter Lees' joke shop in the shadow of the cathedral and demanded:

"Is this where the boys buy stink bombs to throw in the cathedral?"

Lees said it was.

"One packet, please," said the priest, handing over a shilling.

"I suppose the inconvenience they cause is no concern of yours?" the parson asked Lees. Then he dropped a stink bomb on the floor, ground it under his heel and walked out as the smell of rotten eggs rose.

"The smell inside the shop was awful," said Lees, "but I'm not complaining. I can take a joke as well as sell one."

'I can see the funny side of it," said the dean of the cathedral, Very Rev. Michael Peck, "but I can't possibly believe that the person concerned was a member of the cathedral chapter."

Embassy, Guests Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — Anti-Communist demonstrators thronged the gates of the Russian embassy Tuesday night tossing eggs, stones, paint and insults.

Diplomats, politicians and their wives were jeered and booed by the crowd of about 350 as they arrived for a two-hour reception marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

One woman was struck by an egg and other guests narrowly missed.

A bottle of red paint hit the embassy steps and splattered the entrance. Three windows were broken by flying objects. Police arrested five persons and charged them with creating a disturbance.

Russian Ambassador Ivan F. Shpredko, who had feared trouble, said the demonstrators were war criminals and German fascists.

MANY TEEN-AGERS

But reporters found most of the placard-carrying group to be younger than middle age. There were many teen-agers and a number of tots.

The demonstrators were mainly from the Ukraine and the Baltic states, but a scattering of others identified themselves as former citizens of Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

They shouted "shame" and "finks" at arriving guests, and chanted "Down with Russia," Freedom now," and "We'd rather be dead than red."

They hurled their leaflets on the embassy lawn and burned a symbolic black coffin and a red flag.

POLICE PERPLEXED

Police struggled to balance the right of free assembly against their duty to protect the embassy. At one point a representative of the external affairs formally requested stronger police action to prevent more windows from being broken.

Only one of the five persons charged with creating a disturbance appeared in magistrate's court today. He was Peter Freibergs, 21, of Ottawa, who pleaded not guilty to creating a disturbance. Bench warrants were issued for Martha Duma, 37, and Roman Bezchlibnyk, 20, both of Toronto; Stefan Wankevych, 47, of Oshawa, and George Horich of London. They had been freed on $30 bail Tuesday night.

External Affairs Minister Martin represented Prime Minister Pearson at the affair. He ordered his driver once around the block before heading into the embassy grounds.

U.S. ELECTIONS

First Negro Elected Mayor Of Major City

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cleveland Democrat Carl B. Stokes, descendant of a slave, has become the first Negro elected mayor of a major United States city, but Republicans claimed a pattern of victory and an omen for 1968 in Tuesday's elections in other cities and states.

The Republicans captured the governorship in Kentucky and took over the state legislature in New Jersey where a Democrat, Richard Hughes, is governor.

Another Negro Democrat, Richard G. Hatcher, came top of the mayoral ballot counting in Gary, Ind., with a margin of 1,495 over his white opponent, Joseph Radigan.

Radigan contended that in two districts where Hatcher gathered top-heavy majorities "more voters voted than were on the rolls."

The issue was to be put before the same federal court to which Hatcher had gone with his own pre-election fraud complaint.

In a third race-tinged contest for mayor, Boston voters rejected the white backlash-oriented campaign of Louis Day Hicks.

In Gary as in Cleveland, the mathematics of race was the crucial factor. And the issue of Negro-white balance in the public schools was a key question in Boston, where Secretary of State Kevin H. White was elected mayor in a non-partisan run-off between two Democrats.

Ray C. Bliss, Republican national chairman, saw in the election returns evidence "that the upsurge in Republican strength which began in 1966 is continuing."

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey said he discerned no trend at all.

Democrats reclaimed the mayor's office in Baltimore, and held Philadelphia's city hall despite internal discord and a stiff Republican challenge.

AGAINST JORDAN

Egyptian Bid 'Disruptive'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The UN Security Council, already divided over rival proposals for a Middle East settlement, consulted today on Egyptian demands that it deal with Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it occupied in the June war.

Delegates expressed belief that the 15-nation council would take up the Egyptian request Thursday.

A council meeting scheduled for 4 p.m. today was called at the request of The Congo, which accused Portugal of letting foreign mercenaries in Portuguese Angola invade Congolese territory.

One diplomat charged privately that Egypt was exerting a "disruptive influence" in calling at this stage for debate on territories that Israel seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria last June.

INFLUENCE JORDAN

Many diplomats felt the purpose was to prevent Jordan from accepting an American proposal, one of the two rival plans submitted.

The American draft, already rejected by the Russians, calls for the withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories and stresses the need for "a limitation of the wasteful and destructive arms race in the area."

Informed sources said that King Hussein of Jordan, now visiting in the United States, had told U.S. officials that he would not "interpose any objection" to the U.S. plan.

The other proposal, submitted by India, Mali and Nigeria, calls for Israeli withdrawal "from all territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." Israel considers this wording prejudicial to it.

Both drafts call for a UN representative to be sent to the Middle East to seek a settlement, but they differ on the terms of his assignment.

'REGRETTED MISTAKE'

WASHINGTON (CP) — King Hussein of Jordan says the Arab statement implicating the United States and Britain with direct involvement in the Arab-Israel war last June was "a mistake."

Answering a reporter's question here Tuesday, Hussein said:

"We have regretted this mistake. We have admitted it to be a mistake."

The Arab people knew that the U.S. and Britain were not involved in the war, he added.

'Clearly Marked' Line Rejected

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egypt has rejected an Israeli proposal to clearly mark a ceasefire line along the Suez Canal, the United Nations chief cease fire supervisor, Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull, told Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan Tuesday.

Bull, who had returned here from Cairo, gave details of proposals to strengthen the 32-man ceasefire observation team by bringing in more personnel and giving them air-sea transport.

Dayan expressed disappointment over the UN team's refusal to inspect the area north of Port Said where the Israeli destroyer Elath was sunk Oct. 21 by Egyptian missiles.

B.C. Gives Firm 'No' To Exporting Water

Hutchison's Views on U.K.

The first of a series of special dispatches by Bruce Hutchison appears on Page 4 today. Mr. Hutchison, former editor of the Victoria Daily Times, has returned from a visit to England during which he talked to government officials, economists and the man in the street.

SAN FRANCISCO—Resources Minister Ray Williston entered the lion's den here today to tell Americans they're wrong in claiming B.C. is selfish because it won't export water.

Mr. Willsiton repeated the province's emphatic "no" at the prestigious Third American Water Resources Conference here on the heels of speeches by U.S. officials outlining the coming water shortages they expect in California and the Pacific Northwest states.

He followed directly R. P. Kelly, director of natural resources for the Ralph M. Parsons Co. in Los Angeles, who outlined the North American Water and Power Alliance which his company is promoting as the answer to continental water needs.

The controversial NAWAPA plan would use B.C.—where one-third of all Canada's rainfall occurs—as a huge basin supplying water to the southern U.S. and the Great Lakes through a series of diversion dams and canals costing about $100 billion.

NOT INVENTORIED

Mr. Williston told the conference that B.C. still doesn't have all its water supply inventoried nor can this vital resource be evaluated against future needs.

"Therefore, those in authority have had to adopt the position that if a decision is required now as to whether water should be exported, the answer must be firm and must be negative," he stressed.

And, he added, B.C. cannot consider any proposal for "temporary" diversion of its water because such an arrangement "would become locked in with the economy of the areas being serviced and it would be morally wrong and politically impossible to withdraw from any such diversion arrangement in the future."

Mr. Williston said he wanted to explain clearly the reasons for B.C.'s decision because it has been misunderstood widely in the U.S. and "has been criticized as being selfish, arbitrary and even not in our own best interests."

Mr. Williston said it would be

"I'd like to see the admiral run his operation with a staff of four."

That was the comment of a petty officer who had wondered why the Victoria region of the Boy Scouts of Canada couldn't function with volunteers.

The inquiring sailor changed his mind after getting a close look at the regional office here.

SAME NUMBER

He made his comment about the admiral after noting the staff handles the affairs of 4,000 boys—the same number of men on Pacific Maritime Command rolls here.

It costs $38,637 to run the Scouts' affairs. Of this $30,517 will come from the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Salaries of the five professional helpers, executive Jack Scrivener, a field executive, a camp supervisor, and an office staff of two, take up a good portion of the budget. But for every person paid there are nearly 100 volunteers.

ALL UNPAID

There is a supervising staff of 25 and 450 leaders, all unpaid. They take care of Cubs, Scouts, Venturers and Rover Scouts ranging in age from eight to 21 all over the peninsula from Swartz Bay to Jordan River.

Some money goes to help run Camp Barnard which has a year-round program in addition to the summer camping facilities.

It costs money to hold the regional jamborees and in a few cases, boys who cannot afford to go are assisted but only when every effort to help them earn their own money has failed.

The boys contribute one sixth of the association's budget. They provide as much again to send to provincial and national headquarters to help provide books and equipment to run the provincial and national jamborees.

This region has two special packs, one for the physically handicapped boys who are members of a cub pack at the Solarium and for a troop of mentally handicapped Scouts, sponsored by the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

'The Great Dilemma' For Liberals, Pearson

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The Gallup Poll published today which shows the number of Liberals who want Lester Pearson to resign has increased by an unprecedented 13 per cent provides yet another public indication of the hazardous dilemma confronting the Liberal party and its leader.

In recent days a series of important private conferences have taken place in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa attended by some senior members of the government caucus and top-level Liberal executives.

impossible to store all the rain that fell on the province each year for a variety of physical and social reasons.

SEVEN VALLEYS

"The absolute impracticality of attempting to achieve this can be understood when it is realized that it would mean flooding the equivalent of seven valleys averaging two miles in width and running the entire 900-mile length of the province," he said.

This would virtually mean drowning the only inhabitable areas of a mountainous geography and, to emphasize the point, he spelled it out this way:

"Because of the necessary use of our valleys for agriculture, for industrial activity, for population centres and as the land transportation routes that link the various regions of our province, it is quite obvious that any plan for a high degree of . . . water storage would be associated with serious economic and political problems."

Because water is not distributed evenly throughout the province, B.C. itself faces some serious shortages and supply problems in several areas and is on the verge of having to make major expenditures to solve them, he added.

WATER SHORTAGE

"In some areas we are experiencing water deficiencies and fairly extensive projects must be embarked upon soon if real trouble is to be prevented," he said.

He said the worst problem is at Okanagan Lake, where, despite "fairly severe conservation" for the past two years, the lake's elevation continues to drop towards the critical level.

"Preliminary plans are in hand to develop an additional water source and in this plan additional water will be automatically diverted to the U.S." through the lakes system.

Mr. Williston pointed out that B.C. also needs its water for a variety of purposes—agricultural, pollution abatement, industrial development, energy production and simple recreation—and not all of these would be compatible with a massive storage program as envisaged

Mr. Williston faid that if it is determined some day that B.C. has more water than it will ever need, it's first obligation still is to the rest of Canada.

"The Peace River, now effectively controlled by the W. A. C. Bennett Dam and its secondary water use, is pointed eastward to Alberta and the prairies.

"This brings up the consideration of national interests," he said.

PROVINCE FIRST

"There is feeling that if, in time, there is to be diversion of water from B.C., we must place some preferential value on our confederation with our sister provinces."

He also pointed out that sheer geography did not put the water in the best places for a storage program so that it would be utterly impossible to consider the 800 million acre-feet of annual rainfall as potential storage.

He said the best estimate is that some 300 million acre-feet could be stored ultimately.

This meant the province does not have a virtually limitless supply to deal with but must relate exactly the usable water to its as yet unknown future needs as well as complete a simple inventory of watersheds.

"By and large, it seems a fair and moderate concept that our major streams should stay in their channels until we know more about them and we are able to look with some more exact knowledge on our future water needs," he said.

FOOLHARDY

"It would be improvident, if not foolhardy, for the province to consider at this time any reduction in the total volume of the water resources it now possesses.

"It is certain that any such reduction would, in many areas, immediately reduce the province's future economic advantage and could have a most serious and even destructive influence upon multi-use resource management.

"In recapitulation, I think we should resist any effort to declare the water of B.C. international in nature.

"We are still only at the beginning of our resource development and have no proper concept as to the water needs of tomorrow.

"This vital essential is too important to our province's growth to bargain it away in the early stages of our growth."

And, as a clincher, he put it as close to home for his U.S. listeners as possible:

OWN GROWTH

"Full utilization (of its water) will be required to allow the province to meet successfully the growth of population and industry that is expected.

"I believe this is an attitude which should be understood in the United States, which, with the aid of its natural resources, had developed into the richest and most powerful nation on earth.

"Surely we cannot be held in default for wanting to achieve the greatest possible development of our own resource potential.

"To ask us to commit a sizable share of one of these resources to the detriment of our own progress would be very much like asking California to have committed part of its potential to Mexico or other of its immense expansion."

'TRADE SHIFTING TO U.S.'

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Trade Minister Loffmark of British Columbia said Tuesday he expects to see B.C. trade patterns shift away from Britain and Europe and "into the orbit of the U.S. market."

Mr. Loffmark predicted that Britain, B.C.'s third largest customer after the U.S. and Japan, would "start travelling in the direction of easier trade with Europe even if she doesn't get into the Common Market."

Here for a seminar on B.C.-California trade, he said in an interview that if the British market falls off B.C. must look "more and more" to the U.S.

'Peaceful Decision' Quebec Hope

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Tuesday Quebec hopes for "a peaceful political solution" to the question of jurisdiction over offshore mineral rights.

Mr. Johnson was commenting at a press conference on the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada which Tuesday declared offshore mineral rights to be in the jurisdiction of the federal government.

The premier reiterated the Quebec position established by former Premier Jean Lesage that Quebec does not recognize the qualifications of the Supreme Court to rule on what Quebec considers to be a political question.

On the Republican balance sheet, the Kentucky victory of Louie B. Nunn, rated something of an upset, put Republicans in charge in 26 of the 50 U.S. governor's offices. The states in the Republican column now represent 304 electoral votes, 34 more than the number needed to elect a president in 1968.

In Tuesday's other contest for governor, Representative John Bell Williams, a Democrat, predictably triumphed in a Mississippi landslide.

The off-year contests were scattered from New England to San Francisco, marked in many spots by the racial issue, and touched — Republicans said — by the falling political popularity of President Johnson and by the war in Vietnam.

Nunn, elected Kentucky's first Republican governor in 20 years, has aimed his campaign in large measure against Johnson and his war policies.

Mayors were elected in scores of U.S. cities, but in many instances, shifts in party control of the office on one city were balanced by reverse switches in another.

Republicans took particular delight in one victory—the upset triumph of Ann Uccello, who ousted incumbent Democrat George B. Kinsella to become mayor of Hartford, Conn., the home town of Bailey, Democratic chairman.

Bliss pointed as well to New Jersey, where Republicans took firm command of a legislature now Democratic by a 2-to-1 margin. The state Democratic chairman said it appeared Republicans would have an edge of 3 to 1 in the Senate and nearly as much in the Assembly.

"It's a wonderful moment," said Stokes, 30, great-grandson of a slave, son of a scrubwoman, a state legislator running in a city where Negroes are outnumbered 2 to 1. Stokes, who upset Mayor Ralph S. Locher in the Democratic primary, held a 2,947 vote edge on Taft—129,825-127,328.

FORGET WORDS

Forget the words spoken in heat, loser Taft, grandson of President William Howard Taft, told the voters. Taft said his decision on a possible recount will depend on the official vote tally. In Gary, Hatcher defeated Republican Joseph Radigan by a 1,495-vote margin. Radigan charged vote frauds and refused to concede the election.

White's Boston mayoral victory was applauded by allies in both parties. Senator Edward M. Kennedy (Dem. Mass.) and Governor John A. Volpe, a Replublican, both turned up to congratulate him.

The had joined a near solid lineup of state political leaders to support Democrat White in the non-partisan contest against the controversial Mrs. Hicks, a Democrat herself.

Mrs. Hicks, a 48-year-old grandmother, vaulted to prominence and controversy on her opposition to the transportation of Negro schoolchildren into white areas to achieve racial balance in the schools.

White won, 102,550 to 90,122.

Inside, Ambassador Shpedko grabbed his sleeve and said:

"I'll show you some of your gallantry."

But Mr. Martin conferred later with the ambassador and they emerged smiling and shook hands warmly. On his way out, the external affairs minister tipped his hat to the crowd; as he drove off one of the signs was tossed at his car.

The ambassador said through an interpreter that the demonstration was "a provocative and hostile act and the Canadian authorities are responsible for it."

The crowd occasionally sang nationalistic songs. One lively rendition was translated as a taunt against "flea-ridden Russians."

stay, the existing discontent could very quickly turn into the open kind of revolt that tore apart the Conservative party and eventually deposed John Diefenbaker.

If he goes prematurely, he may feel he is abandoning the main mission of his stewardship: to help reconcile the two great societies that form this nation.

The event that brought the issue to a head was the quarrel begun last week between state secretary Judy LaMarsh and the CBC. It's not that the Liberals are particularly partial to the CBC's management.

But the PM's handling of the controversy has come to symbolize his inability to control his ministers and provide cabinet leadership, just as the pipeline debate of 1965 came to epitomize a Liberal administration turned arrogant.

The fact is that the Liberal party is beginning to move out from under Lester Pearson's command. The real source of any prime minister's power, as distinguished from his constitutional authority, is the respect he draws from his followers.

While there has been little loss of personal affection for the PM, a swelling realization is settling in at all levels of the party that by delaying the process of succession, the chances of winning the next election are being placed in serious jeopardy.

When a prime minister retires, he takes his good qualities with him. He bequeathes to his party not his strengths but the weaknesses that have marred his stewardship. The longer the choice of a successor is delayed, the less redeemable the Pearson administration's errors become.

THREE QUALITIES

All prime ministers need three qualities to succeed: knowledge, power and purpose. Knowledge they can obtain from others, power they draw from their office, but purpose they must provide themselves. And it is this last quality that the Liberal leader no longer seems capable of injecting into his government.

But it would be a false oversimplification to conclude — despite the Gallup Poll and all of his other liabilities — that Lester Pearson has suddenly become a pariah in his own party.

Of the four main groups that make up the bulk of Canada's Liberal Party — the Quebec wing, the parliamentary caucus, the Toronto power clique, and the western Liberal front — only the last two have come to regard him as an irredeemable political liability.

SPRING CONVENTION

At the same time, many of Pearson's political intimates are convinced that his own sensitivities will lead him to give up the burden of office soon. They feel certain that a leadership convention will be held in Ottawa by next spring.

They base their conviction on reports circulating in the capital that the Pearsons have sent a notice to the tenants of their retirement home (at 541 Montague Place in Rockcliffe) that it must be vacated by May of 1968, and that preliminary negotiations are underway for Lester Pearson to join the political science faculty of Carleton University.

But both the Liberals who want Pearson to leave and those who want him to stay are becoming grimly determined to get some more concrete notice of his plans.

In the meantime, Ottawa gives an eerie feeling of being a capital without a centre of political gravity.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Mild Pacific air has edged further into coastal areas while interior points remained cool. Cloud and showers persisted overnight along the coast under the influence of an offshore system which is moving northward directly towards Vancouver Island.

Cloud was general over the southern interior while extensive fog formed in the valleys in the central interior.

The disturbance moving towards Vancouver Island is expected to recurve eastward into the interior taking showers with it.

A second active system moving rapidly eastward across the northern Pacific will spread rain and gale force winds into the north coast this evening. The rain will move down the coast reaching the lower mainland late Thursday.

PM Dodges CBC Question

Tories Fail in Two Attempts To Get a Clear Statement

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Opposition attempts to extract from Prime Minister Pearson a statement of complete confidence in the management of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation failed in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson was having none of it. He ducked the question and dodged again when it was put to him in a different form.

Finally Mr. Pearson said with a smile, "I have a great deal more confidence in it (CBC management) than some gentlemen opposite."

The controversy over CBC management was first stirred up when Secretary of State Judy LaMarsh said in a television interview last week that, in her opinion, "some segments of CBC management were rotten."

Mr. Pearson had been approached by newspaper, radio and television reporters and asked questions to see if he would repudiate the secretary of state. But he has avoided making any statement that could be interpreted as a repudiation of Miss LaMarsh.

A spokesman in Mr. Pearson's office said it is not the prime minister's intention to repudiate Miss LaMarsh's statement.

Both Sides Laughed and Waited

Opposition Leader Michael Starr sought to put the prime minister on the spot Tuesday.

He asked: "Has the prime minister complete confidence in the management of the CBC?"

There was a stunned silence. Then back-benchers on both sides laughed a bit and waited to hear Mr. Pearson's reply.

The prime minister jumped to his feet and said, "I would be very glad to answer that question, but of course it is out of order."

Opposition members shouted: "Are you the speaker of the house?"

Mr. Starr was back with the comment, "in view of the fact that Mr. Speaker did not voice an objection I would assume that that answer . . ." but he could not finish because he was called to order.

Mr. Pearson asked for a ruling on Mr. Starr's original question.

The speaker said he had some doubts about the question being in order because it was general in scope. He suggested the question would be more appropriate by way of a statement on motions.

Mr. Starr said he would ask a related question.

Full, Frank, Clear Statement

He asked: "Will the prime minister give to the House a full, frank and clear statement dealing with the charges of mismanagement in the CBC as voiced by the secretary of state? and will he explain to this House and to the people what has been done to deal with this situation in an organization spending $140 million of public money?"

Mr. Pearson said if he were to answer that question it would take up the full 40 minutes allotted to the question period.

Mr. Starr asked if Mr. Pearson would make a concise and clear statement as requested.

Mr. Pearson replied: "I hope to do that at an appropriate occasion."

Miss LaMarsh has already told the House that she could not make public details of "appalling things" she had found to be happening in the CBC without disclosing the identities of the persons responsible and the names of her informants.

FORMER Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller, one of Germany's most-wanted war criminals, is still alive and in hiding in Egypt, according to a spokesman for West Germany's central office for Nazi war crimes. The office said it has obtained the information from Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal but declined to give any more details.

'Bomb Raids Must Stop'

LONDON (Reuters) — North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong said in an interview published here today that his government still insists on an unconditional end to United States bombing raids on his country before any peace negotiations could start.

In a copyrighted interview in The Guardian, he said the Vietnamese are a proud people who will not negotiate under bombing—or the threat of bombing.

'Frisco Vote Favors U.S. Stand on Vietnam

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco voters soundly rejected Tuesday a peace proposition calling for an immediate ceasefire and U.S. withdrawal in the Vietnam war.

The final count from all 1,341 voting districts gave 132,406 votes against ceasefire and U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam and 76,632 in favor.

Joseph Alioto, Democratic lawyer elected as mayor in the non-partisan municipal election, declared, however, he did not see the peace proposition result as a victory for Vietnam war hawks.

"Proposition P was defeated because it called for unconditional surrender for the United States," Alioto said.

The peace initiative, placed on the ballot only after successful appeal to the state supreme court, put this question to San Francisco voters:

"Shall it be the policy of the city and county of San Francisco that there be an immediate ceasefire and withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam so that the Vietnamese people can settle their own problems?"

Harold Dobbs, who ran second to Alioto, opposed having the Vietnam war issue on the ballot, and Jack Morrison, a Liberal Democrat who ran third, supported the proposition for U.S. withdrawal.

Home Grounds

SEVEN JUDGES OF THE SUpreme Court have given a unanimous opinion that Canada's Pacific continental shelf belongs to Canada and not to British Columbia, and thereby have established a basis for settlement of future controversies on the point. Premier Bennett's contention was that not only the under-sea real estate out to the three-mile limit but also all the ocean floor out to the limit of the continental shelf belonged to the province.

It was no merely academic question, for future exploration may determine that vast riches in the form of oil reserves and minerals lie within the off-shore crust, and the government which has jurisdiction will be in position to direct the trend of industrial development and collect the revenues from it. That jurisdiction now lies in Ottawa, and the principle has been established not only for the Pacific Coast but all other similar offshore areas.

The judges' decision was not in the form of a ruling but merely an expression of opinion, as asked, but it carries almost the same weight. Mr. Bennett's next move to acquire a share of possible offshore royalties must be directed to the political sphere. There he may negotiate with Ottawa, but since the court has indicated that the nation enjoys full control and jurisdiction, the federal government can hardly give away generously to one province what is owned by the other nine. It is not as though British Columbia had costs of upkeep in regard to the continental shelf or had invested in its preservation. A compromise no doubt will be worked out, with the province receiving special consideration.

The quandary of oil drilling and underwater exploration firms may not be entirely resolved by the court's declaration. To date they have obtained permits from both governments in order to cover all contingencies, but it is possible that lengthy controversy may still be in prospect.

Although Mr. Bennett is deeply concerned by thoughts of the immense wealth which may be at stake, his anxiety is not shared by the people of this province. The Premier's constant efforts to establish a dichotomy of loyalties — to rouse British Columbians to fight for their "rights" against the federal power over the mountains has never got very far with the public. The people are Canadians first and provincial residents second, and any money the province wins from Ottawa is money into one pocket out of another. In the present instance, any attempt to make British Columbians feel that they have lost something by the Supreme Court opinion should quickly be put in perspective.

Mr. Stanfield's Opportunity

MR. STANFIELD HAS RE-ceived the House of Commons seat most Canadians agreed he should be given and within a few days will be leading his Conservative opposition forces in person. It is widely believed that this will open a new era to the Tories, who for so long had been dominated by the strong personality of Mr. Diefenbaker. Instead of the personal feuding which the deposed chief favored and the policy of oposition for the sake of opposing which seemed to inspire his efforts in the House, it is expected that Mr. Stanfield will offer a more constructive approach to his task as leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition.

Public hopes in this regard may be responsible for the rise in Tory popularity reflected in recent opinion polls. But paradoxically, an improvement in the behavior of the Conservatives may also improve the appearance of Mr. Pearson and his governmental colleagues. With the relentless political antagonism of Mr. Diefenbaker lifted from the prime minister's efforts, the latter can show to much better advantage, for his forte is not the rough-and-tumble of Commons jousts but the trained administrator's concern to ascertain the true nature of a problem and the most effective treatment for it.

Although he has had a marked success in Nova Scotia provincial politics, Mr. Stanfield enters the federal arena as a very dark horse. The consensus is, however, that he will bring to his new task a considered judgment and the ability to rally his colleagues for a unified and significant contribution to the national forum. That, at any rate, will be the hope of the Canadian public which on too many important occasions has seen its federal legislature reduced to impotence and frustration by opposition tactics which should have been reserved for the political hustings rather than the nation's law-making.

An Eye on the Camper

MR. ERNEST SHAUER OF VANcouver has told the B.C. Motels and Resorts Association meeting here that one of every three tourists on British Columbia highways last year was a camper, and he suggests the motel and resort interests do more to meet their needs.

Mr. Shauer has a legitimate interest in revenue from the motoring vacationer and his inquiries have led him to believe that most campers who are unable to finance holidays in motels would pay for washroom facilities as good as those in their homes, and would patronize lounge areas, coin laundries and playgrounds.

The motel-resort speaker suggests his industry cater to the camper to attract him away from B.C. government campsites. This is a reasonable suggestion that may be appreciated as much by the provincial parks department as anyone else. The Parks Branch has as much as it can do keeping up with the type of accommodation it provides and would doubtless be happy to avoid any responsibility for the sort of service Mr. Shauer says commercial interests should offer.

Endangering the Supply

A REPORT FROM NEW BEDford gives statistics to show that Russians, with bigger and better boats, better equipment and better techniques, are out-fishing the United States off New England and that more Soviet vessels are coming to the area.

The catches, according to the news story, have reached a point at which fears are entertained for the maintenance of the fishery. As a consequence, American fishermen on the Atlantic coast are hoping for a conservation agreement with the Russians similar to that reached by them on the west coast. But any such bilateral pacts are inadequate. What is required is an international fisheries convention aimed specifically at conservation. The need is not solely to come to terms with a successful single competitor but to see that all fishing nations agree to practices which will assure preservation of the resource so that all may fish.

". . . well, in that case, would you kindly wake Mitchell up and ask him how I'm feeling today . . ."

BRITAIN READY FOR TRUTH

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

'It's Bad. We'll Be All Right'

THE face of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, beaming from the front bench of Parliament, is round, pink and cherubic. A few more years and a few more wrinkles should make it the face of a genial John Bull, the composite portrait of the British folk. But when he rises to lean carelessly on the dispatch box and shatter the opposition with words of quiet, searing sarcasm and deadpan savagery, you realize that Mr. Wilson is by no means typical of his breed.

Hutchison

On the contrary he is a unique exception among the nation's prime ministers, a lonely creature, an unlikely mutation and sport of history. Yet this odd phenomenon, which attracts and infuriates the public by turn, and totally dominates the government, has a certain inevitable logic. Wilson, the cold and subtle mechanic of politics, sometimes the artful dodger and always the desperate gambler, well represents a society not only in deep trouble but in organic revolution, perhaps the most hopeful and assuredly the most peaceful revolution of our times.

Collapsed Promises

Such a process renders fixed principles and mere doctrines like "socialism" irrelevant. Naturally Mr. Wilson abandoned them as soon as he had won power by promises now in obvious collapse. The clear possibility that he may be ruined within the next six months and the certainty that the nation now faces a wrenching test of its quality cannot alter the central fact — Britain's revolution will go on but not as Mr. Wilson planned it and not as most North Americans picture it.

In London these things were explained to me by some of Britain's most influential politicians, economists, industrialists, trade unionists, professors and experts of all sorts. Disagreeing on specific issues, they were unanimous in believing, as a major cabinet figure put it, that the immediate prospects were "bloody awful."

Misconception

This is a short view only. The long view is entirely different and not what most Canadians imagine. Like any Canadian, I returned to London after three year's absence with all my native prejudices and the popular notion that Britain was the weak link and problem child of the English-speaking world. It took me some weeks and much travel to see the irony of Canada's opinion, or rather its ignorance.

Let it be said at once that on the whole Britain, with no significant physical resources, is managing its affairs much better than we, with incomparable wealth, are managing ours. For us to criticize Britain's many tragic mistakes is not merely ironical; it is ridiculous and somewhat nauseating.

Even more nauseating is our pious advice to our British friends. Let them, we say, work harder and live more frugally — this from a nation living wildly beyond its means, debasing its currency and subject to immediate bankruptcy if the United States fails to subsidize its folly on a massive scale.

The True Picture

Anyhow, the truth about contemporary Britain will not be found in London among the experts. It will not be found, either, in the ugly, false image of carnal pleasure and mini-skirted vice projected from the jungle of Soho and Picadilly Circus at midnight. It will be found only in the bustling factories of the Midlands, in the coal mining towns of Wales, in the lush farms of Scotland or Devon, in the merry village pub and in the little nameless men and women unknown to the newspapers.

I hired a car and drove some 3000 miles around the island, or the equivalent for at least five times that distance in Canada by measurement of time, energy and sheer exhaustion. As a holiday, my trip was a disaster. As an education, it was better than a long university course.

Whether my impressions are right or wrong, the truth about Britain today is vitally important to Canada — not alone for reasons of nostalgia and sentiment, but for the most practical reasons of business.

Canada's Position

Where, we must ask ourselves, does Canada fit into the tumultuous current of events now flowing out of Britain — events which are sure to alter the whole economic pattern of the world? Have our distracted government and clamorous opposition even begun to consider this primary problem, which cuts across all their comfortabe assumptions? I doubt it.

There can be no quick or pat answers. But from some amazingly candid briefings at the highest levels in London and, still more enlightening, from innumberable talks with the men in the factories, fields and pubs, the most basic of all facts emerges quite clearly. It is that Britain, after two decades of illusion and gross miscalculation of its power, at last has adjusted itself, like no other nation of the past, to a new, diminished but absolutely essential place in the affairs of mankind.

For a great and proud people the adjustment is agonizing, so agonizing, indeed, that most men prefer not to discuss it. As one of Wilson's chief lieutenants expressed it to me; "We had the bad luck to win the war. That gave the Germans, the Japanese and the others a big head start on us. They were smashed down to bedrock, with no illusions and nothing more to lose. So they went dumbly to work. Now look at them!"

Unprecedented Situation

"But we still thought that Britain was a great power. Churchill told us he wouldn't liquidate the Empire. Macmillan told us we never had it so good. We thought things would soon get back to normal and lost about 20 years before we saw that the old days would never return. Now we know where we really stand. And no matter what government happens to be in office everything will depend on how we handle a situation that never existed anywhere else.

"It's going to be rough," he admitted, "for five more years anyway. So the only question that really matters is whether Britain can take it. Well, the government may be wrecked but Britain can take it."

The government is trying to handle this situation with policies, blunders and reversals little understood in Canada and usually caricatured in the press. I shall outline them later on but revolution is not the agony of the government tortured by its friends and enemies alike, at home and abroad. It is not even the patent failure of the great Wilsonian plan for Britain.

The central fact is that the British people, as happened so often in their long past, are rapidly approaching that famous eleventh hour when they act only moments before it is too late.

"We're no good, you know, in good times," said one of the nation's foremost labor union leaders. "We're good only in bad times. Now we've got it through our heads that times are really bad, we'll be all right."

This is easy to say and, I think, accurate enough in general, but bottom has not been reached yet. The British people have become so affluent, all but a small minority are doing so well, that the underlying economic weakness is difficult for the ordinary man to grasp.

Instinctive Knowledge

Nevertheless, as I have seen him, he knows instinctively that the fair promises of the Wilson government (like those of the Tories) have failed. The government knows it, too.

Not one man met on my travels believed, for example, that the economy would be put "right", as Mr. Wilson predicts, by next summer. After a heartbreaking year of strikes and dislocation, the year when the government promised a substantial trade surplus, another heavy deficit mocks all these brave hopes. Though some industrialists anticipate a business upturn early next year, it can be no more than a passing curve on the graph. The fundamental malaise remains and it is far more complicated and intractable than it looks.

Like his counterpart in Canada, the ordinary Briton cannot comprehend the economic details but he senses, with an ancient folk wisdom, that things will get much worse before they get better. And he wonders, with a deepening distrust of the government, why it refuses to tell him the truth.

Awaiting the Moment

Doubtless Mr. Wilson, the stuffy economist turned gaudy politician, has fixed his own timetable. He will tell the truth when he is ready, not before, and at the chosen moment he will tell it with the same sudden daring that enforced last year's brutal freeze on wages.

The people, I am convinced, are prepared and yearning for that kind of tough leadership. But neither Wilson nor any other man knows the full truth yet because it depends on incalculable events outside Britain's control. However they turn out, the truth, as we shall see, is not all what Wilson or anyone else expected.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times, Nov. 8, 1907:

Plans for a dominion government detention hospital to be erected at the corner of Ontario Street and Dallas Road have been received by the public works department and tenders will be called at once to be in Dec. 2 for the construction of the new building.

The building will contain hospital offices for the legal immigration officer, Dr. Milen, and for the United States officials. Detention rooms and wards for Hindus, Japanese and Chinese will also be provided.

The Risk in Soviet FOBS

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Washington

THERE was a lot of food for thought in Secretary of Defence McNamara's cool announcement that the Soviets were building something exquisitely entitled, in the best Pentagonese, a Fractional Orbiting Bombardment System, alias FOBS. To begin with, the response to the announcement quite astonishingly demonstrated the extraordinary double standard (or one might say, the highly developed practice of doublethink) that prevails in the United States today. Here were the Soviets, after all, going at least halfway towards breaking their promise to put no bombs in outer space.

Alsop

But was there the kind of chorus of outrage about wicked people stepping up the arms race, that greeted the announcement of America's "thin" deployment of anti-ballistic missiles? Why of course not! And was the miracle of detective-intelligence behind the McNamara announcement greeted with a chorus of praise, to balance the constant attacks on American intelligence services? Why of course not!

Those who ask such silly questions probably ought to go stand in a corner, in fact. Meanwhile the real story of FOBS, which hardly came through in McNamara's characteristic Rand-style presentation, is also immensely interesting and instructive.

The thing itself is simply an ICBM made into a low orbit satellite, which is built to hurl a warhead at a chosen target from a pre-set point on the orbit round the globe. The first question concerning it is whether the orbit really will be "factional." If so, the agreement not to put bombs in full orbit has not been truly violated, even if the spirit of that agreement has been a bit bruised.

Why Did They Bother?

The answer is that the intelligence is complete enough so that the word "fractional" represents no mere hopeful assumption. That being the hard evidence, however, why on earth have the Soviets bothered to develop this much more expensive and less efficient kind of satellite-ICBM? For FOBS carries less warhead and has a much bigger margin of target error than a normal ICBM.

As such, FOBS cannot be relied on to attack hardened missile sites in the U.S. It will only be useful to attack strategic airfields (presuming the airplanes are not airborne already) or other soft targets like cities. The possibility that it is really an anti-city weapon was not pointed out by the defense secretary, but it exists, quite clearly. Even so, why did the Soviets go to the extra bother and expense when they already have very good ICBMs?

Here, the answer is curious indeed. The Soviets evidently expected the U.S. to install a full anti-ballistic missile system, instead of the much attacked "thin" system that is being installed (which will give no defense against Soviet missiles, but will offer protection from Chinese lunacy).

Low Orbit Advantage

The proof of this Soviet expectation is simple. The only advantages of FOBS derive from the low orbit. This makes FOBS immune to detection on take-off by the existing Soviet and American long-range radar systems, and it also makes FOBS immune to interception by SAMS of the Soviet type.

It is not immune to interception by the "Sprint" element of the American ABM, but this would only happen very close to home. More important, FOBS will not be immune to detection at take-off, or very soon after take-off, by the new American "Over-the-Horizon" radar system.

This new system is already being installed to supplement the existing missile radars. In a few months, when installation of the "Over-the-Horizon" radars will be completed, FOBS will therefore lose its main advantage — the shortness of warning of attack.

Hence FOBS is not a disturbing development, except in the sense that it strongly underlines the Soviet determination to go forward with the arms race. The U.S. is denounced for being determined not to lose that race, but if there is one, losing is always the greatest danger.

This leads, in turn, to the final question raised by FOBS, which concerns the peculiar micrometry of doom practiced in the McNamara Pentagon to measure adequacy of deterrence.

Miscalculation Hazard

The point is that a deterrent is never as good as you think it is. A deterrent, in truth, is only as good as the other side thinks it is. And no deterrent will deter if the other side miscalculates, either by downgrading the deterrent itself, or by overestimating the strength of their defence against the deterrent.

In the McNamara Pentagon, to be sure, forecasts of Soviet weapons development have been remarkably accurate on balance; and in the McNamara Pentagon, above all, U.S. planning is based on the ever-present possibility that the Soviets will exceed the forecasts.

Yest this strange FOBS underlines, once again, a really crucial fact. The Soviets do not do their defense planning, measure weapons like their ABM, or use the kind of defense analysis that McNamara does. So a potential Soviet miscalculation must always be guarded against.

Bennett Played Into Hands of Separatists

But He Doesn't Represent the Nation

QUEBEC LE SOLEIL

Through the mouth of its premier, British Columbia has just struck a note on the separatist bell no more pleasing in Quebec than Quebec's is pleasing in the country's westernmost province.

Mr. Bennett may lack sufficient political vision to suspect it, but when he seeks to limit the rights of French-Canadians to the Quebec "reservation" he in fact separates Quebec from the rest of Canada.

He illustrates a certain obtuseness of mind in English Canada. Certainly such a state of mind is becoming less and less common among our Anglo-Canadian compatriots. It corresponds, however, to the simplistic vision of English Canada customary among Quebec supernationalists and separatists.

Nothing Changed

On hearing politicians of Mr. Bennett's stripe, Quebec nationalists are in a good position to affirm: "See, nothing has changed in English Canada: those people are absolutely insensible to the French fact: they understand nothing of it."

What they forget to mention is that Mr. Bennett does not represent all of English Canada; he represents it less and less. Provincial premiers like Messrs. Robarts and Roblin are in this respect more representative.

It is true that British Columbia is, with Newfoundland, a province where the French-Canadian minorities are the least numerous and the least compact. Therein lies the difficulty in getting French schools under way.

It remains no less true that this western province could be doing much more than it is doing for the French-Canadian minorities. There, as elsewhere, is no reason why French-Canadians cannot receive instruction in their maternal tongue wherever their number justifies it.

It is often vexing for a closed mind to be placed face to face with an open one.

Prime Minister Pearson belongs to the latter category. And Mr. Bennett reacted poorly to the very sensible remarks by the federal prime minister, who had just declared at Banff that English-Canadians must improve their attitude toward French-Canadians and that the entire country must be the homeland of French-Canadians and English-Canadians, which means that it is necessary to accord as much attention to the rights of the two linguistic communities as to those of individuals.

In his narrow-mindedness, Mr. Bennett reacted as though touched by a hot iron. He retorted that Mr. Pearson "had messed things up enough without having to come sowing confusion in the other provinces."

But could it be Mr. Bennett who is creating disorder by refusing to recognize the cultural equality across the country of the two historic Canadian nationalities?

No Harmony

Does Mr. Bennett realize that by his closed attitudes he joins the Quebec separatists who argue that there cannot be a real, harmonious coexistence between the two groups in this country and that it is necessary to base the nation on the ethnic group?

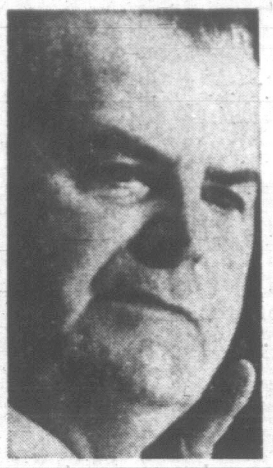

After this rather un-Canadian discourse by Mr. Bennett, the move by two British Columbia MPs at Ottawa to invite French-Canadian MPs to their province seems all the more useful.

A half-dozen French-Canadian MPs would be ready to go to the western province to explain the aspirations of the country's French-Canadians. The plan is worthy of encouragement.

One can also see how important it is to inscribe the bicultural character of this country better both in our institutions and in reality. To achieve that, the declaration of human rights urged by the minister of justice, Mr. Trudeau, who would recognize the rights of the two linguistic communities across the country, would mark an important step in the history of Canada.

The constitution of 1867 was too vague and too restrictive in this regard. It is a question not so much of rejecting this constitution in its entirety as of completing it and providing the extension appropriate to the recognition of our two cultures.

Neither Quebec nor British Columbia should retreat within itself. If Mr. Bennett should continue on the same path, it is up to the people of British Columbia itself to make him understand how widely outmoded is his way of envisaging the Canada of today.

'A Constipation of the Intellect'

Montreal La Presse

The entirely refreshing and sincere "open letter" addressed several weeks ago to Rene Levesque merits reproduction here in full. However, here is a significant extract:

"My French is very poor, but I hope that my five children will be bilingual. In our Ontario elementary schools French now must be studied.

"You see, we advance slowly. There are English-Canadians with a very limited outlook. They love everything Britannic, but they are old and rustic. The young do not think like them ... They want simply to be Canadians.

"A new generation has arrived; it will be better than the older ones."

Among the "old and rustic" one can certainly count the premier of British Columbia, who has given in recent days the measure of his incomprehension and narrowness of mind in declaring (on the question of French schools) that his government will never financially assist separate or private schools or any other service of the kind, and in criticizing Mr. Pearson for inciting English Canadians at Banff to a change of attitude toward French-Canadians and toward some changes which they might want to have made in the federal system.

Mr. Bennett's intellectual constipation is deplorable, but must it discourage us and cause us to doubt Maurice Sauve's optimistic remarks in Quebec, that "we can discern in the recent evolution of English-Canadian thought signs of hope, indices of progress?"

No, a hundred times no. Because each week brings us the proof that the English-language press is working more and more systematically to enlighten its readers, as shown again today by two editorials (cited and reproduced in an adjoining column of La Presse) in the Ottawa Citizen and the Toronto Star.

Even in distant British Columbia, where ignorance of certain nuances of Quebec thought is more excusable than in Ontario, everybody is not monolithic like Mr. Bennett, and the younger generation is certainly more permeable to change than the others.

That is why two Liberals from that province are organizing an information campaign, utilizing a half-dozen federal MPs from Quebec, who will go in a body to speak there to audiences composed especially of students.

Though it bears an element of political rivalry, this move constitutes nevertheless a healthy reaction in the face of Mr. Bennett's attitude.

It would not be very logical to expect the population of a province to show itself, on the whole, more enlightened than its leader. We have here therefore, as Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau also has been led to note, an idea of the education of English-Canadians that remains to be accomplished. It is a missionary job that to us seems more exalting than depressing.

Setting Up False Premise Is An 'Inexcusable Ploy'

Toronto Telegram

In the context of the great Canadian unity debate, it is difficult to imagine a more unfortunate intrusion than that of Premier W. A. C. Bennett on the question of French-language schools.

The moderates of Quebec, who include among their numbers the leaders of the major political parties, business and union spokesmen, intellectuals and the majority of the population, have rejected separatism. What they have not abandoned, however, is their demand for recognition in the rest of Canada of the special position of the French language and culture.

To Feel at Home

Most reasonable English-speaking Canadians now accept their responsibility to try to make the French-speaking Canadians feel at home in all provinces. That is why, for example, we have French-language instruction in Ontario and will have French-language high schools in areas where they are justified by population.

Premier Bennett has obviously misunderstood the problem when he speaks of separate or parochial schools. There is only one school system in the province supported by the taxpayer, he says, and that is that.

Just Politics

The premier's ploy of setting up a premise and then refuting it may be acceptable in political byplay, but on an issue as important as this, it is inexcusable.

It is not a question of setting up a separate school system based on language at all.

It may be quite true that the non-sectarian British Columbia school system was established before that province joined Confederation as a means of preventing the Church of England from becoming the state church. But that is not questioned.

No one is asking Premier Bennett to set up a state-subsidized system of parochial schools. What is being suggested is that in those areas of British Columbia where there is a sufficient number of French-speaking Canadians, instruction be provided in French, in the existing public schools.

It is a matter of a change in the language of instruction. Nothing in the British Columbia school system limits the power of the provincial government in the matter of changing curriculum, in this case providing French-language instruction.

Premier Bennett knows that. His response reveals either an appalling lack of understanding of the French-English problem in Canada or else he is setting up the old religious education bogeyman for reasons of his own. In either case, it is unworthy of him.

What Premier Bennett and those who think like him must realize is that the feeling of belonging to Canada is crucial to Quebecers.

They don't expect to hear French spoken on the streets of Vancouver or Toronto, but they want their language respected. One way to do this is to provide instruction in French in public schools in French districts.

THE GALLUP POLL

Pearson Losing Support In Party Leadership Role

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Almost half the electorate—47%—think that Prime Minister Pearson should resign. In May, 1966, the segment was 40%. Today, as in the previous study, about a third of the voters think he should carry on as long as possible.

This upward trend in the number of Canadians who now look for a new Liberal leader reflects the national approval for the new Conservative leader, Robert Stanfield.

For today's report, the same question was asked as last year: "Do you think Mr. Pearson should resign as leader of the Liberal Party, say within the year, or should he carry on as long as possible?"

	May 1966	Today
Resign	40%	47%
Carry on	39	35
No Opinion	21	18
	100%	100%

During this period, the big shift has been among those who would vote Liberal if an election were held today, the proportion wanting resignation rising from 23% to 36%. Conservative figures have changed very little from their majority belief that it is time for Mr. Pearson to make way for a new leader.

An analysis of those favoring the two main parties reveals this clearly.

	Conservatives		Liberals
	1966	Today	1966	Today
Should Resign	61%	60%	23%	36%
Carry On	22	26	61	53
No Opinion	17	14	16	11
	100%	100%	100%	100%

About a third of the electorate (35%) is undecided about how it would vote in an election. Checking on how these eligible voters feel about Mr. Pearson, reveals that they split almost evenly as to whether he should, or not, resign, while a large number have no opinion on this matter, either.

The Meaning of the Russian Revolution

A New Breed of People Emerged

The attempt to find out what the Russian Revolution had been fought for provided the background for the political struggle of the 1920s.

By PROF. ADAM B. ULAM

(This is the last of three articles on the Russian Revolution and its continuing impact on the course of the Soviet Union. The writer is a noted expert on Soviet affairs and is an associate of the Russian Research Centre of Harvard University.)

With the Kronstadt workers' rebellion in 1920, the really populistic "Soviet" side of the revolution went down to defeat. From then on, "central committee" and then "politburo" would have been a more appropriate prefix to Russia than "Soviet."

Trotsky, then Zinoviev, then Bukharin tried to reclaim Marxism-Leninism as the solid foundation in their opposition to the ascendant current of politics in Russia, but they found out that they were standing on a disintegrating ice floe.

When Trotsky in 1927 attempted before the central committee to invoke those historico-rationalistic arguments which had been the staple of the Marxist discourse before 1917, he aroused general hilarity.

The only use of history in Stalin's Russia was in a police dossier. Not the Marxian categories, but first a majority of delegates, then the command of the secret police were the determing factors in political decisions.

The Attrition

At the 15th party conference, Stalin assured his hearers that were Engels alive he would exclaim: "May the devil take the old formulas: long live the victorious revolution in the U.S.S.R." Marxism in Russia had thus suffered a complete attrition.

What exactly the revolution has brought to the lives of the millions, the regime has found impossible to explain with any precision. Was socialism achieved in 1936, as Stalin declared? In 1955 his chief collaborator, Molotov, was publicly reproved for affirming that Russia then was entering the era of socialism.

Nor was Khrushchev more successful in attempting to warm up the old concepts. The 22nd party congress proclaimed in 1961 that in 1980 the U.S.S.R. would be entering the era of Communism but, beyond a set of statistics, the party ideologies exhibited considerable vagueness as to how new this better world would be.

And Khrushchev's successors, judging by the 23rd party congress, have already forgotten about the majestic vistas for 1980, preferring to concentrate sensibly enough on the greater abundance of consumers' goods for 1970.

On the 50th anniversay of the Revolution, after Lenin Stalin and de-stalinization, closest to the mark seems to be the prophecy of one who disapproved of the Bolshevik revolution but acquiesced in it, though not for ideological or idealistic reasons.

Gorky, in his somore assessment of the Russian peasant and of the civil war, wrote in 1922: "... and as the Jews, led by Moses out of the Egyptian bondage, so will die the half savage, dumb and heavy people of the Russian countryside ... Their place will be taken by a new breed of people — literate, smart, energetic.

"I do not think that they will be the (proverbial) 'pleasant and engaging Russian people' but they will be, finally, businesslike men, skeptical and indifferent to everything which does not bear directly on their needs. They will not think readily about Einstein's theories or about the significance of Shakespeare or Leonardo Da Vinci, but probably they will spend money on (biological) experiments and will undoubtedly appreciate the importance of electrification, the value of an agronomist, the advantage of having tractors ..."

Subject to some corrections, not a bad picture of the mentality of the average Russian, or, for that matter, of the citizen of any other industrialized country. But Gorky, who thought that this emancipated Russian nation would be able to take a hard, unsentimental look at its history, would be astounded to see Russia's past as well as her present still subject to ideological controls by a regime which claims to embody Marxism.

Paraphrase

To paraphrase what young Lenin wrote about capitalism, many a Russian must feel that he suffers today both from socialism and from the insufficient development of socialism in his country.

The preceding assessment of the work of the Bolshevik revolution can be subjected to two lines of criticism. One, which now would be classified as conservative but which really bespeaks the point of view of pre-1914 liberalism, can be just stated here.

The trouble, it would argue, lies with the original ideology and not with the alleged or real abandonment of it by the Bolsheviks. The rigid pseudo-scientific apparatus of Marxism made those who followed it impotent in a revolutionary situation, and enabled the others who used it cynically to rationalize their lust for power and oppression.

What is even worse, the distorted version of Marxism, when genuinely believed in by the first generation of the Bolsheviks, was productive of fanaticism rather than a rational and humane approach to the problem of social transition.

What might be called the neo-Bolshevik line of criticism would still adhere to the main lines of Lenin's response to the Mensheviks: whatever pedantic arguments can be adduced against the revolution or the development of communism since then, it is silly to quarrel with history or to expect progress to be achieved painlessly.

Not a Rope

The revolution was not a rape performed by a small minority upon a huge nation and eventually the whole European civilization. It happened because the old was decayed and incapable of regeneration.

Whatever the price, the revolution lit a beacon of hope for the oppressed masses everywhere, and in that sense it transformed and humanized even its enemies, for the challenge of communism was largely responsible for capitalism reforming itself and being compelled to emancipate the millions held in colonial subjugation.

In the case of Russia, granted it has brought terrible sufferings and abuses, but those have been a by-product of the country's backwardness and hence of the society's inability to perform the needed task of reconstruction under civilized conditions.

Yet for all the ravages of Stalinism and the still prevailing lack of freedom, communism has imparted vitality and purpose and provided the necessary material bases for the future freer life.

The work of the revolution, this argument holds, can thus be criticized in terms of nostalgia for the pre-1914 world or an argument applicable to all great historical events, on the ground that things could have been done "differently" — i.e., more humanely.

But any rational activity, including the writing of history, must come to terms with reality. And if so, then the October revolution cannot be treated as a perversion of the "good one" of February, 1917, as a huge mistake, as a crime, or be subjected to historical nit picking: this was good, that was bad, this went too far, etc.

Many in the West would find it difficult or at least embarrassing to question the main lines of the preceding argument, a demonstration of how much of the self-appraisal of the Russian and even of the Bolshevik revolution has entered the mainstream of Western thought. But some points of this argument require a closer scrutiny.

Has Russia's advance as an industrial and overall power been due to communism? It would be difficult to refute the thesis that in view of the country's size, resources and the rate of industrial growth for some decades before 1914, it would have been difficult for Russia not to achieve the pre-eminent position she holds as one of the world's two super-powers.

There is something schizophrenic in the regime's boastfulness. The main element in its self-praise has always been that no other system has been able to overcome its own huge mistakes as successfully as the Soviet one; that no other nation could have endured as much in the way of mismanagement and crimes by its rulers as the Russians.

Qualifications

As to the significance of the Bolshevik revolution for the world at large, one is also constrained to make a few ungracious qualifications.

That Communism holds the unique key to a rapid modernization of a Western society is sufficiently refuted by the example of Japan. But the universality of the appeal of Communism requires one comment which may serve also as a final reflection on the Bolshevik revolution.

Communism was born out of one world war, and it experienced its greatest expansion as a consequence of another. It is strange, in view of its explicit rejection of pacifism, that the most potent attraction of Communism was its vision of an eventual peaceful world order.

In the wake of the bloodiest of wars, the sacrifices and sufferings of a revolution loomed almost insignificant as against the promise of a world where the extinction of exploitation and imperialism would lead to the abolition of war and eventual universal confederation of socialist states.

Capitalism had led to 1914. The Second International had proved impotent to arrest that development. Hopes for the expansion of Communism after 1921 were often based on the probability of another imperialist war and people as astute as Trotsky and Radek often postulated the imminence of an Anglo-French or Anglo-American collision.

The League of Nations was resented and abused by Soviet spokesmen not only as a possible nucleus of anti-Soviet coalitions but as a dangerous attempt to recreate a capitalist world order.

Even the absolute subordination of foreign Communism to Stalin's Russia could be rationalized as the necessary preliminary to the establishment of a supranational Communist world order which, however cruel and destructive its beginnings, would eventually spare the world its greates scourge.

Legacy Lost

Beginning with 1948, this most hopeful legacy of the Bolshevik revolution could no longer be maintained. The Yugoslav conflict showed that Communism possessed no secret formula for dissolving conflicts between states which shared its basic assumptions. And with the ripening of the Sino-Soviet conflict, the tenet in which, whatever their other improvisations with the doctrine, Lenin and his companions genuinely believed, that Communism provided the only true internationalism and way of abolishing war, appears as illusory as many other hopes of 1917.

In the Chinese Communists' trampling upon the old formulas and cautions, extolling action over theory, the Soviet leaders might (though they are not likely to, historical imagination not being their strong point) see parallels to the Bolsheviks' adventurous pragmatism.

And in their own reactions — at times pleading, at times threatening, still half-heartedly hoping for a reunion — they might recall the perplexed strivings of Plekhanov and Martov.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Investor Shift To Blue Chips

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Investment men are looking toward a general shift in preference from glamor issues to blue-chip stocks in public trading these days.

Such a move by investors would bring a rally to the traditional blue chip market, which at present means low prices for many — the lowest prices in five to 10 years.

Kent

One analyst is saying prices of the exotic issues have gone too far, and points to a group of stocks that were temporarily favored six years ago and by last year had fallen to as little as one-twelfth their price.

This should be sufficient warning to a prudent investor.

There are still attractive glamor equities, both in senior and junior categories.

But no one knows when the high fliers will plunge. Xerox, for example, is off about 6 per cent from its June high, while some of the juniors are still in rarefied atmosphere.

To circumvent the problem of getting into a glamor issue and yet having decent prospects of scoring a gain, some investors have turned to the so-called performance funds, which with their full-time management can reduce risks.

Even some institutional investors in the U.S. have turned to the blue chips, however, as they offer high value and are by and large at attractive prices.

These are what might be called the undervalued issues of high quality and low risk.

Performance funds are considered at the moment to be at the head of the mutual fund class.

As smaller organizations specializing in specific areas they are able to show remarkable spurts of earnings growth.

For the third quarter of 1967, for example, out of the top 85 funds the first 30 are able to show a net increase of at least 30 per cent in yield, the top two at 72.03 and 80.08 per cent respectively.

A well-managed conservative type fund, by contrast ranks about 50th with a net increase in yield of some 20 per cent—still very good.

But just as with the glamor issues, a mutual fund that shoots up so dramatically can suffer drastic losses in a relatively short time, too.

B.C. company registrations continue their steady growth and if an average of 300 new incorporations is racked up this month and next the year's total will be well ahead of last year's record.

To date this year the total of new listings comes to 4,263 corporations, compared with something over 4,700 in all of 1966.

The gain for October is 27 per cent over October a year ago, or 397 companies against 312. This was a slight drop from September, however, which had 410 new listings.

Extra-provincial registrations came to 32 last month, against 34 in September and 29 in October 1966.

Partnerships numbered 134 in October, 110 a year ago, while societies listed came to 27, up three from September but down five from a year ago.

Shell Canada Tuesday upped its semi-annual dividend on class "A" common shares by 25 per cent, making it 25 cents for a total 50 cents this year. It was 40 cents last year.

The class "B" dividend, payable Dec. 15, will be $1 for a total $2 this year compared with $1.60 in 1966.

Net income per "A" share for the nine months ended Sept. 30 was 98 cents compared with 95 in the same period last year.

$100 MILLION REFINERY FOR NEWFOUNDLAND

NEW YORK (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland and officials of a United States oil company Tuesday outlined plans for a new $100,000,000 oil refinery in Newfoundland to produce 100,000 barrels a day of finished petroleum products, 70,000 more than originally scheduled.

The refinery at Come-By-Chance, Nfld., will be built by Newfoundland Refining Co., Ltd., an affiliate of the privately-held Shaheen Natural Resources Co., of New York, an oil marketing firm.

The Newfoundland government will provide $30,000,000 of the financing through 15-year loans.

Bank Litigants Draw Criticism

WINNIPEG (CP) — The chief justice of Manitoba Tuesday criticized the litigants in the Bank of Western Canada case for keeping the Manitoba Court of Appeal in the dark on the real issues involved.

Chief Justice C. Rhodes Smith said the court "can't help feeling that it's involved in a highly technical argument without knowing the real reason for it." He said members of the court don't like to find themselves in this position and would prefer to judge the case on its merits.

Chief Justice Smith commented after a day-long hearing of an appeal against a Court of Queen's Bench judgment Oct. 30 which gave the bank approval to proceed with winding up its affairs.

The appeal was filed by Canadian Finance and Investments Ltd. of Winnipeg and two minority shareholders in the never-opened, Winnipeg-based bank.

The Court of Appeal reserved judgment.

The decision clearing the way for the winding up was brought down by Mr. Justice Roy Matas.

Shareholders of the bank voted Sept. 14 to wind up but necessary court approval for appointment of a liquidator had been blocked by counter moves spearheaded by Toronto financier Sinclair Stevens. Mr. Stevens is president of CFI.

Mr. Justice Matas said he could see no substantial irregularity in the shareholder's meeting that voted to wind up the bank.

Charles Huband and Kerr Twaddle, counsel for the apellants, argued that Court of Queen's Bench has no jurisdiction to grant an order for winding up a solvent bank.

Mr. Huband said there is no authority under the Winding Up Act for such action. He said the only way of terminating operations is to have its charter revoked by Parliament.

B.C. TOPS REGIONAL BREAKDOWN

Sharp Increase Shown In Unemployment Figures

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment showed "an unusually large increase" between September and October, jumping to 254,000 at mid-October from 219,000 the previous month and 195,000 a year earlier, a joint federal report said today.

The October unemployed represented 3.3 per cent of the total labor force, up from 2.8 per cent in September and 2.6 per cent in October last year.

A report by the manpower department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said nonfarm employment, which usually increases between September and October, dropped by 42,000.

Employment in the construction industry was down 33,000 and manufacturing jobs showed a drop of 18,000, partly due to layoffs in the auto industry resulting from the Ford strike in the United States.

Comparing October with the same month last year, the labor force was up 172,000 but employment rose by only 113,000, adding another 59,000 to the ranks of uemployed.

Manufacturing jobs were down 66,000 on the year and the construction industry dropped 29,000. There were increases, however, in the trade, agriculture and service sectors.

The job picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Oct. 1967	Sept. 1967	Oct. 1966
Labor Force	7,691	7,730	7,519
Employed	7,437	7,511	7,324
Unemployed	254	219	195

These estimates are based on a sample survey of 35,000 households conducted during the week ended Oct. 14.

After adjustments to discount seasonal factors, the national unemployment was 4.7 per cent in October compared with 4.1 per cent in September and 3.7 in October of 1966. Two years ago this rate was 2.4 per cent.

The unadjusted rate varied regionally from a high of 5.1 per cent in British Columbia to a low of 1.5 per cent on the Prairies. It was 4.1 per cent for the Atlantic region, 2.6 in Ontario and 4.4 in Quebec.

TOPS REGIONAL FIGURES

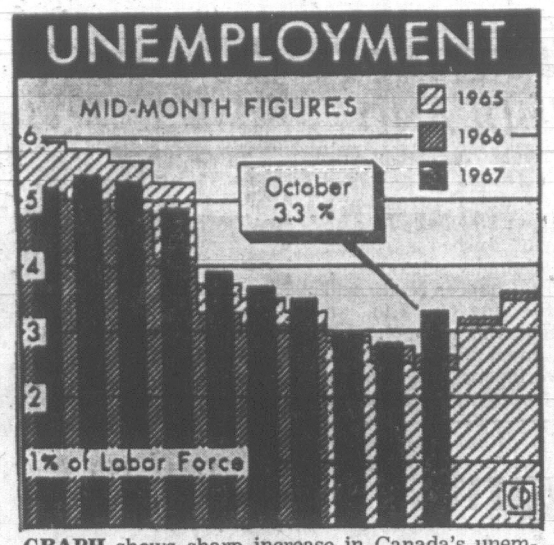

It was the first time in years that B.C.'s jobless rate has topped the regional breakdown. In September the B.C. rate was 3.5 per cent and was exceeded by the Quebec and Atlantic figures.

The report noted that about half the drop in total employment between September and October was among persons under 25, reflecting the reopening of university courses.

A decline of 32,000 in farm jobs, to 603,000 at mid-October, was about normal for the period.

The rise in unemployment was mainly among men 25 and over. Temporary layoffs accounted for 22,000 jobless in October.

Of the total out of work, 190,000 had been seeking jobs for four months or less. Another 35,000 had been unemployed for four to six months and 29,000 for seven months or more.

GRAPH shows sharp increase in Canada's unemployment between September and October. October unemployment represented 3.3 per cent of the labor force, up from 2.8 per cent in September and 2.6 per cent in October last year. (CP Newsmap.)

Two Takeover Bids For Bralorne Mines

TORONTO (CP) — Bralorne Pioneer Mines Ltd., a Vancouver-based gold mining company, was the subject of a second takeover offer Tuesday as Can-Fer Mines Ltd., a Toronto mining company engaged in iron ore production and copper prospecting in Ontario, offered to buy 340,000 treasury shares at $2.10 a share.

Can-Fer said its offer would close Nov. 30 and was conditional on there being no public offer to buy Bralorne shares from existing shareholders before the closing date unless consented to by Can-Fer.

Earlier Tuesday, Camp Investments Ltd. of Montreal offered to buy 340,000 Bralorne treasury shares at $1.60 a share, and said its offer would be open for acceptance until Friday.

24,000 Chrysler Workers Jump Gun on Strike Time

DETROIT (AP) — More than 24,000 Chrysler Corp. workers in the U.S. jumped the gun on a strike deadline today, closing down nearly a quarter of the No. 3 auto-maker's operations.

The walkouts at eight plants came as bargainers for the company and the United Auto Workers union passed the 24-hour mark in a marathon attempt to write a new three-year contract before the deadline of midnight tonight.

The mushrooming stoppages raised the possibility more of Chrysler's 103,000 UAW members would go out during the day even if quick agreement was reached and that Chrysler would suffer substantial production loss.

Once agreement is reached on the national contract, local agreements must be written for 131 bargaining units at Chrysler's 17 plants in 12 states. More than 100 of these remain to be settled.

A mid-morning check by company officials showed workers out at plants in Delaware, Missouri and Michigan. Some 18,000 workers actually walked off the job, with another 6,000 at the Jefferson assembly plant in Detroit idle because of a parts shortage resulting from a refusal to work by 600 truckers.

There were no indications from the bargaining table as to what progress had been made in the session that started at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

Negotiators are trying to fit to Chrysler a record three-year contract gained at Ford Motor Co. two weeks ago after a 46-day strike.

The only major demand the union did not win at Ford, equal pay for Canadian and American workers, is the biggest obstacle to a national agreement at Chrysler.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW president, has indicated that on the wage parity demand, which he says is a must from Chrysler this year, the union might consent to have disparity eliminated over a three-year period.

OFFSHORE RIGHTS

Atlantic Stake Biggest

OTTAWA (CP)—While all provinces except Saskatchewan and Alberta are involved in the dispute with Ottawa over jurisdiction of off-shore mineral rights, the Atlantic provinces have the biggest stake as far as gas and oil are concerned.

It may take some time to sort out the results of Tuesday's unanimous opinion by the Supreme Court of Canada that natural resources under the territorial sea and on the continental shelf off the West Coast are federal property.

Of the 220,000,000 acres covered by exploration leases granted by the federal government,—148,000,000 are off the East Coast, including the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Hudson Bay leases have been issued for 54,000,000 acres while Pacific Coast leases—concentrated off the southwest corner of Vancouver Island—account for 18,000,000 acres.

A total of 32 federal permits have been issued, but many involve joint ventures by two or more oil companies.

CONFLICT POSSIBLE

Most companies protected themselves by applying for both federal and provincial permits but a federal government spokesman said Tuesday that in some regions there could be a serious conflict. He would not name the areas or the companies involved.

Despite the large number of permits, there has been little actual drilling so far. Most exploration programs are in early stages, involving bottom sampling and seismic studies to determine rock structures under water.

Three wells have been drilled in the East, two in the West and one on the shore of Hudson Bay—in Manitoba near the Ontario border.

Two of the Eastern wells, on the Grand Banks off Newfoundland, were drilled last year as a joint venture by Pan-American Petroleum Corp., and Imperial Oil of Canada. A third was drilled this year at Sable Island by Mobil Oil of Canada.

In the West both wells were drilled this year as part of a two-year $16,000,000 program by Shell Canada Ltd.

Five companies are involved in Hudson Bay exploration which is regarded as a long-term venture because of technical problems involving ice during the winter.

NO STRIKES YET

Oil companies have spent an estimated $45,000,000 in offshore exploration since 1961, but have yet to announce any strikes. Mobil announced it had some showings in the Sable Island test well, but not in commercial quantities.

But seismic studies of the continental shelf under the Atlantic show promise of gas and oil-bearing rock formations and leases have been granted over a 2,000-mile stretch running from Yarmouth, N.S., to Newfoundland, and up the coast of Labrador and Quebec to Ungava Bay.

Most of the Yarmouth-Newfoundland area already has been taken up in permits but there are gaps in the section running to Ungava Bay.

"The northern sections could go fast if anyone makes a strike," one source said.

John, his wife and son, visit the pasture behind their new house. More about his unusual hobby below

John DeWitt chose London Life because of good dividends

(In fact, he can double his money with his Jubilee policy!)

JOHN DEWITT of Dorchester, New Brunswick, has an unusual hobby. Breeding and raising cattle.

"I've raised cattle ever since I was in school. I started out with three beef cattle on a neighbour's farm when I was 14.

"The land around the Memramcook Valley makes good pasture. It doesn't dry up in the summer and there's lots of salt in the soil."

John spent five interesting years in the R.C.M.P. but decided he'd rather be a businessman. He is now in his third year with the district sales division of General Motors in Moncton.

"I had group insurance, but when I married and started to build a home I felt I needed life insurance of my own. However, I wanted a policy that had some return to it. A policy that was an investment and paid good dividends.

"I knew London Life was a well-established company, so when a representative called, I invited him down one Saturday. I took him out to show him the cattle and we discussed life insurance.

"I'd checked up on other life insurance proposals and I thought the London Life Jubilee policy he recommended was a good one for family protection—and a good way to save."

Here are the facts about John DeWitt's $15,000 Jubilee life premiums to 65 policy, purchased at age 23. The premium is $20.49 monthly. By age 65 he will have paid $10,327. Included in this total is a small additional amount for disability protection. London Life would pay the premiums if Mr. DeWitt is unable to work due to prolonged sickness or accident. If he leaves his dividends to accumulate until age 65, he will be able to take out $26,070*. More than double the money he paid in!

"One reason why I want good dividends is that I'll be saving money for my young son's college education. I intend to buy more life insurance as time goes on and my farm develops and my business career progresses.

"It would be hard to find a better way to get protection for your family—and make money into the bargain."

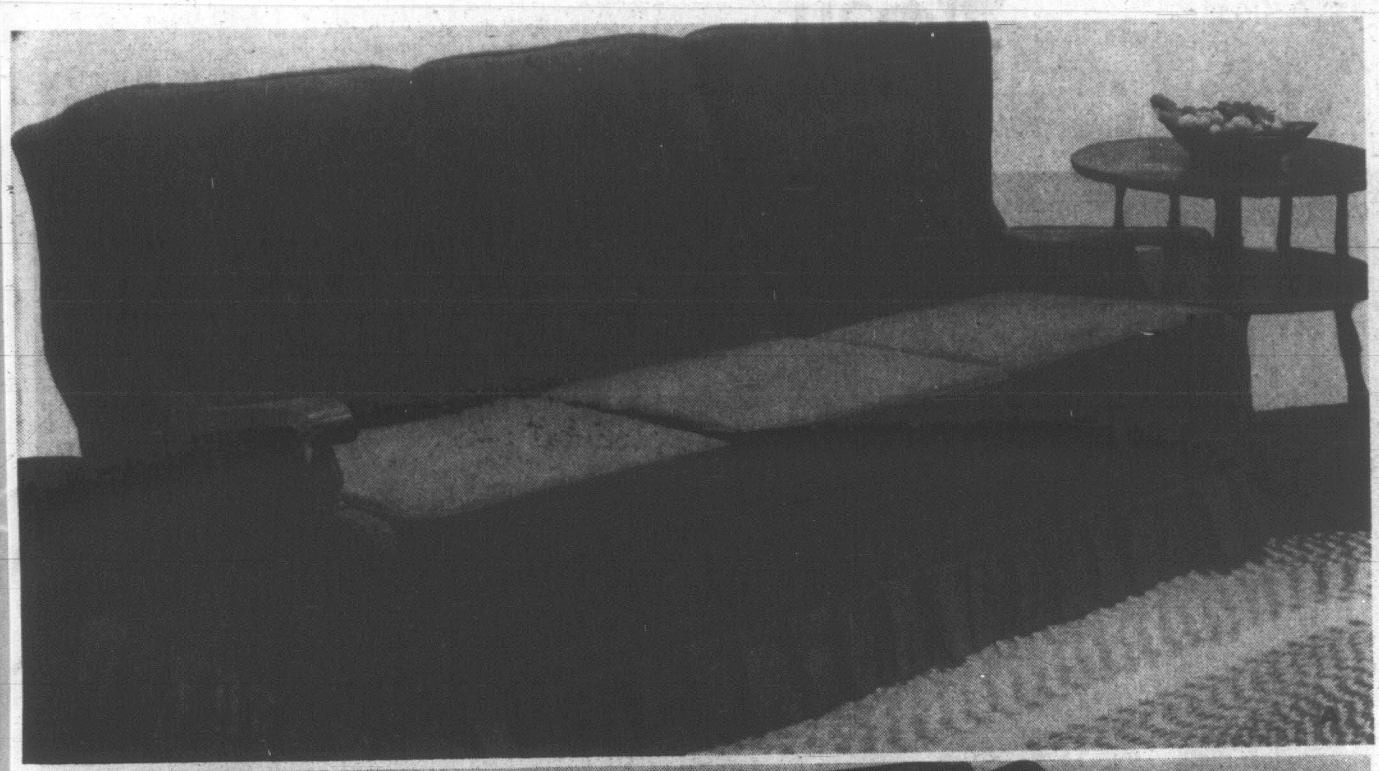

To find out if you can double your money with London Life, talk to a Company representative. And send for a free copy of the handbook "Plain talk about life insurance." Write to Department U, London Life Insurance Company, London, Ontario.

This figure is made up of $10,080 in guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends based on the Company's current scale. While dividends are not guaranteed, London Life for years has had one of the most outstanding records of dividend payments in North America.*

CENTENNIAL MEDAL
. . . for service to the nation

3 Sooke Educators Awarded Medals

Three Sooke school district educators are among Canadians who have received silver centennial medals in recognition of valuable service to the country.

They are Harold Parrott, principal of Dunsmuir Junior Secondary School; H. M. Palsson, vice-principal of Belmont Senior Secondary School and Mrs. Patricia Hewitt, teacher at Belmont Park's John Stubbs School.

Both men are past presidents of the B.C. Teachers Federation. Mrs. Hewitt pioneered instruction in the Initial Teaching Alphabet of 44 phonetic sounds.

Mrs. Mary F. Graham, 505 Lampson Street, telephone operator at the dockyard for 20 years, has also been awarded a centennial medal for valuable service.

CHECKUPS ASKED

Firemen Too Tubby? Just Heavy — Reeve

Two-year medical checkups are in the offing for Saanich firefighters.

The municipal fire committee agreed Tuesday night that chairman Coun. Alan Newberry continue to pursue the matter and that checkups be every two years.

During discussion, Coun. Digby Kier said some firefighters appear to be overweight but Reeve Hugh Curtis disagreed saying "some are heavy but they are in good shape."

Asked if there was specific physical exercise, Chief Joseph Sutherland said no but Coun. Newberry pointed out there are regular drills.

In another matter, the committee agreed to recommend to council that a probationary firefighter be hired effective Dec. 31 to provide for holiday relief.

Chief Sutherland said there are 194 weeks of holiday a year to be covered but 38 of them are without reliefs resulting in overtime. An extra man would mean each platoon having its own holiday relief and overtime would be overcome.

Russians Refuse To Pay for Crash

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Vancouver insurance company has abandoned its fight to get the Soviet Union to pay $5,000 damages for a collision between Russian and Canadian fishing vessels two years ago.

"We've paid the legal costs and closed all the books—that's it," said H. A. Christenson, manager of the Paciifc Coast Fisherman's Mutual Insurance Company.

The Canadian vessel and the Russian ship collided off Alaska May 20, 1965, and the insurance company had been trying ever since to claim damages from Russia on behalf of the Canadian boat.

"The contention was that . . . the other boat the B.C. Clipper of Vancouver) was drifting," Mr. Christenson said in an interview Friday.

The Russians also said no one was in the Clipper's wheelhouse at the time and the vessel was not properly lighted.

"They just stuck to their story," said Mr. Christenson.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1967 —PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

On a bright day next spring, Beach Drive dog-walkers may be startled to observe what looks uncommonly like a beer sausage scudding across and a trifle above our narrow waters. This, if the Air Transport Board approves its species for coast use, will be a Hovercraft outward bound with its passengers on the Victoria-Vancouver run.

At full scoot, it will attain a speed of about 60 miles an hour, and though its nine-foot prop generates a considerable roar, those on board will find their air-cushioned ride smooth and relatively quiet.

I can pass these facts on to you from personal experience, even though my Hovercraft ride was no more than a St. Lawrence River scurry in the company of other Expo pilgrims.

I wasn't too keen about committing myself to a wingless flying boat that supported itself by means invisible to the viewer, and was persuaded only after we had watched the sausage propel itself briskly between its ports several times.

Then, convinced that the craft was stable and functional, though still mighty odd, I tagged after my eager wife to join the lineup at the Hovercraft's berth.

★

This consisted mostly of a broad, concrete apron that sloped gently to the river.

In came the chunky monster, roar descending to a growl as it eased up against the current. At close range, it looked rather like an outsized doughnut life raft with cabin and cockpit let into it.

Its outer hull, if such it may be called, was a pneumatic cylinder four feet in diameter, colored medium blue and reassuringly plumped out with air.

The know-it-all behind me in the lineup explained to his wife that this cylinder was called the skirt, and told her to watch what happened next.

Still under power, the Hovercraft nosed the concrete, slid out upon it, and advanced in our direction. At the top of the apron it skidded itself sideways. The skirt collapsed, the craft settled, then a bow door opened outward neat as you please to form a ramp.

Passengers clambered out of the Hovercraft's bowels like so many Jonahs emerging from a whale. They looked kind of pleased with themselves, and it was obvious they had weathered the crossing in good fettle.

★

An attendant counted us off in twos from our double rank. By this time I was chafing to board and test our luck; but the count ended just short of Win and me.

The Hovercraft, its quota gulped, closed its mouth, expanded its skirt, and hitched itself about. Then it slid slick as a seal into the river, to ride on a cushion of air with its bulk clear of the current.

We didn't have to wait long before another ship of the pudgy fleet hove into sight with a rainbow of spray arched over its bows. It repeated the landing manoeuvre, swallowed about three dozen of us, and took off.

We had been anticipating a wild ride, but to our disappointment, the Hovercraft could have passed for a bus travelling a more than ordinarily smooth road in a sun shower. Its driver, or pilot as I suppose he should be called, handled his craft with proper British nonchalance.

By no means an exciting trip, we decided—but after all, it wasn't supposed to be.

So much for that brief encounter, and to it I can only add that the Hovercraft in its various types and sizes is by no means unproved in serious service. Invented, designed and manufactured in Britain, the sturdy skimmers have been subjected to tests that include rigorous land and water travel in the Canadian Arctic.

I don't know how they'll take the Gulf of Georgia if their use is approved, but this I can assure you: when you see a Hovercraft, it'll be some time before you can really believe it!

Bunn Fears 'Patsy' Curriculum Committee As Teachers Quit Over Peterson Snub

LESLIE PETERSON
. . . ignored-committee

By BRUCE YEMEN

The danger of a "patsy" high school English curriculum committee approving "Pablum" course content was raised today in the wake of the mass resignation of the seven-member committee that chose a controversial Grade 12 textbook.

But Greater Victoria School Board chairman Peter Bunn, who issued the warning, said he agreed entirely with the committee's stand in the face of "gross interference" by Education Minister Peterson.

The seven-member committee of the B.C. Teachers' Federation quit in protest against the minister's handling of the controversy over a four-letter word for sexual intercourse which appeared in the optional Grade 12 text, Story and Structure.

IGNORED

The committee said Mr. Peterson ignored its professional judgment in his public pronouncements. Resignation was mainly on the matter of principle.

Miss Mabel Conibear, head of English at Esquimalt Secondary School and the only Victoria member of the committee, said she felt the resignation would strengthen the position of a new committee to be appointed by the curriculum branch of the education department.

Usual procedure for

appointment is for the department curriculum branch to ask the teachers' federation for nominations to the committee.

There is a possibility the federation might refuse to put forward any names as a matter of principle but this would be an extreme measure that could harm the future English curriculum, one Victoria federation member said.

The department doesn't have the manpower to take over the work, he said.

Mr. Bunn was concerned that Mr. Peterson's demonstration that "political expediency over-rides all other considerations" would make it extremely difficult for a future committee to hold the line against "pablum" influences in English course content.

WORDS DELETED

Mr. Peterson announced Oct. 30, two weeks after the controversy erupted, that an alternate text had been approved for the Grade 12 course and later said arrangements had been made to delete the four-letter words from the story in question, Defender of the Faith by Philip Roth.

Neither Miss Conibear nor Mr. Bunn had any quarrel with Mr. Peterson's personal objection to the four-letter word but they stressed professional matters should be left to the professionals.

Miss Conibear said the story containing the word was "very moral" and that the revised English curriculum was making a healthy impact on students.

Mr. Bunn said the new curriculum was the most exciting thing to happen in high school English education in years.

HARMED SYSTEM

Mr. Peterson's interference has done "nothing but harm to the education system," Mr. Bunn said.

The committee was composed of senior B.C. English teachers and included three UBC professors. There was no chairman as such. John Meredith, education department assistant instruction superintendent, handled the meetings.

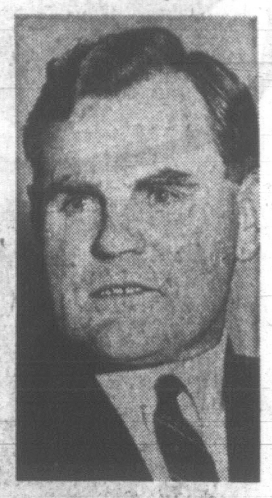

Committee members received an annual honorarium of $60 plus expenses for monthly meetings in Vancouver, but the reading of several possible textbooks during the selection process made great demands on the time of members, Miss Conibear said.

As an example, she said members had read eight anthologies before selecting Story and Structure.

The mass resignation was announced Tuesday in Vancouver and were accepted by the education minister.

Mr. Peterson thanked the committee for its service saying its only failure was in not advising the department about the controversial words in the Grade 12 textbook.

Mr. Peterson received the resignations in a letter from the committee. Another letter from Charles Ovans, general secretary of the teachers' federation, also objected strongly to the minister's handling of the controversy.

Jubilee Annex To Close

St. Joseph's Takes Isolation Patients

By PETE LOUDON

Royal Jubilee Hospital's infectious diseases annex is slated to close January 1.

All adult patients with diseases requiring isolation will be moved to St. Joseph's Hospital.

An isolation annex there will be expanded to become the main treatment centre for Greater Victoria.

Children aged under 14 will still be treated at Royal Jubilee under the plan, a St. Joseph's official said today.

He said both hospitals are agreed on the creation of a single isolation centre for adults but the plan requires approval of Metro medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Dr. Whitbread, who is responsible for isolation facilities and reporting of all communicable diseases, said today he expects the move to proceed.

The plan removes a duplication of facilities and makes fuller use of available isolation beds. The new ward is expected to be located in an annex at St. Joseph's which previously was only partly used for isolation cases.

Patients with polio, scarlet fever, infectious hepatitis, chicken pox, measles, and mumps and several other infectious diseases would be sent to the new ward at St. Joseph's.

FIRE TRAP

Vacating the old annex at Royal Jubilee is expected to revive a controversy about whether or not the old ward should be demolished. It has been called a fire trap.

But at the last annual meeting of Jubilee Hospital, Dr. R. C. Anderson disupted this. He said he had examined the one-storey wooden frame building and found it as safe as any other part of the hospital.

"A long look should be taken at retaining it for a five-year period," he said, drawing attention to the serious bed shortage in Victoria hospitals.

Other doctors have said privately that in view of the need for chronic care beds in the city it would be wrong to destroy the annex before alternative bed space is available.

Dr. Whitbread believes the annex should be removed as soon as possible.

He indicated the expanded isolation centre at St. Joseph's should also be regarded as a stop-gap. He said a new separate isolation hospital is required. He said it should be located near the public health laboratory which is located at Royal Jubilee.

NEW MODERATOR of the British Columbia synod, Presbyterian Church in Canada, is Rev. A. Gordon Faraday of Esquimalt. He was elected by a unanimous vote of Presbyterian clergy attending the provincial synod (parliament) in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, today. Mr. Faraday is command chaplain (Protestant) to Canada's Pacific defence force. Born at Ottawa, he served as chaplain with the Royal Canadian Navy in Korea from 1952 to 1953 and was posted to Esquimalt in 1964 as senior chaplain to HMCS Naden.

Ald. Stewart To Seek Re-election

Ald. Ian Stewart, completing his first term on Victoria city council, announced today that he will seek re-election in December.

Ald. Stewart said he will file his nomination papers Thursday immediately following city council's ratification of city clerk Morran Waller as returning officer.

A lawyer, Ald. Stewart said if re-elected he will continue to press for the energetic development of the downtown core.

"We have to answer two questions," he said. "One, do we have a city core now? and two, do we really want a solid and thriving core in the city?

"I think we do. And I think that with progressive planning we can in quite a short time see the redevelopment of the area between Cook and Blanshard and the redevelopment of the Wharf Street area.

REALITY

"With these two areas developed the downtown core we often talk about would become reality."

Ald. Stewart said one of his prime reasons for seeking a further term on council is a desire to see city council find a solution to the present housing problem in the city.

"Housing has not been an area of my responsibility in the past," he said. "But if I am returned to council in December I intend to make it an area of responsibility in the future. We have to find a solution to the housing problems facing our citizens, particulary those in the low income bracket."

$50 REWARD

Aluminum Bars Lost At Dockyard

The disappearance of 14 small aluminum bars from a jetty at Esquimalt Dockyard could put a crimp in a year-long research project being carried out by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The bars, each measuring 24 inches long, two inches wide and one-quarter of an inch thick, attached to a rack, were tied to a rope and lowered into the water from the jetty early this year.

Officials of the Defence Research Board, who are assisting Alcan in the project, were to check the newly-developed alloy's strength and corrosion resistant qualities during the test period.

When members of the Pacific Naval Laboratory went to check the bars a few days ago they found the rope had been severed at the water line. Divers were called in to search the sea bottom around the jetty but they could not find the bars.

$50 REWARD

Officials believe the rope could have been severed by a drifting log. If so it might have been washed up on a beach with the bars still attached. A $50 reward has been offered for return of the bars.

An advertisement placed in newspapers Tuesday said the bars "are essential to an important research program."

Persons with information about the bars were advised to contact Ray Buckett, a technical officer with PNL.

It was learned that Alcan was anxious to have results of the Esquimalt test because the company is preparing a paper on the program for presentation to a symposium in the spring.

Although the new alloy is being tested in many parts of the nation the Esquimalt test was considered important in providing control data because sea water here has the lowest level of industrial contamination in Canada, it was reported.

Ask The Times

Q. Doesn't anyone know the name of those weights used not too many years ago to tether or anchor cart horses while their drivers made house-to-house deliveries? The weight was attached to a long strap which was fastened to the horse's bridle and when the driver left the cart he'd swing the weight to the ground and the resulting pressure on the horse's mouth discouraged it from moving away. R.J.L.B.

A. It was called a "frog."

Route Cleared For Sewer Plan

Regional District Approves

By JIM HUME

The Regional District this afternoon approved the amended letters patent covering the implementation of the master plan for a district-wide trunk sewer system.

The board also approved the hiring of a firm of consultants to design and plan the actual construction of the system.

The decisions clear the way for the financing and construction of the $23.5 million sewerage collection and disposal system recommended 18 months ago in the massive sewerage survey study prepared by Associated Engineering Services.

Individual councils still have to approve the project but no major hold-up is anticipated. Saanich and Esquimalt are already on record as fully approving the over-all plan. Oak Bay and Victoria have also indicated that they will approve once the cost-sharing formula is carefully spelled out.

The project, designed to be built in stages over the next 50 years, would be capable of serving a population of 420,000, the estimated population of the Greater Victoria district in 2017.

Present population is 170,000.

$17 ANNUALLY

The estimated per capita cost over the first 10 years of construction has been set at $17 annually, or $1.50 per person per month.

In the original report the engineers stressed that cost estimates were based on 1965-66 construction costs and that the ultimate cost of an adequate trunk sewer system could be well over the $23.5 million.

The engineers also stressed that much of the work to be done to provide an adequate sewer system is of an urgent nature and strongly recommended that 50 per cent of the total cost should be spent during the first 10 years of the 50-year program.

Colwood, Langford, View Royal and Brentwood were placed at the top of the priority list by the engineers.

Ferry Tie-Up Threatened If Cabinet Doesn't Budge

Cabinet inaction "could well result in a work stoppage" aboard the government ferries, a union spokesman said today.

Tom Gooderham of the Canadian Labour Congress said the cabinet has refused to date to give the 700-member ferry employees union an answer to recommendations made by B.C. Ferries to the cabinet.

Tentative agreement was reached last month between the union, which represents deck, catering and shore workers, and management of B.C. Ferries but cabinet approval also is necessary.

Issues involved in the tentative agreement include overtime, scheduling of hours and union dues checkoff in an amount greater than the government has allowed other civil servants.

"NO SUCCESS"

"The union has through numerous phone calls to the authority management, Attorney-General Bonner and the premier's office endeavored to get an answer but have had no success," said Mr. Gooderham.

"Union members are demanding their officers implement the program arrived at several weeks ago when the employees refrained from taking action to tie up the ferries.

"The employees were intending a stoppage on the Thanksgiving holiday weekend and again on subsequent weekends but refrained from taking action at the request of union officers, who asked for restraint in the hope of finding a settlement.

WAITING

"Union members have been waiting patiently for a reply from the government on the recommendations made by the ferry authority management but to date have not received an answer.

"Employees are becoming very impatient, but if a satisfactory answer is given by the cabinet a memorandum of understanding will be arrived at in written form between the ferry authority and union which would eliminate the need of work stoppages by employees at least for the duration of the memorandum and would pave the way for future good labor-management relations."

$1,000 LIFT FOR APPEAL FROM SAILORS

United Red Feather - Red Cross Appeal was swelled today with a pledge of $1,000 by the ship's company of HMCS Yukon, now en route to Esquimalt after an Australian cruise.

Instead of canvassing for the United Appeal, a series of small raffles were organized and nearly $100 a month has been raised in this manner.

Can Christmas Be Far Behind?

The first mandarin oranges of the Christmas season will be on sale in stores here Thursday.

George Pears, manager of Slade and Stewart, fruit and vegetable wholesalers, said the oranges arrived in Vancouver from Formosa today aboard the Ss. Washington.

A part of the cargo of 38,000 bundles was being shipped to the city, he said.

The 14,361-ton freighter is about two weeks ahead of the first Japanese shipment.

Internship Program Designed to Avert Social Tragedies

By DON VIPOND
Times Education Reporter

Throughout our bustling economy are many people at work where they don't belong.

This is sad enough. But when some of them can't get to where they do belong, it's a social tragedy.

And often a terrible waste of talent.

Educators have done something about it.

The teacher internship program is tapping a rich supply of potential teachers now in industry, business or the home. These are university graduates, in their late twenties, who have developed a yen to teach after launching another career.

What stopped these people from moving into a profession always in need of more good men and women?

Money, of course. To qualify as teachers, they needed an additional year of university training. Not many could finance that without a job.

So the University of Victoria started its teacher internship program a year ago. Out of 226 inquiries to advertisements came 11 persons who spent last May and June getting a first-hand taste of teaching, under supervision.

Jim London is 31, married and the father of a baby boy. He has spent five years as a salesman with a downtown department store.

For him and the other interns it was a spring they won't forget. During the early part of the day they prepared lessons or taught. When school was out the interns headed for the university and a two-hour class. At night they prepared the next day's lessons.

●

During July and August the interns were at summer school classes. In September they began full-time teaching under Letters of Permission.

Through this year they will attend 16 Saturday morning seminars at the university. And they will spend next summer at school there too

But in the meantime they are being paid a salary.

"When this program came along it made it possible for me to do two things," says Jim, "complete my education and earn a living at the same time."

Both he and Ken Warren, another intern, are teaching at Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School. If all goes well, they will be fully qualified teachers when the next school year starts.

"We've had nothing but favorable comments on the program," says Dr. Richard Monk, associate professor in the university's faculty of education. "And there have been surprisingly few bugs to iron out too."

It will be watched closely with a view to expansion, he added.

Five Persons Now Seeking Saanich Seat

A fifth person announced today he will seek the single Saanich seat on the Greater Victoria School Board in the Dec. 9 election.

He is former city manager Cecil Wyatt, 3461 Mayfair Drive, currently secretary of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

He said this morning his knowledge and experience in local government, especially in financial affairs, "could be of value."

Other four candidates are William Hibbert, Richard Reeve, Mrs. R. B. Restall and Douglas Brown. Saanich trustee Mrs. Frances Thompson said earlier she will not seek re-election.

Rates Called Fair, Few Motels Gouging

Very few B.C. motels overcharge their customers.

That is the general opinion of delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Motels and Resorts Association at Holyrood House.

"We are satisfied that very few B.C. operators take advantage of the public when there is a shortage of accommodation," said Jack Luckhurst of Port Alberni.

"Generally speaking, I would say our rates compare favorably with any in North America. Most B.C. motels are listed in the green book and the majority post their winter and summer rates in the rooms."

Mr. Luckhurst said many delegates to the convention discussed motel charges after B.C. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan urged motel operators to post their winter and summer rates.

'FAIR PRICING'

Mr. Kiernan said B.C. motels should establish a reputation for "fair dealing and fair pricing."

"No one would argue with the minister on that point," Mr. Lockhurst said. "But I don't think we should treat it as a criticism. We are satisfied that most B.C. operators give good value for money."

This view was endorsed by Ernest Shauer of Cache Creek who was elected president of the association for the coming year.

COURSES OPPOSED

Most of the 150 delegates opposed a suggestion that motel proprietors should have to pass test courses before being allowed to operate.

"This was never put in the form of a resolution," Mr. Shauer said. "It was simply a suggestion from the floor of the convention and, after discussion, it was referred to the executive for study."

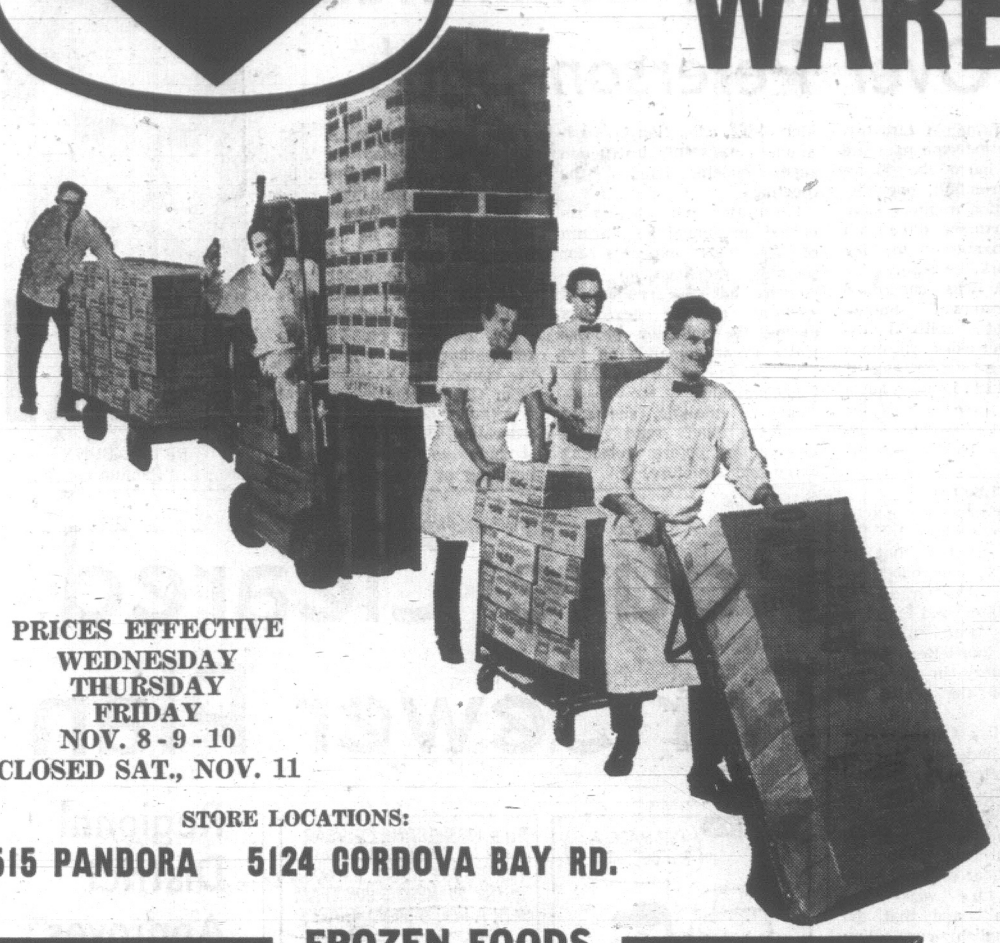

Mr. Luckhurst said most members are in favor of high standards of motel-keeping but would oppose interference either by the association or the provincial government.

Larry Facey of Vancouver was elected vice-president in the motels division; William Ashworth of Savory Island, vice-president in the resorts division; and Walter Mueller of Parksville, vice-president in the trailer courts division.

The association supported a resolution asking the federal government to continue its efforts to revive the West Coast supply of herring and salmon.

Dollar-Dinner Festival

Serves 4 for about $1.00. Each of the Campbell dinners below serves four, but costs only about one dollar to make.
Meals are deliciously inexpensive, when you cook with Campbell's Soup.

ONE-POT PORK CHOP SUPPER

- 4 pork chops (about 1 pound)
- 1 can (10 ounces) Campbell's Tomato Soup
- ½ cup water
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 6 to 8 small whole potatoes, or 3 medium, quartered
- 4 small carrots, split lengthwise and cut in 2-inch pieces

In skillet, brown chops. Pour off fat. Add remaining ingredients. Cover; cook over low heat 45 minutes or until tender. 4 servings.

CHICKEN 'N BISCUITS

- 1 can (10 ounces) Campbell's Cream of Chicken Soup
- ½ cup water
- 2 teaspoons instant minced onion
- ⅛ teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 1 cup cubed cooked chicken
- ½ cup cooked carrot strips
- ½ cup cooked peas
- ½ cup diced cooked potato
- 1 cup packaged biscuit mix
- ⅓ cup milk

In 1½-quart casserole, blend soup, water, onion and seasoning; add chicken, carrots, peas and potatoes. Bake at 450°F. for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix and milk; spoon drop biscuits around edge of casserole. Bake 15 minutes more. 4 servings.

SAUCY MEATBALL DINNER

- 1 pound ground beef
- ¼ cup dry bread crumbs
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 can (10 ounces) Campbell's Cream of Mushroom Soup
- ½ cup water
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

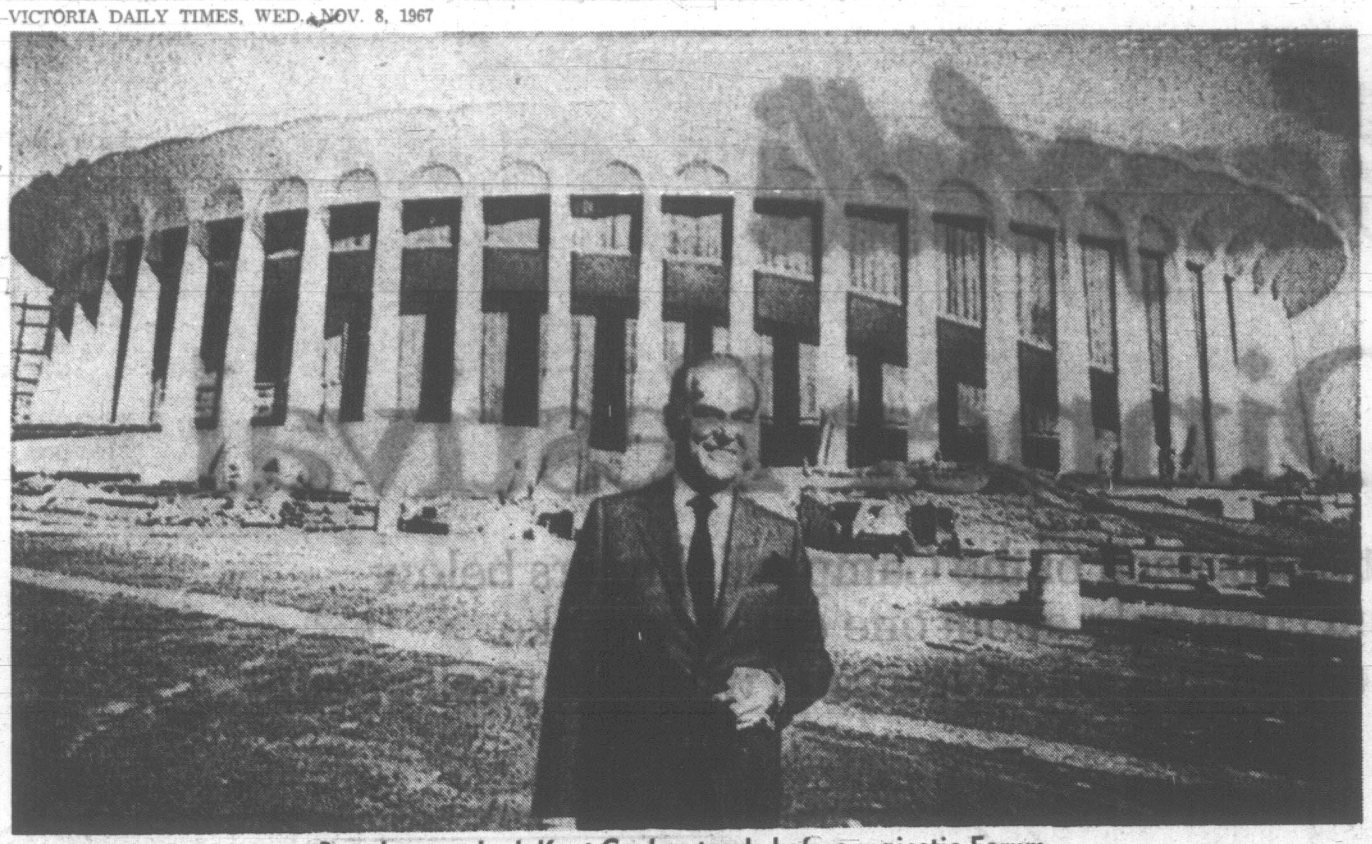

Mix beef, bread crumbs, onion, egg and salt; shape into 24 meatballs. In skillet, brown meatballs; pour off drippings. Stir in soup, water and parsley. Cover; cook over low heat 20 minutes; stir often. Serve over rice or hot buttered noodles. 4 servings.

SKILLET POTATO AND HAM

- 1 can (12 ounces) luncheon meat or 1½ cups ham (cut in strips)
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can (10 ounces) Campbell's Cream of Celery Soup
- ¼ cup salad dressing
- ½ cup water
- ½ teaspoon prepared mustard
- Generous dash pepper
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- 3 cups sliced cooked potatoes

Brown meat and cook onion in butter until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat; stir now and then. Garnish with sliced hard-cooked egg and parsley. 4 servings.

Only Name Is New For Barry's Boys

Bad Luck Stays As Sad Seals Blow 3-0 Lead

By The Canadian Press

Barry Van Gerbig may have had more than local patrons in mind when he asked the National Hockey League office for permission to change the name of the California Seals to the Oakland Seals.

The owner of the expansion team in the NHL may also have been hoping to break a string of ill fortune that has generally dogged his team through the early part of the schedule.

In 13 games this season, the Seals have managed wins in only their first two games, going winless in the last 11.

They've managed to produce 29 goals—but have allowed more than their share—40—as they continue to drop deeper into the cellar of the six-team expansion division.

SEALS OUTSHOT KINGS

Their luck was not any better Tuesday when they blew a 3-0 second period lead before 5,164 home fans and lost 5-4 to division-leading Los Angeles Kings.

The Seals outshot the Kings 32-28, but succumbed when Ed Joyal and Brian Smith beat goalie Charlie Hodge late in the third period.

The other Los Angeles goals went to Terry Gray, Gord Labossiere and Bill White while George Swarbrick and Mike Laughton beat Los Angeles goalie Wayne Rutledge in the first period and Alain Caron opened the second with their third goal.

Only the Kings have allowed more goals—41—in the division while the Seals are third in scoring behind the 41 goals scored by Los Angeles and the 31 by Pittsburgh Penguins.

To make matters even worse, tonight they have to play host to Toronto Maple Leafs, tied for first place in the veteran Eastern Division with New York Rangers.

The Rangers are at home to Boston Bruins, Montreal Canadiens are at Chicago, Philadelphia Flyers are at Pittsburgh and St. Louis Blues are at Minnesota in other games tonight.

Thursday the Leafs are in Los Angeles while Pittsburgh is at Detroit.

BLAMES LEAGUE

Van Gerbig, owner of the Seals, Sunday announced he was applying for the name change because about 70 per cent of his team's support came from Oakland. He said the league forced him to choose between San Francisco and California Seals as the team name even though their home rink is in Oakland.

The club opened the season by beating Philadelphia 5-2 and Minnesota 6-0, but since has managed only three ties in 11 outings.

The Leafs, who started the season with indifferent results, are arriving for their first western road trip with a four-game undefeated string, including three wins and a tie.

In other expansion division activity Tuesday, Pittsburgh announced that a proposed sale of 40 per cent of its stock to Atlanta Braves baseball team of the National League had fallen through.

Canucks End Long Drought

VANCOUVER — Finally, the long drought has ended.

And it was the old scoring pros and a rookie netminder who enabled Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League to break a 10-game winless streak. That happened Tuesday night at the Forum, before 2,827 fans, when Canucks clipped Buffalo Bisons of the American League, 6-4.

The victory was only the second of the season for Vancouver and the first against AHL competition.

Phil Maloney, Gord Vejprava, Larry Popein, Tom Thurlby, Stan Gilbertson and Bruce Carmichael scored for Vancouver. Terry Clancy, Guy Trottier, Gerry Oulette and Bill Knibbs replied for Buffalo.

Vancouver netminder Tony Esposito, playing his third game for the Canucks, turned aside 38 drives while Ed Chadwick blocked 20 for Buffalo.

Tuesday's scoring, with Vancouver marksmen well down the list, did nothing to affect the WHL's individual point chase.

Joins Eagles

HUARTE HUNTS GLORY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —It's been three years since John Huarte knew the glory of being a great quarterback at Notre Dame.

Huarte recalled it well Tuesday as he signed with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League. He was assigned to the Eagles' taxi squad—a group called upon in the event of injury to a regular.

Huarte was everybody's choice in 1964 as the Heisman Trophy winner, symbolic of college football's standout player. The Eagles drafted him sixth.

New York Jets of the American Football League selected him second.

The Jets also picked a No. 1 that year by the name of Joe Namath. They were reported to have given Namath a $400,000 package, and Huarte a $200,000 deal. Huarte wound up on the Jets' taxi squad with Namath and Mike Taliafaro kept as quarterbacks.

TRADED TO BOSTON

After one season, Huarte was traded to Boston Patriots where he became a seldom-used substitute. This year he decided to play out his option with Boston, so he could become a free agent in 1967.

Asked why he invoked the option clause, Huarte said: "I just wanted to play."

Boston didn't wait for the option to expire. The Patriots let Huarte go last month. Now, the 23-year-old passer has rejoined the coach who first recruited him for Notre Dame, Joe Kuharich.

Now general manager and coach of the Eagles, Kuharich told Huarte there was no guarantee he would play with the Eagles as long as Norm Snead and King Hill are healthy.

"We'll take him to camp next year," Kuharich said. "We think this boy is as well qualified as any boy (quarterback) in college this year. But we have no plans of playing him now."

O'KEEFES SWITCH GAME TO SITE OF TRIUMPHS

Victoria O'Keefes were almost unbeatable while playing their Pacific Coast Soccer League games last season at Macdonald Park.

They wound up with the league title but this season things have not been as bright on the heavier turf at Royal Athletic Park. O'Keefes have lost two of three starts on the Caledonia Avenue pitch.

Although they believe fans are more comfortable at Athletic Park, O'Keefes feel their supporters have a better chance to see their team win on the firmer Macdonald turf. Accordingly, they have switched Saturday's (2 p.m.) league match against Vancouver Firefighters to the James Bay surface.

"We have made the change believing that our fans will see better football on the better surface at Macdonald," said team spokesman Len Anderson.

Labs Swallow Upset Potion

Labatts were forced to swallow a dose of their own hop medicine Thursday night and today Independents are feeling better.

Last Sunday, Labatts spooned a 49-44 upset down the Independents' throats. The bitter medicine was the first defeat of the season for the Indies and it left the two clubs sharing first place in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League.

Labatts had their turn Tuesday night at Oak Bay High School. They were forced to swallow a 50-47 upset potion mixed up by Farmer Construction and had to watch the happy Independents step back into sole possession of the top berth by bopping Red Lion Inn 66-53.

THIRD VICTORY

Farmers grabbed a 29-26 lead in the opening half and held on stubbornly in the closing stages to collect their third win of the campaign.

Fred Gubbels, getting nine of his 15 points from the free-throw strip, and Jordan Ellis, with 12 points, paced the construction crew.

Leading Labatt snipers were Joe Patterson (14) and John Devlin (12).

Mike Gallo (21 points) and Bill Spotswood (19) each hit nine field goals while Independents fashioned a 35-26 lead in the opening half and easily protected their margin the rest of the way.

Bob Tomlinson, cashing in on nine of 11 foul shots, was the Labatt scoring leader with 15 points.

	GP	W	L	F	A	Pts
Independents	7	6	1	478	410	12
Labatts	7	5	2	388	347	10
Colony Inn	7	3	3	434	435	6
Farmers	7	3	4	364	341	6
Red Lion	7	0	7	395	510	0

Next games: Thursday at Lansdowne Jr. High School — Farmer Construction vs. Independents at 7; Colony vs. Labatts at 8:30.

INDEPENDENTS (66) — Clark 18, Gallo 21, Gregory 3, Spotswood 19, Williamson 1, McKechnie 4.

RED LION (53) — Balloch, East Skillings 4, Lansdell 8, Lusk 5, McDonald 3, McKaskill 8, Portsouis, Siddons, Stewart, Tomlinson 13, Wilson 10.

LABATTS (47) — Patterson 14, Kowalyk 4, Devlin 12, Jones 5, Brown 1, Bennett 2, Montgomery 4, Jackson 2, Straak, Bobbell 2, Munroe.

FARMER CONSTRUCTION (53) — Horn, Falker, Ellis 9, Brice 12, Wescott Farquhar, Farmer 3, Ford 6, Gubbles 15, Martin, Baker, Number 5.

TRY SOMETHING NEW

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Three judges and a non-judging referee — unique in boxing annals — will officiate at the 15-round world light-heavyweight title fight between Champion Dick Tiger and challenger Roger Rouse of Montana, Nov. 17.

Kayo Keeping Cooper Active

LONDON (AP) — Henry Cooper, 33-year-old British and Empire champion, stopped challenger Billy Walker in the sixth round Tuesday night and quickly changed his mind about retiring from the prize fight business.

Cooper had said this would be his last big fight. But after beating Walker he said he was ready to fight Karl Mildenberger of Germany in April.

Cooper weighed 187½ pounds. Walker, 28, was at 192.

Peninsula Clubs Launch Season

Another peninsula basketball season opens tonight at Cordova Bay Community Hall.

Competition will again include league play for girls and boys in pre-midget, midget, bantam and juvenile divisions.

Cordova Bay club will be active in each of tonight's three tussles. The pre-midget boys meet Brentwood at 7, the midget boys face Brentwood at 8 and the bantam girls tackle Saanich at 9.

AND PRETTY USHERS . . .

Forum Cooke-d To Impress Nine-Footers . . .

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Introducing The Forum, greater Los Angeles' $16,000,000 edifice for sports, entertainment and almost anything else that can be displayed indoors . . .

The brochure describes The Forum as "already internationally known; is acclaimed as the finest arena built since the original Roman Coliseum."

The reserved London Times has indeed said: "The Forum could be one of the better designed buildings in the last half century."

The Roman Coliseum, historians tell us, was dedicated A.D. 80, and The Forum's ceremony is set for Dec. 30.

★ ★ ★

Multi-millionaire Jack Kent Cooke is responsible.

The Forum will be the home of his Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association, and his Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League.

Cooke also owns Los Angeles Wolves of the United Soccer Association, as well as one-quarter of Washington Redskins football team.

Cooke, 55, is a self-made millionaire. Born in Hamilton, Ont., he now is an American citizen.

★ ★ ★

For years he tried to bring major-league baseball to Canada through elevation of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

He finally boomed into major sports when he bought the Lakers in 1964. Their home became the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

But Cooke and the Coliseum Commission, a state agency which controls the Sports Arena, got into a giant hassle and Cooke declared he'd build his own arena.

The Forum rises majestically, its circular design surrounded by 80 sculptured concrete columns, in the middle of 30 acres of land adjacent to Hollywood Park race track. (See photo above.)

The giant columns form an arcade and the suspensory-type roof, anchored by 40 huge cables, insures unhindered vision for spectators. There are no supporting posts or poles indoors.

Eight miles southwest of downtown Los Angeles, it can seat 19,325 for conventions, 18,134 for boxing and wrestling, 17,095 for basketball and something under that for midget car and motorcycle racing.

★ ★ ★

The doors to its dressing rooms are nine feet tall. Cooke's seven-foot tall basketball stars will not have to duck through.

The balcony rails are not the usual round pipes which hamper a fan's view. No, The Forum's rails are thin strips of metal, installed on a slant to allow a clear look at the floor area.

The multi-layered floor can be permanently iced for hockey or ice shows and the ice need not be removed to stage a basketball game or a boxing match one layer up.

Cooke's ushers will be girls wearing the tunica costumes of Roman days—short sleeves and skirts just above the knees.

Quebec Tightens Race By Beating Rochester

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cleveland Barons kept on climbing atop the Western Division of the American Hockey League Tuesday night while the race behind them just got tighter.

The Barons dropped Baltimore Clippers 6-3 on Howie Glover's three goals while second-place Buffalo Bisons lost 6-4 to Vancouver Canucks of the Western League and Quebec Aces joined Buffalo and Rochester Americans, each with 10 points, by beating Rochester 8-3.

The Barons also got goals from Doug Senior, Jim Paterson and Norm Ferguson. Bob Rivard, Sandy MacGregor and Willie Marshall scored for Baltimore.

In Quebec, the Aces got two goals from Bob Courcy and one each from Jim Johnson, Andre Lacroix, Roger Pelletier, Richard Sarrazin, Simon Nolet and Keith Wright. The Rochester goals went to Bronco Horvath, Bob Barlow and Dick Gamble.

Romp for Liverpool

LIVERPOOL, England (AP)—Liverpool, current leaders of the English soccer league standings, defeated TSV Munich 8-0 Tuesday night in the first leg of their European Inter-Cities Fairs competition.

They'll Have Fun Even if They Lose

MEXICO CITY (AP) — David Jimenez and Chi Chi Rodriguez of Puerto Rico form one of the strongest—and happiest—teams in the World Cup golf tournament that starts Thursday.

They came to Mexico to win. But no matter what their final score they figure to have more fun than anyone else on the 7,500-yard Club de Golf Mexico course.

Rodriguez and Jimenez will be among 80 golfers—including Canadians George Knudson and Al Balding—when play opens in the 72-hole tournament for national pride and personal prestige. Entries come from 36 countries.

The Puerto Ricans had their first practice round on the narrow, hazard-filled course Tuesday and only a few of the 80 or so members of their gallery abandoned them when word came that Jack Nicklaus of the United States had started his practice round.

PAIR LIGHTHEARTED

Rodriguez and Jimenez traded banter between themselves and with spectators as they visited the practice tee before setting out for a quick nine holes.

"Watch this one go out of the park," the 130-pound Rodriguez said as he took aim at a 50-foot fence at the far side of the practice tee. "See if you can match it," he told Jimenez.

The ball did clear the fence, as did three of Jimenez' drives.

"I can't keep this up," the younger Puerto Rican said. "Balls cost too much.

"You've been on the tour five years and now you're rich," he told Rodriguez.

FOX TO COACH FOR SENATORS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nellie Fox, 11-year all-star American League second baseman, has been named first-base coach of Washington Senators.

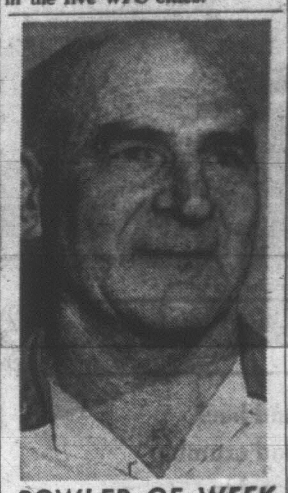

Fox, a coach and player for Houston since 1964, spent most of his career, 14 years, with Chicago White Sox.

Rookie Gerela Tops 'em All

REGINA (CP) — Ted Gerela, place kicker and offensive halfback with the British Columbia Lions, has been awarded the Dr. Beattie Martin Trophy for his outstanding performance as a Canadian rookie in the Western Football Conference.

In making the announcement, secretary Bob Gillies said Gerela, with 33 points, led Edmonton's Mike Law with 28, Winnipeg's Chip Barrett with 22 and Ken Ferguson, also of the Lions, who had 18.

The award was given on the basis of votes from press, radio and television sports reporters in the five WFC cities.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Men's fivepin division in fifth week of Times' "Bowler-of-the-Week" competition was dominated by impressive 335-277-310-922 series bowled by Doug Mann in Men's Commercial League at Gibson's Recreation. Last year, Mann had to wait until the 24th week to qualify, with an 893 total.

CANADA'S GIFT

'Big Z' Giving UCLA Big Boot

LOS ANGELES (AP)—This may be difficult to equate, but the second leading scorer for the UCLA football team, just behind star quarterback Gary Beban, is a javelin thrower from Canada who until this season never played in a football game.

He is Zenon Andrusyshyn, a strong, strapping, 6-foot-2, 205-pound sophomore, whose soccer-style kicking has been a vital factor in the Bruins' unbeaten, once-tied record this fall.

Big Z, which is easier to spell than his surname, has kicked 11 field goals, the longest 52 yards, and succeeded on 21 of 23 conversions, all for 54 points.

Beban's 10 touchdowns give him 60 points.

VERSATILE KICKER

In addition to place kicking, Zenon, from Oakville, Ont., has developed into a great punter. In 19 punts, he is averaging 44.36—and he is a dangerous punter.

Dangerous? Yes, because sometimes neither Zenon nor the enemy receivers can foretell exactly which direction the ball will take nor which direction it'll bounce.

Last Saturday Andrusyshyn kicked three field goals from 52—a school record, 33 and 26 yards, and his four punts averages 47.7. One punt traveled 54, another took a funny bounce and rolled 61 yards.

His three field goals, plus a Beban touchdown, accounted for the team's 16-16 tie with a burly Oregon State team. With seconds remaining, a 38-yard attempt for the winning points was blocked.

Andrusyshyn came to UCLA on a track scholarship, acclaimed as Canada's finest javelin thrower.

"It's too early to say," says Zenon when asked (1) whether he'll place kick for UCLA next fall or compete for Canada in the Olympic Games in Mexico City, and (2) whether he'll play professional football after graduation.

"Pro scouts used to turn out for practice just to watch Beban," said athletic director J. D. Morgan. "Now they come out to see Beban—and Andrusyshyn."

FOR ARGOS TO BEAT . . . . . RIDERS IN SEMI-FINAL

Kidnapping Is Surest Way

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts feel there is only one obstacle between them and the Eastern Football Conference final—Russ Jackson.

Argos contend that if they can stop Jackson they can defeat Ottawa Rough Riders in the sudden-death semi-final in Ottawa Sunday.

The winner will meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a two-game, total-point final for the right to represent the East in the Grey Cup at Ottawa Dec. 2.

"After our games against Ottawa, I'm convinced the surest way to beat them is to kidnap Jackson and lock him up until the game is over," says Steve Sucic, Toronto's defensive coach.

"I had some doubts about Jackson's response to pressure, but not after what he did to us."

Argonauts managed to tie the Rough Riders 28-28 in Toronto Oct. 22, but lost 28-18 after holding a 14-0 lead in Ottawa Oct. 28.

"I don't think any team got to Jackson the way we did," says Sucic. "But for coolness under fire he's a better quarterback than Calgary's Peter Liske.

"And that doesn't take into account Jackson's ability to roll out and run with the ball. In my opinion, Jackson is having his best season ever."

'LIED SO MANY TIMES . . .'

BOWER THINKS HE'S 44

Happy Whatever-Birthday It Is—

TORONTO (CP) — There'll be a difference when goaltender Johnny Bower celebrates his birthday in sunny California today.

He won't be there to escape the dreary Canadian weather and no one will know which birthday he's celebrating. It is only certain that he's under 50.

The National Hockey League has his birth date listed as Nov. 8, 1924, which will make him 43 today.

"I'll be 44," Bowers says. Many think, but no one is certain, that he might never see 45 again.

"I'm a young man—a young 44," Bower says. "I've lied about my age so many times that I'm not really sure of it now myself."

Bower will probably celebrate the birthday by playing for Toronto Maple Leafs against Oakland Seals tonight.

"I told the guy a long time ago to throw away his birth certificate," says Toronto coach Punch Imlach. "Who cares how old he is when he's that great?"

Johnny plans to play hockey as long as he can stop the puck with hands and feet faster than those of a karate champion.

"Who knows," says the man who has reigned as the Leafs' top netminder for nine full seasons, "I might be the only active player collecting my pension."

NHL players become eligible for pension at age 45, which means by the records that he will have to play two full seasons after this one.

RIBOCCO SECOND

Early Support On Damascus

LAUREL, Md. (CP)—The Australian and English challengers were at the track after long jet flights and He's A Smoothie, Canada's entry, was reported looking "Very, very good' for the $150,00 Washington International Saturday.

England's Ribicco arrived at Laurel race course after a 10-hour jet flight and Australia's Tobin Bronze, flown in by a special 10,000-mile cargo charter, appeared a picture of health after a workout Tuesday.

He's A Smoothie, four-year-old Canadian champion, exercised Monday by going 1⅛ miles on a soft dirt track and assistant trainer Bob Bateman of Toronto said he is looking "very, very good."

Smoothie's owner, Bill Beasley of Toronto, will be on hand Saturday for the 16th running of the 1½-mile race over a turf course.

CANADIAN WINNER

Smoothie last raced Oct. 21 when he won the Canadian International Stakes at Toronto and brought his earnings this season to $90,000.

Smoothie will have a final workout Thursday over a half mile.

American-owned Damascus probably will be the favorite in the nine-horse field, with Ribocco or Tobin Bronze second favorites and the Canadian entry possibly fourth in the betting.

France, winner the last three years, is represented by Casaque Grise, Venezuela by Chateaubriand, Japan by Speed Symboli, with In Command from Britain and Fort Marcy of the U.S. rounding out the field.

In the early line, Damascus was a 4-to-5 favorite and Ribocco second choice at 3-1.

Tobin Bronze's workout Tuesday was his first in a long while, said Jim Johnston, the veteran Aussie jockey who will ride him.

BREEZES ALONG

"I let him go along at a pretty good clip, however, he was still well within himself.

"He was blowing a little coming back, but it should do him a world of good. Anyway, we'll know more about it on Thursday when we work him again."

The grass here is "a bit different" than at Australian race courses, Johnston said.

"Back home, the grass is clipped closer to the ground. Other than the tall grass, it's a good course."

The colt was recently bought by Americans William Breliant and I. M. Litz for a figure reported between $336,000 and $448,000.

Johnston hopes to take International honors back Down Under for the second time. Sailor's Guide gave Australia its first International victory in 1958 when the six-year-old was awarded first spot after America's Tuor Era was disqualified.

Tobin Bronze, winner in 24 of 44 career outings, is "one of the best horses to race in Australia in a long time," Johnston said.

TIME OUT By JEFF KEATE

"Lank would probably be one of the greatest players in the game if he could just learn to take a little criticism."

MIDGET MATMEN

Jackie, Kid Top Sky Low

Midgets were the big men on Tuesday night's professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

They rated the main-event spot and the best of the little men turned out to be Jamaica Kid and Irish Jackie, who took the deciding fall in a best-of-three tag battle against Little Brutus and Sky Low.

Among the big fellows, Don Leo Jonathan took two of three falls from Dr. Jerry Graham, Chris Tolos beat Don McClarty and Jack Bence grappled to a draw with Roy McClarty.

Abdullah the Butcher is scheduled for the headline spot when the grapplers return to the Arena on Nov. 21.

Glanford Takes Hockey Tourney

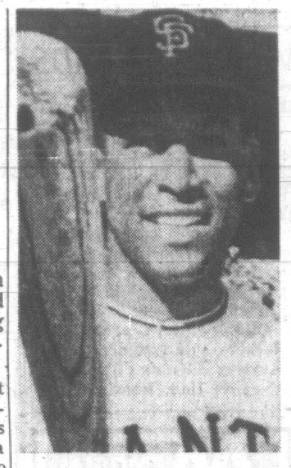

Two victories and a tie in a four-team, round-robin tournament Tuesday at Lansdowne Junior High School gave Glanford the girls' field hockey championship of Greater Victoria elementary schools.

Eleven teams started in the competition last week and four qualified for the championship tourney.

Frank Hobbs finished ahead of Oaklands and George Jay to take second place.

Streak Stretched

Goals by Colleen Davis and Val Smith at Esquimalt Tuesday gave Oak Bay its seventh straight Inter-High School Girls' Field Hockey League victory—a 2-0 decision over Esquimalt.

UNANIMOUS SUPPORT IN VOTING . . .

. . . AFTER HE ALMOST RETIRED

Award to Cepeda, Credit to Trainer

SAN JUAN (AP)—Puerto Rican Orlando Cepeda, named the National League's Most Valuable Player in a unanimous vote, is a very happy and proud man.

Interviewed at his Bayamon home after his selection today, Cepeda gave most of the credit for his award and the tremendous comeback with the world champions St. Louis Cardinals to team trainer Dr. Robert Bauman, "whose selflessness and hard work helped me greatly this year."

The Cards' big first baseman became the first player in the history of the National League to receive unanimous support from the MVP award.

He won with the highest batting average since Pittsburgh's Dick Groat won it batting .325 in 1960. Cepeda finished the season also with .325, hit 25 homers and batted in 111 runs, top in the circuit.

"This is the most marvelous thing that could happen to a ball player," Cepeda said after receiving a telephone call from St. Louis announcing the award.

"This is so big, specially when I was so close to quitting the game because of my knee injury. Imagine, for the second year in a row a Puerto Rican player wins the award," Cepeda added.

He was referring to Roberto Clemente, the Pittsburgh Pirate outfielder who won last year and was third in the voting this year. Clemente received 129 points this time and finished behind catcher Tim McCarver of the Cardinals, who got 136 points.

Ron Santo, Chicago Cubs third baseman, was fourth and Hank Aaron, Atlanta Braves outfielder, was fifth.

Cepeda was named as the number one choice in all the 20 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America named to pick the MVP. He received 280 points.

The 30-year-old player is in his 10th season in the majors. He was traded last year by San Francisco Giants to the Cards for pitcher Ray Sadecki.

The big slugger, who will get back in uniform around Nov. 21 with his winter league team, the island's defending champions and leaders Santurce Crabbers, said he is very grateful to Dr. Bauman, Dr. Sollofief of San Francisco, Dr. Ralph W. Sierra of San Juan, and former island weight lifting champion Roberto Santana, now a physical fitness expert, for his recovery and eventual comeback.

Santana developed a special metal shoe for Cepeda about two years ago, when his knee injury was about to put an end to his baseball career.

Antics Cost Celtic Sportsman's Title

LONDON (AP) — Glasgow Celtic soccer team, which had four players sent off in the world club title playoff against Racing Club of Argentina, Tuesday was deprived of the annual British Sportsman of the Year award.

The British Sports Writers Association, which presents the award, declared Celtic ineligible.

It happened after an edited film of last Saturday's savage game in Montevideo, Uruguay, had been shown on British television.

Celtic had topped a poll by British sports writers.

The Association said its committee had disqualified Celtic under a rule which says: "The poll is restricted to those who have contributed most to Great Britain's international sports prestige."

TO RUNNER-UP

Instead, the award was given to the runner-up, motorcycle ace Mike Hailwood.

It is traditional for the award to go to an individual sportsman. But last year, the sports writers set a precedent by giving it to the England soccer team which won the World Cup.

Celtic lost the playoff game against Racing Club 1-0.

Entries Overflow At Uplands Event

Uplands Golf Club officials are apologizing to 25 golfers because their annual Remembrance Day tournament is too popular.

The 25 entrants had to be drawn out because of an overflow.

Still in, however, is Morran Waller, city clerk and 1966 winner of the event.

All golfers are reminded that a buffet breakfast will be available, starting at 7 a.m.

Rossland Gets World Cup Race

ROSSLAND, B.C. (CP) — An official of the International Ski Federation Tuesday approved Red Mountain at Rossland, 15 miles west of Trail, as the site for the 1968 World Cup event international ski race.

Roland Rudin, of Berne, Switzerland, approved the mountain as the site after an inspection tour of facilities.

All finals in the world event will be held on one run on the mountain for the first time since the World Cup event was inaugurated.

After approving the Red Mountain site, Mr. Rudin left for Aspen, Colo., where another World Cup event will be held.

Daring Yorkshireman Sparks British Team

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. equestrian team, buoyed by eight victories in 11 international events in National Horse Show, headed for the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto today.

The winter fair is the last of the four major shows on the North American circuit, and while the U.S. team will be out to match its fine performance at the National, the British team will be trying to prove its victory in the last class in the National Tuesday night was no fluke.

Harvey Smith of the British team rode O'Malley to victory in the Grand Prix of New York. Smith, a 29-year-old Yorkshireman, gave the crowd of about 13,00 in Madison Square Garden some anxious moments when he gave O'Malley probably the most daring ride of the show in the jumpoff.

It paid off. O'Malley was clocked in 35.4 for the jaunt. In the process, Smith beat his team-mate, Carolyn Bradley on Franco, who was caught in 36.0, Kathy Jusner of the United States, up on Untouchable, finished third.

CANADIAN TRAIL

As things turned out, the U.S. equestrian team finished with eight victories in the 11 international events and 138 points. Britain won the other three and had 74 points. Canada was third with 40.

"It appears to be a one-sided score," observed Bill Steinkraus, the U.S. team captain and a four-time Olympian. "But don't let it fool you.

"Several of the classes the British team lost could have gone either way. They'll be tough in Toronto."

The winter fair gets under way Thursday.

Steinkraus was the leading individual rider with 38 points followed by his team-mate, Carol Hofmann with 34.

READERS' THEATRE PRESENTATION

Attacks Bourgeois Attitudes to Life

Readers' Theatre No. 2, presented by the theatre division of the University of Victoria, will consist of two plays: The Wedding on the Eiffel Tower, by Jean Cocteau; and When We Dead Awaken by Henrik Ibsen.

Audrey Stanley will direct both plays.

The Readers' Theatre is a series of full-length plays presented in a novel format in the workshop theatre, Hut Q, and the Cocteau and Ibsen plays may be seen there tonight, Thursday, and Friday at 8:30.

Cocteau wrote The Wedding on the Eiffel Tower to attack bourgeois attitudes to life, but instead of adopting a realistic form of theatre he used fantasy, mockery and comedy.

Music was specially composed by Auric, Honegger, Milhaud, Poulenc and Tailleferre—outstanding names now in the music world. Unfortunately, not a note remains!

The play was originally performed in 1921 by the Swedish Ballet Company with choreography devised by Cocteau, and the play presented as a ballet with a spoken narrative.

"Our actors are not ballet dancers so we have devised another form of theatrical presentation—that of a group mime," says Miss Stanley. "The play will be presented with very simple staging, minimal properties, limited rehearsal time and six actors; while the actual reading of the play forms part of the sound track."

Members of the cast include Joan Mason Hurley, Janet Ross, Cindy Ryan, Bennett Lee, Garry Rogers and Peter Smith. Hand masks have been designed and made by Gail Bigsby, and Neal Seymour is in charge of sound.

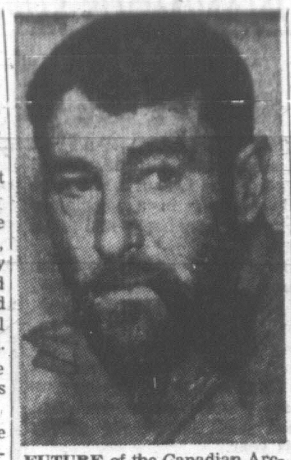

The second play, When We Dead Awaken, is Henrik Ibsen's last and shortest play.

Tickets are available from the Phoenix Theatre box office, 477-4821.

Fine, Day in Jail For Indecent Assault

A man who pleaded guilty to indecent assault on a female was fined $500 and sentenced to one day i jail in magistrate's court Tuesday.

Charles Leonard, 3711 Saanich Road, was placed on a $500 bond and probation for two years.

FUTURE of the Canadian Arctic will be discussed by Lt.-Col. P. D. Baird in a talk to the Men's Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel Thursday at 12:15 noon. Col. Baird came to Canada in 1934 as a member of Sir James Wordie's expedition to Greenland and Baffin Island. He was a member of the British Canadian Arctic Expedition of 1936-37 and director of the Canadian office of the Arctic Institute of North America from 1947 to 1954.

McMINN HEADS GARDENERS

A. R. McMinn, 3557 Quadra, was re-elected president of the Victoria Horticultural Society at its annual meeting Tuesday.

It's his second consecutive year as president of the 650-member gardening organization—the largest in British Columbia.

HOME GARDEN

Yule Flowers Demand Darkness

By HILDA BEASTALL

Poinsettias for Christmas are now well on their way to beauty.

The best coloring of the uppermost leaves surrounding the tiny flowers is achieved when the plants are given unbroken darkness from sunset to sunrise.

Hilda

In the home, this takes some planning for the lights are so easily flicked on and off in all our rooms, that we forget the darkness demanded by our Christmas blooming house plants.

If you have a room which never receives any light from around 4:30 p.m. until 8 a.m., then keep the poinsettias there for the night.

Failing this, some indoor gardeners put this plant into a cupboard which is not opened at night.

Apart from these 16 hours of darkness, the poinsettia must receive the brightest light possible during the day. Keeping it in a dark corner of the room continually is not a substitute for unbroken darkness.

If it remains in the dark all day, leaves will become yellow and fall.

The past summer has been good for growing this plant outdoors, and many gardeners had fine specimens by the time they needed to be brought in—about mid-September.

Early bringing-in helps to reduce shock, since there is less difference in conditions indoors and out during September than later when furnaces are turned on and windows less often wide open.

Water will be needed; never allow the soil to become dust dry, nor over-water to the point of saturation. As always with house plants, a medium line must be reached according to the plant's environment.

No further feeding should be given now. This is done in summer while the plant is making growth outdoors.

Men Fined $50 For Theft Of Battery, Drill

Two men Tuesday were fined $50 each on three theft charges and given a suspended sentence on a fourth.

Manfred Gruber and James Bourne, both of No. 2, 1029 Tolmie Avenue, had earlier pleaded guilty.

Central court was told the accused stole a battery from a new car at National Motors Yates Street lot, and took two sets of hand tools and a power drill from Smith Cedar Products plant.

Several witnesses testified to the good character and reputaton of the accused.

CHICKEN WITH ROSEMARY

2½ to 3-lb. broiler-fryer chicken
One small onion
One clove garlic
Few sprigs parsley
One stalk celery
Two tablespoons salad or olive oil
Half teaspoon basil
One teaspoon rosemary
Quarter-cup sherry
One tablespoon vinegar

Split the chicken in half. Chop onion, garlic, parsely and celery quite fine. Heat oil in a skillet, add chicken halves and all the chopped vegetables. Cook over a medium heat until chicken is brown on both sides. Takes about 10 to 15 minutes. Now add basil, rosemary, sherry, vinegar, and cook gently for 20 to 30 minutes or until tender. Serves two.

FLAMES SWEPT through a section of a temporary work camp at Rainbow Lake, Alta., Tuesday, destroying many trailers. Witnesses said the fire seemed to break out in several places at the same time. (CP Wirephoto.)

Flash Fire Destroys Oil Field Trailers

By JOHN CRAIG

RAINBOW LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Flames flickered in an acre of tangled wreckage today in the heart of the work camp in this northwestern Alberta oilfield community.

Through the night thudding of small explosions punctuated the stillness in the ruins of a flash fire which swept through about 40 per cent of the camp.

No one was seriously injured in the blaze, although about 200 men poured 38,000 gallons of precious water from the town reservoir on it. Water was hauled by truck to the community before the reservoir was filled.

Destroyed in less than an hour were 45 trailers, including accommodation for 200 men, laundries, a laundry supply, a shop trailer, three poolrooms, including the post office in one of them and a number of offices.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined, but Vic Rudy, the town's sole employee, said: "Somebody didn't know how to handle an oil heater. We had some oil line breaks under the plywood corridors connecting the trailers last year and the ground had oil in it."

Mr. Rudy was superintendent for J. D. Frazer construction when the camp was built in 1965.

John Ireland, an employee of Canus Camp Services Limited who run the camp for Banff Oil Company, was in the Canus office which was destroyed when the fire broke out.

He said a man he knew only by sight came running to tell him of a fire. He investigated and by the time he returned to a telephone 150 feet away, "it was breaking out all over the camp."

"This is the strange thing about it. It was in front of us, behind us, all around us."

During the fire, Mr. Rudy said soft drinks and hunting ammunition belonging to the workers exploded.

80 EVACUATED

About 80 men were evacuated to Edmonton on two aircraft during the night. Some oil industry contractors were making alternate arrangements for their men in Rainbow Lake and about 50 men were expected to find bunks in the remaining portion of the camp where a total of about 500 already were accommodated. The Red Cross sent blankets and other supplies to the camp.

Don Brown, a superintendent with Voice Construction of Edmonton and one of 25 men evacuated, said he smashed his way out of his trailer through a window.

"Fire was raging across the site. Men were trying to fight the blaze with water hoses.

"From the moment I stepped from the smoke and saw the extent of the blaze and the men trying to fight it I knew it was a lost cause. I sent one of my men to the airport to book plane flights out."

Albert Bourgeois of Calgary said, "The blaze was so quick and sudden we didn't have time to get our clothes out of the trailers."

Most of the portion of the camp which escaped the fire was across a road 15 to 20 feet wide. The portion which escaped housed 500 out of the 700 camp residents, mostly oil workers.

Rainbow Lake is 400 miles northwest of Edmonton and 100 miles south of the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

SEPARATE SCHOOL AID BAN UPHELD

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—New Yorkers voted overwhelmingly Tuesday against a new state constitution that would have abolished a ban on public aid to private and parochial schools.

They solidly approved Republican Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's $2,500,000,000 transportation bond issue—biggest state bond issue in U.S. history. It promises more subways in New York City, more highways up-state and more airports everywhere.

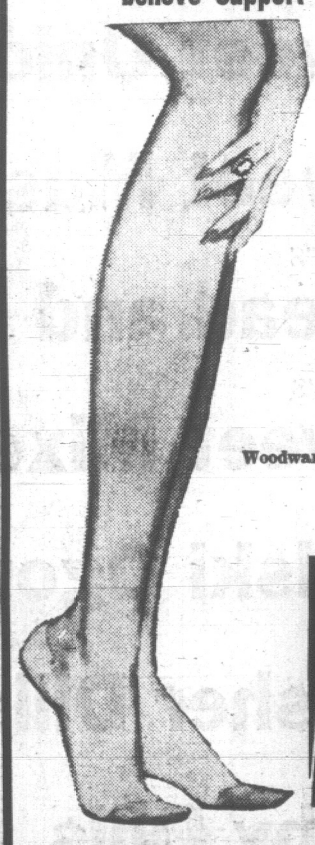

In the wake of his electoral success, Rockefeller said he would move immediately on his transport plan, which calls for an outlay of $1,250,000,000 for highways, $1,000,000,000 for subways, commuter railway and bus line improvements and $250,000,000 for airport expansion.

CLO-OOSE INDIAN READY TO LEAD SEARCH PARTY

Forget Mainland Uglies . . . We Have Our Own!

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Vancouver Island Indians are amused at recent proposals for expeditions to search for Sasquatch on the mainland.

They say, if the provincial government is really interested there are hairy monsters right here on the Island.

Joshua Edgar of Clo-oose, on the west coast of the Island, says he will accompany any search party.

But he says he won't be responsible if anyone gets hurt.

The island's collection of monsters is so varied, Indians claim, that a search party could have a choice. The Indians have long been "believers."

Here are some of the Island's wild creatures as described by elder members of Indian tribes:

Ya-ais (sometimes called Ya-hoos): hairy men. Feathers protrude from either side of their heads.

Tcinlaths: tall shaggy-haired red-skinned beings who pursue people with spears.

Matahs: a race of giants. Their women have long hair that drags on the ground.

Puquis or Pickitoos: beings with protruding eyes which look like icicles.

Indians claim pickitoos are responsible for hunters getting lost. They hypnotize them and entice them deeper and deeper into the bush until they die from exhaustion.

There are also a number of legendary birds. The most noteworthy is the Skokok which resembles a white owl and lives at high altitudes.

There is a mountain lion which walks backward and kills men with his lance-like tail.

It is interesting to note that when Indians told the famous U.S. anthropologist Philip Drucher about this animal, he thought it worthwhile to record it in his book on west coast natives.

The Indians say no time should be lost in searching for these creatures because they move away with the advance of civilization.

Rudyard Kipling in an eight-stanza poem aptly describes why this happens:

"On the Downs, in the Weald, on the Marshes,
"I have heard the old gods say:
"Here come very many people:
"We must go away.

"They take our land to delight in,
"But their delight destroys.
"They flay the turf from the sheep-walk.
"They load the Denes with noise."

FIRE HAZARD

Chemainus Bids For New Hospital

LADYSMITH — A brief outlining the need for a new hospital has been sent to the provincial government by the Chemainus Hospital Board.

The move was revealed Tuesday by Coun. John Cannon at a meeting here of the interim Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

He said copies of the brief will be sent to members of the regional board in January after it has been properly constituted following December elections.

Chemainus Hospital administrator Barney Shaw said this morning the bried has been acknowledged by the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

He said the present building, constructed in 1899, has become outmoded and a fire hazard.

"It is now not nearly big enough. We are running at over 100 per cent occupancy most of the time and have had to turn patients away."

Nov. 18 Move For Hospital

DUNCAN—Patients will move into the new Cowichan District Hospital Saturday, Nov. 18., administrator Ken Noton said Tuesday.

He said the hospital will open with 126 beds and 27 bassinets for newborns.

He said eventually there will be 187 beds with 24 more beds to be provided on the second and third floors, and another 47 when the fourth floor shell is completed.

Room charges will be $1 a day for public ward beds; $6 a day for private rooms and $3 a day for semiprivate rooms plus the $1 co-insurance charge.

Hospital visiting hours will be 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

Victoria Firm to Build Pt. Alberni Wharf

Victoria Pile Driving Company Ltd. has been awarded a $308,684 contract for a new assembly wharf at Port Alberni.

The Victoria bid was the lowest of four received. The highest was $448,783.

The existing timber trestle wharf has been damaged by marine borers and will be replaced by a 165-by-121 foot concrete assembly wharf. Half the cost of construction will be borne by the Port Alberni Harbor Commission.

Plans and specifications were prepared in the Vancouver office of the federal department of public works. Supervision will be provided by W. W. Ryan, director of the department's B.C. district.

TIMBER ROW

Laing Probes 'Cheating' Allegation

PORT ALBERNI—Indian Affairs Minister Arthur Laing will investigate charges that Ohiaht Indians are being "cheated" out of fair timber prices.

The band has had a 25-year agreement with MacMillan Bloedel which allowed the company to take timber from Ohiaht land for only $1 per 1,000 board feet.

Going rate is $7 for hemlock anad balsam and $13 for fir.

RENEWAL URGED

Despite protests by the band, the contract continued for 25 years and now it has run out. But a letter from the Indian Affairs department in Ottawa recommends that it should be renewed for another 21 years.

In addition the band has received a letter from the welfare department asking that welfare costs be kept to a minimum.

"No one in our band would need welfare. We could provide our own housing and care for all in need if we hadn't been getting cheated all these years," said a band spokesman.

Marking Chore To Be Handed Ex-Teachers

DUNCAN—More and more of the drudgery is being taken out of teaching.

Cowichan's school board Monday decided to set aside $2,800 in next year's budget for the hiring of ex-teachers to mark essays.

A further $2,000 is being allocated for the use of IBM data processing for drawing up timetables and doing other clerical chores.

And the board will give a four-month trial to the practice of paying junior high school students $1.50 an hour to work as laboratory assistants.

It all prompted chairman Dr. Neil Dorning to say: "Teachers are having a rather nice situation lately.

"I'm speaking as a taxpayer and not a trustee when I say I think we're going too far in taking the work load off the teachers."

Trustee Ernest Goddard, a retired teacher, said that as someone who had been "on the firing line" he was sure a lot of help is needed.

The use of ex-teachers to mark essays would give the teacher additional time for such things as lesson preparation.

Dr. Dorning said he is not against the hiring of markers but the board must be careful about future complications.

Trustees should decide in what direction the board is moving in regard to hiring extra personnel and look five years ahead in setting a policy.

Schools superintendent Art Jones said fundamentally the markers would be teacher-aides and their use is now established practice.

Student lab assistants are already being employed at Cowichan Senior Secondary Schools.

Halloween Mishap Claims Boy

Thirteen-year-old Marcel Dube, of Port Alberni, struck by a car while on his Halloween trick or treat rounds, died in the Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria Tuesday.

Port Alberni RCMP say the boy ran out in front of a pickup truck driven by 52-year-old Charles Cox on the Beaver Lake Road and gave the driver no chance to avoid him.

He was taken to West Coast General Hospital, then transferred to Victoria.

An inquest will open on Friday.

Comox Man Badly Hurt In Car Crash

A 22-year-old Comox man is in St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria in fair condition following an accident at Ladysmith Tuesday.

Donald Tombough was one of four occupants of a car which left the highway near Ivy Green Park, north of Ladysmith, and struck a stump after going down a 20-foot bank.

He received back injuries and numerous cuts.

Stuart North and Exter Savard, both of Ladysmith, are in Ladysmith General Hospital in satisfactory condition.

The fourth occupant, R. T. Dinham, also of Ladysmith, was treated and released.

Many Attractions for the Young At Cadboro Bay UCW Fall Bazaar

The younger set had a heyday at the Cadboro Bay United Church bazaar on Saturday, buying popcorn and soft drinks, spending their pennies at the fish pond, watching Charlie Chaplin movies, and even looking after many of the stalls themselves.

General conveners for the bazaar which raised $950 for the various groups of the congregation, were Mrs. J. R. Stone and Mrs. C. A. Pike.

Mrs. F. W. White, United Church Women president greeted the guests, and Mrs. D. W. Blackett received tickets.

Bert Andersen, Sunday school superintendent, looked after the refreshment stand and Mrs. H. M. Hunt and her Cub pack operated the fish pond.

The Canadian Girls in Training handled the jewelry and accessory bar and the Explorer girls catered to bookworms at their book and magazine shop. Ann Fielder's Sunday school class sold Christmas cards with proceeds to be given to the building fund for the new sanctuary.

As soon as the doors opened the rush was on at the home baking stall where Mrs. Donald Message and Mrs. Hugh Kelso were in charge. The delicatessen counter offered a variety of foods from the kitchens of Mrs. C. J. Jarvis and her assistants.

Mrs. Clifton Parker and Mrs. R. Scarisbrick were in chage of the candy stall, and there were lots of Christmas gift ideas displayed at the sewing and knitting stall handled by Mrs. H. M. Faryon and Mrs. C. A. Pike.

Mrs. Ralph Wills and Mrs. R. N. Young sold arrangements of paper flowers. The small paper flowers which centred the tea tables were also for sale.

A new stall that proved to be popular was the Chinese auction where items ranging from a kitchen table and chairs to original paintings were for sale. Mrs. R. G. Straith was the auctioneer.

Mrs. William A. Coombs was the convener for the white elephant stall and F. W. Whitehouse and fellow stewards looked after a stall of cut flowers and garden produce.

Mrs. W. H. Armstrong was the convener for the tea, assisted by members of the UCW, Explorers and CGIT girls. Mrs. C. Leighton Streight, wife of the minister, Mrs. Robert Massen, Mrs. C. E. Ennals and Mrs. F. W. Whitehouse presided at the tea table which was centred with a bouquet of white and yellow chrysanthemums flanked with matching candles.

Clubwomen's News

Study Program — It was arranged that the next study group of the Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild would be held on tufting when the group recently met with Mrs. R. C. Holden presiding. The last study program was on warping. Mrs. H. C. Hartshorne showed slides of a tour which she, Mrs. G. Anstey, and other weavers took in the British Isles this summer. She also showed weaving which she had brought back with her from the six-week tour. Committee reports were also submitted.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

BEAUTIFUL PRESCRIPTION

I've enjoyed reading your articles and wanted to ask your advice. A friend of mine was losing her hair and heard that cod liver oil helps. She took two capsules a day and claims she had visible results. She also credits them with keeping her cold-free all winter long. My doctor said that taking cod liver oil is harmless. But do you think it can really be helpful?

Mrs. Jane B.

Undoubtedly, when one finds a particularly beneficial product or treatment it's a great coup! The vitamins A and D in cod liver oil may have been just what your friend needed. Quite often everyone's system requires a little extra boost. I'm all in favor of natural food supplements (especially cod liver oil). As long as your doctor approves, why not give it a whirl and see what it does for you.

RULES ABOUT RINGS

Since you know a lot about manners, I'd like your opinion on wedding and engagement rings. When a couple get engaged, if the girl receives a diamond her fiance usually follows up with a matching wedding band. But suppose they want a double ring ceremony with matching gold rings? Does she get married with the gold one or the one that matches her engagement ring?

Ellen M.

Actually, the decision about rings is optional. Some girls find it convenient during the ceremony to wear their engagement ring on their right hand. This makes it easier for the groom to slip the wedding band on that third finger, left hand. Since a gold wedding band is usually less "dressy," many girls wear their diamond and matching band for the wedding and formal occasions and save the gold ring for casual wear.

OUT, OUT BROWN SPOT

Recently I have developed brown spots of varying sizes on my hands and forearms. Some of my friends call them "old-age spots" (I'm middle-aged) but my husband says they are just freckles. Who is right and what can I do to get rid of them?

Mrs. Mary P.

Both your husband and your friends are right. As one becomes older, freckles don't fade as easily as they once did. The pigmentation becomes "fixed" and they are often referred to by laymen as "old age spots." Seemingly, the sun accelerates these discolorations. The mild acid base of commercial bleach creams can be somewhat helpful (be sure to follow directions carefully); twice-daily applications of castor oil rubbed in thoroughly is frequently most effective. Do augment your diet with a generic type of vitamin which may allay this tendency.

TALKING TURTLE

Will you please write an article about turtle oil? Is is really a wonder cure for your skin?

Tina L.

If you stop to think about it, turtle oil hasn't done much to beautify the turtle. It seems that today "beautifying" oils are gathered from the ugliest of creatures — sharks, whales, minks, as well as turtles.

I don't really believe any prevent wrinkles or ageing any more "miraculously" than any others.

I do find, however, that castor oil from the lowly castor bean is most effective for lubricating the skin (many plastic surgeons agree) . . . and it's easier (and less expensive) to kill a castor bean than a turtle.

Heirloom Diamond Locket As 'Something Old' Token

An heirloom diamond locket in a heart design was the "something old" talisman for Lynne Mary Simpson when she became the bride of Donald Craigdallie in St. Mark's Anglican Church.

The jewelry accented her gown of silk shantung that was styled on A-lines featuring a bateau neckline and sleeves inset with French lace which were softly belled at the wrists.

An inverted panel swept back en train from the back neckline complementing her mantilla veil, edged in French lace. She carried a bouquet of pale yellow roses and white carnations.

Canon R. Willis officiated when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Simpson, 107 West Burnside Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Craigdallie, 3716 Harriet Road, exchanged vows. Mr. Simpson gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Judy Warren was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Ann Craigdallie, the groom's sister and Miss Patricia Wellburn. They wore identical street-length tent dresses of orange shantung featuring belled wrist-length sleeves and jewel necklines. Self-fabric bows held their short veils. As jewelry they wore gold floral brooches, gifts of the bride, and white carnations, edged with gold leaves, formed their bouquets.

Robert E. Craigdallie was best man for his brother and Gordon Richards and Ross Rockett ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Olde England Inn a three-tier wedding cake, topped with an orchid and wedding bells edged in gold, centred the head table, which was covered with a lace cloth. Dr. F. H. Sanders proposed the toast to the bride.

As her costume for travelling on honeymoon to Portland, Ore., the bride chose a mustard Irish tweed suit with a navy, mustard and green turban and navy accessories.

The newlyweds will make their home in the Regency Apartments.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Corn and Quill Unite In Ethnic Necklace

By Penny Saver

I sometimes wonder if the disapproving looks that the older generation are apt to give their heirs-apparent is not an overpowering envy for the bright, swinging lives they lead. Our affluent society gives teens the means for a real fling before they settle down to the responsibilities of carrying on the society their parents have built for them.

This freedom is better matched by the spirit and fashions of the "Roaring Twenties" that most of today's parents missed, than the depression years that were their teen-age inheritance and misunderstandings are bound to arise.

I find that shopping for my teen-age daughter is enough to bring green flashes to my baby-blue eyes. Those slender legs in their kooky stockings and brief skirts made me feel so hopelessly out of date and I must content myself with sensible skirts and the kooky-est of the kooky new accessories that my middle-age wardrobe will allow.

Just the thing to perk up a sober sheath are necklaces made of dried corn and porcupine quill. Made by Cree Indians, these "ethnic" necklaces come in blue, red, green and yellow. The longer style costs $1.75, the shorter $1.25.

I am always on the lookout for the perfect gift, and the other day I spotted just the thing for my dainty niece. The animal characters of her favorite books have been made into china figures, each marked with his name for the confused adult. Imported from England, they sell at $3.95 each, although the store warned me that a rise in cost at the factory may boost the prices on subsequent shipments. More familiar are the china children produced by a German company. These begin at $5.95.

My nephew would rather read about Hawkeye and the faithful Chingichgook than fluffy rabbits, so I bought him a sturdy birch bark canoe. The canoes come in two models. One is long and narrow, sewn at the end with three seats. It sells for $1.50. The other model is wider with boards re-inforcing the sides, three seats and upright boards at each end. This stronger version sells for $4.95.

If you would like to know where I found these items, please phone me at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"My fifth grade teacher once asked me what I wanted to be when I grew up, and after looking over adults, I decided I wanted to be a little boy."

Bazaar and Tea at Sooke Raises $350 for Church

Almost all stall items were sold and more than $350 was raised when the Ladies' Evening Guild of Knox Presbyterian Church held a bazaar and tea in the Sooke Community Hall last Friday.

Stall conveners were: Sewing, Mrs. Peter Wetsch; knitting, Mrs. Lawrie Cawsey; home baking, Mrs. John Liness; novelties, Mrs. Arthur Weberg; home produce, Mrs. J. Neuman, and Christmas cards, Mrs. Howard Garnett.

The tea was convened by Mrs. David Paterson. Bazaar convener was Mrs. Fred Chwojka.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here it is, staring us in the face — the season of sniffles! Some people have one cold right after another, others suffer through two or three a season, while a select 6 per cent of the population are cold-free all year long.

Lowman

If you will check on yourself, I believe you will discover the colds you have are often correlated with one or more of the following conditions.

1. They may follow a time when you lost a lot of sleep.

2. They may follow a time of great fatigue, from any reason.

3. They may follow a period of great emotional stress. You can literally worry yourself into a cold. Sessions of unhappiness or worry lower our resistance just as fatigue and loss of sleep do.

4. They may follow a period of overeating.

5. Many women are more susceptible to colds just before their monthly periods. Remember this and pamper yourself a little at these times with more sleep and relaxation and sensible eating.

6. Sometimes a cold develops after you have been in a house or office or store which was overheated. Some of these are unbearably hot. The perfect temperature for health is 68 to 70 degrees.

7. Don't keep your galoshes or rubbers on in the house. Heavy boots may have the same effect.

8. The clothes you wear can make a difference, too. Be sure that you are not too warmly dressed when inside and that you are adequately protected from the weather when outside.

If you have repeated colds, fall, winter and spring, see your physician. He may be able to discover some reason for this and correct it.

If you would like my leaflet "Vitamin Defense" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Silence of Theft Also a Crime

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am going to write this quickly and mail it, so I won't have a chance to reconsider and close my eyes to a wrong.

My son recently told me about some youngsters in our neighborhood who steal bikes, remove the parts, rebuild and sell both rebuilt bikes and extra parts. I asked him how these youngsters managed to get away without their parents knowing about it, and he says the kids tell their parents that the bike belongs to another boy, and they bought the spare parts with their allowances.

I am appalled at the whole thing. I can't expect my boy to reveal the names of the boys, and my husband would think it unseemly if I were to bring this to the attention of the authorities.

You are the only way I have of warning parents who unknowingly may be allowing their children to continue this practice.

I do not condone my own child's acceptance of this behavior and have asked him to avoid this group of friends until they, too, become aware of their unacceptable behavior and stop it.

CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: A boy who is old enough to "rebuild" a bike is old enough to know he is breaking the law. While your son may not be guilty of stealing, he is guilty of another "crime." (Knowing of thievery and keeping quiet.) I do not approve of friends informing on one another, but a real "friend" would do all in his power to set his companions straight.

I hope the parents of the guilty boys see this, and check about "buying" spare parts, and repairing another boy's bike. And if they discover that their sons have stolen bikes, they should insist they are returned to their rightful owners. Otherwise they should report their own sons to the authorities. Stealing is stealing. And the successful petty thief goes on to bigger things.

DEAR ABBY: You let me down when you wrote in your column that you thought it was all right for a married man to go to a "stag" party. Abby, my husband thinks your word is holy, and when he read that he really shoved it under my nose.

Surely you are aware of what goes on at stags? They always have girls doing strip-tease dances and even movies for men only that are so bad your husband won't even tell you what they were about.

MARGOT

DEAR MARGOT: Sorry about that. My definition of "stag" is simply a social engagement for men only.

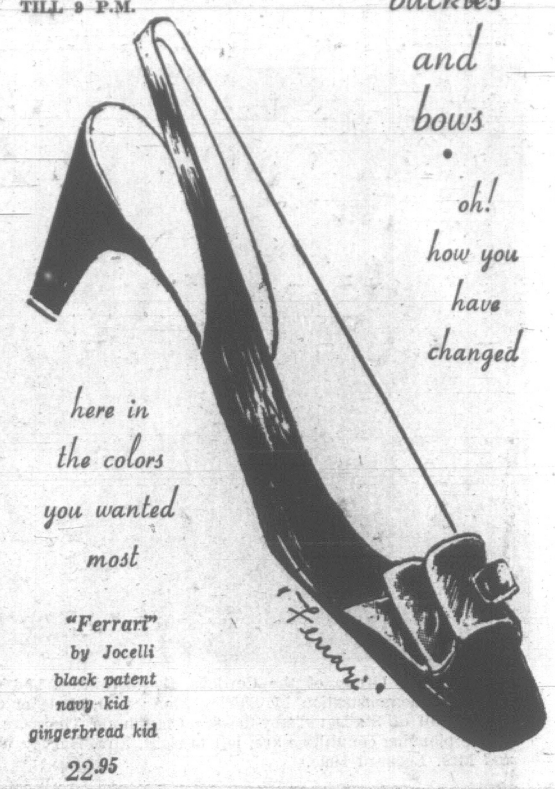

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't believe my eyes when I saw where you said it was O.K. for a married man to go to a stag. Don't you know they always have naked women there?

I always tell my husband when he goes out with the boys, if he wants to see a naked lady he should come home.

POPULATION TO DOUBLE IN 40 YEARS

167,000 More People In the World Every Day

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The world's population increased by an average of 167,000 persons a day in the year up to mid-1966 when it reached a total of 3,356,000,000 says the United Nations Demographic Yearbook to be published Sunday.

The mid-1966 total was 61,000,000 higher than at the same period a year previous and if it continues to increase at its present rate of abut 1.9 per cent it is expected the world population will have doubled by the year 2005.

The yearbook, 18th in a series issued by the statistical office of the UN since 1948, says nearly three-quarters of the earth's population lives in the so-called underdeveloped regions, with one-half the total on the Asian continent.

The global death rate during the first half of the 1960s was around 16 per 1,000 population. However, the death rate for the underdeveloped regions alone was more than double the rate of nine per 1,000 recorded for the quarter of the earth's inhabitants living in the developed areas.

The book says the birth rate averaged 40 for each 1,000 population in underdeveloped countries in the 1960-64 period compared with 21 for each 1,000 in developed countries.

Although Canada's population has since passed 20,000,000 the book lists its population as of June 1, 1966, at 19,919,000.

CANADA LOWEST

It shows Canada as having one of the lowest rates of population density on earth, the fastest-growing marriage rate and 14th among countries with the lowest infant mortality rates.

Statistics on infant mortality showed Sweden had the best rate with 13.3 deaths in the first year of life for each 1,000 live births. Canada's figure was 23.6 deaths, marking a gradual yearly decline from 31.9 in 1956.

Canada led the way in the trend toward higher marriage rates with 155,280 marriages recorded in 1966 representing the largest number ever in Canada and an increase of 6.5 per cent over figures given for 1965. There was a 3.7 rate of increase in marriages in Britain and a 3 per cent increase in the U.S.

The highest annual rate of population growth — 3.5 per cent — was in the Middle Americas, while the lowest annual rate of increase — 0.6 per cent — was found in Eastern Europe. The rate for Canada was 1.9.

Life expectancy has increased sharply in recent decades, the book says. In Canada, based on 1960-62 figures, the expectancy for males is 68.35 years, for females 74.17. The U.S. expectancy is 66.8 and 73.7, respectively.

Although on average females outlive males, in Canada males outnumber females by 10,032,600 to 9,886,400 on the basis of the 1966 figures. In almost all brackets up to age 40, the males dominate. The exception is the bracket 25 to 29 years, in which there are slightly more women.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. Your druggist will help you to obtain a supply for your personal needs.

United Front Of Indians Shows Gap

VANCOUVER (CP) — A rift has appeared in the Confederation of British Columbia Indians — formed a year ago to give Indians a united front in negotiations with the federal government.

In a telegram to Arthur Laing, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, the Native Brotherhood of B.C. Indians say that the confederation is trying to disrupt the affairs of existing Indian organizations.

"We have reason to assume the monies received by the confederation from both the federal and provincial governments have been used not only to disrupt the affairs of existing Indian organizations but also to absorb Indian organizations," said the message.

The native brotherhood and other groups wished to retain their identity, it said.

Simon Baker, a director of the confederation, hit back at the charges on Tuesday.

"We are not trying to create disunity," he declared. "The brotherhood is guilty of doing this by breaking away from the confederation."

Mr. Baker said that he and other confederation leaders would prepare a full response to the allegations.

U.S. Seeks Japanese Fishing Bar

TOKYO (AP) — The United States called Monday for the suspension of Japanese salmon and trout fishing in the Arctic Ocean north of Alaska and said dragnet fishing in the East Bering Sea is threatening fishery resources there.

The statement was made by Clarence F. Pautzke, chief of the fish and wildlife service of the U.S. interior department, in his opening address at the annual meeting of the International North Pacific Fishery Commission.

The three-nation meeting, attended by Japan, Canada and the United States, is discussing ways to protect fishery resources in the northern Pacific.

A Hoko Fishing Co. spokesman said his firm made tests in the Arctic twice since last year, using the 300-ton fishing boat Dairin Maru, and caught about 80 tons of salmon and trout in waters which, the spokesman said, was not included in the treaty zone.

Privileged Admission Protested

ABERYSTWYTH, Wales (Reuters) — Welsh students protested Sunday what they considered privileged admission terms for Prince Charles into University College in 1969.

The Welsh regional committee of the National Union of Students approved unanimously a motion "deploring the abandonment of academic ability" as the criterion for entry of the Prince of Wales, 18-year-old son of the Queen.

The resolution protested the provision of a university place for a candidate "who will not set any formal distinction of qualification."

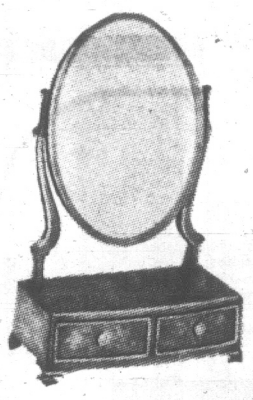

Prince Charles is studying archeology and anthropology at Cambridge. He will study history, language, and current problems for eight weeks in the summer term of 1969 at Aberystwyth in northwest Wales, stronghold of Weslh nationalism.

Pure pleasure . . .

bright, bubbly Calona Crackling Wines.

3 very superior wines to add an extra measure of pleasure to every special occasion.

You'll appreciate the champagne quality of Calona Crackling Wines... they're vinted exactly the same as champagne for extra fine flavor, life, and appearance.

Start with our suggested uses, but be sure to try all three, and then decide for yourself when you like each the best.

Crackling Rosé	A delightful medium dry, full-bodied pink wine. Particularly enjoyable with meals but suitable and proper at any time and for any occasion.
Crackling Burgundy	A lively fully dry, full-bodied red wine. Specially appreciated with roasts, steaks, game, and for special occasions. Serve well chilled.
Crackling White	A fine medium sweet, full-bodied white wine. Light and bright in the Italian Spumante tradition. An outstanding sweeter wine for entertaining. Serve well chilled.

Calona Crackling Wines are best, and most fun, when served in champagne type stemmed glasses. Store in a cool, dry place, out of direct sunlight, upright or on the side.

Why are the bubbles so fine?
The bubbles in Calona Crackling Wines are nature's own bubbles, the result of the wholly natural process by which Calona Crackling Wines are produced.

TWO MEN were injured and a third escaped injury Tuesday night when this light plane crashed on a downtown Edmonton street. 1 Death Blamed On Hospital Fire

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — An inquest has been ordered into one of two deaths that occurred Tuesday during a fire at the Hotel Dieu Hospital when 125 patients were forced to evacuate the burning building.

Coroner Stewart Patterson ordered the inquest into the death of Mrs. Stella Breen, a patient whose death was attributed to smoke poisoning.

Eight-year-old Tracy Farrelly of Kingston died during the fire of head injuries suffered when struck by a car Saturday.

Dr. Patterson said the girl's brain activity had stopped before the fire broke out and she was being given oxygen to sustain her respiratory stystem.

Mrs. Breen, who was in traction, was moved to a smoke-proof room for treatment of smoke poisoning, from which she later died.

Eric Brown, administrator of the hospital, said: "One adult patient died following evacuation, and one child during the fire, but to the best of our information, not as a result of the fire."

Firemen said the blaze involved a piece of electrical equipment in the hospital's basement storage area.

FUMES SPREAD

Fire Chief Warren Gibson said the biggest problems were acrid fumes which spread up the service shafts of the 131-bed Brock Street wing, built between 1909 and 1929. He said firefighters restricted damage to the basement.

Mr. Brown credited 80 members of the nursing, medical and administrative staffs with leading patients through corridors, down stairs or to aerial ladders.

The evacuated patients, including those in intensive care, were transferred to five other institutions in the city and area, including Kingston General Hospital, one mile away, and to Canadian Forces military hospital.

Fifty firefighters helped carry patients from the smoke-filled, five-storey wing and took some down hook-ladders placed on window sills.

PREVENT SPREADING

Firewalls kept the smoke from travelling to other wings of the hospital. Some firemen blamed the harshness of the fumes and smoke on burning X-ray film.

Orderly Albert Short, operating technician Monique French and Capt. Kenneth Cowdy of the Kingston fire department, were admitted to Kingston General Hospital for observation after collapsing from breathing smoke.

During the blaze, Dr. John Hazlett suspended surgery on Arthur G. Funnell, a hunter from Gananoque who was having shotgun pellets removed from his body. Mr. Hazlett completed the operation at Kingston General.

An inspector from the fire marshal's office will investigate the blaze.

Makes Rough Wrinkled Necks Smoother

If your throat is rough, wrinkled and old looking let me suggest you apply a delightful lotion-like substance you can get at any drug or department store. It's called 2nd Debut and it exclusively contains the Wiesbaden Discovery known scientifically as CEF 600 which carries needed moisture into and under the skin. Not only is wrinkled, loose flabby skin pushed up and made smooth again but at the same time the aging look of a crepe paper throat disappears and you look years younger fast. You can also get "2nd Debut" with CEF 1200 for double strength moisturizing action. Remember the name . . . 2nd Debut.

DRAFT BOARD CHIEF URGES RETALIATION

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Selective service director Lewis B. Hershey has told local draft boards they should strip deferments from college students who interfere with military recruiters on campus and put them at the top of the induction list.

It was learned Tuesday that Hershey made the recommendation in letters to local boards on October 26 as several hundred students at Oberlin College in Ohio were attempting to physically block recruitment activities of a navy representative in a college building.

The recruiter later was kept penned in his car for four hours until police broke up the crowd of students with tear gas.

City 'Receiving Handouts' From Progressive Gallery

By AUDREY JOHNSON

With all the talk about what Greater Victoria does and does not, and what it should or shouldn't give to its Art Gallery in the way of grants, light is currently being shone on the reverse of the coin—what the gallery gives the city.

What is emerging is a revelation that should prove quite startling to many people.

Only the most purblind could fail to see that actually it is the city that is receiving the handouts from the gallery in the form of multipole returns on its extremely small investment which annually amounts to less than $5,000.

At the moment, for example, there is a show in residence which is attracting the interest of thousands of youngsters in the area.

It is a history-making exhibit, sponsored by the National Gallery, containing pictures that are unlikely to be seen by many people again in their lifetime.

TRACES HISTORY

It traces Canadian painting for 100 years, from 1850 and it will be seen in only 12 cities from coast to coast.

The exhibition started its tour here and will remain on view until Nov. 18, at which time, estimated on current figures, and booked tours, more than 4,000 secondary school students will have visited the show to see famous pictures by some of their country's immortal painters.

On a continuing basis the Art Gallery offers children's painting classes in three 10-week sessions a year, plus two three-week summer sessions.

About 125 children enroll in each session. Fees are kept down well within the range of the most modest income groups.

Free tours for any school group on Vancouver Island are provided through the Women's Committee docent group. (Docent is museum jargon for trained guides).

SHOWS EXPLAINED

The docents have taken courses in art and are given a rundown on each show by the director or assistant curator of the gallery.

Schools are also allowed to take out memberships in the gallery at the nominal figure of $2 a year so that their classes can take advantage of the Women's Committee picture rental service.

This service has a library of 150 paintings by artists from all over Canada. It is open only to gallery members.

Apart from its special children's programs and services to the schools, Victoria Art Gallery provides 30 exhibits a year as well as lectures and low rent accommodation for other organizations.

It is open without admission charge all day on Sundays.

It has amassed as heritage for citizens of British Columbia's capital city, a permanent art collection worth close to three-quarters of a million dollars.

Having practically no purchase fund at all, this collection has been established through gifts and bequests, most of which have been made in recognition of the excellent direction the gallery has always enjoyed.

The Victoria gallery stands third in the nation in terms of yearly acquisitions—second to none in gifts and bequests.

For every dollar obtained from municipal sources the gallery receives $3.50 from Federal and Provincial treasuries.

Do the people of Victoria want and value their Art Gallery?

The fact that, on a per capita basis this gallery has the best attendance record in Canada—a total of 45,000 a year—says emphatically that they do.

All in all it adds up to quite a bargain at $3,947, net proceeds to the gallery from the Victoria Intermunicipal grant of $8,000.

The rest goes back to the city in taxes.

CANADA BUYS GUNS FROM ITALY

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has signed a $5,640,000 contract with an Italian company for the purchase of naval guns, and training aids for use in the naval destroyer program, defence production department announced Tuesday.

A department spokesman said the contract was signed "in the last couple of weeks," and first delivery is scheduled for August, 1970.

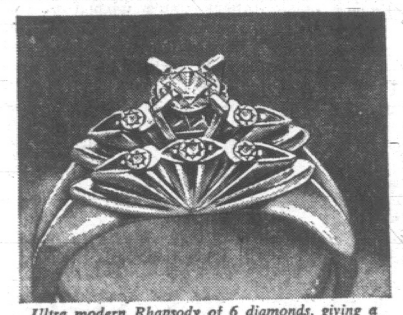

He said the contract was signed with Otomelra Co. of Alaspezia, Italy, but few details of the transaction were available.

Enlargement Of Heart Can Be Good

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Alvarez

Probably, a few hundred people a year ask me about an enlarged heart—is it terribly dangerous, is it going to kill them, what produced it, and what can be done in the way of treatment? Often all I can say is some enlargement of the heart can often be good, because it enables the heart to go on working for years against perhaps a great big high blood pressure, or the strain of leakage back through a heart valve.

Even if I could examine the patient and look at the electrocardiogram and listen to the valve sounds, and get a history of what the patient can do in the way of exercise, I might still be unable to guess how long the person would live. Many of the persons who are in a hospital bed after a bad heart attack get up and go back to work.

Usually, the best test of a heart's soundness is what it can do comfortably in the way of exercise. I always ask a man who comes into my office thinking he had heart disease, "Did you hurry several blocks up the street to get in here to see me?" If he and his wife agree that he walked rapidly and did not get abnormally short of breath, and did not get pain in his chest, he has a heart that may serve him well for the next 20 years.

★ ★ ★

A man writes to say that on waking during the night he loves to stretch his legs, but that brings such severe cramps that he has to jump out of bed and walk around. Obviously, the man should try to train himself never to stretch. It helps greatly to take a glass of milk each day for luncheon; the calcium in the milk tends to cut down on the irritability of the muscles. If a person cannot tolerate milk, a good medicine is a capsule of calcium gluconate, or of quinine taken at bedtime.

★ ★ ★

A man with all of his excess fat in his abdomen—dragging it down—wonders if he could have the fat cut off. I have heard of this being done, but surgeons tell me they prefer not to attempt the operation because the wound is so enormous that if it were to get infected, the man might die. The man who wrote me might talk the problem over with a highly experienced and wise surgeon, and see what he thinks.

Meeting Called In Metchosin On Shooting Ban

Metchosin ratepayers will meet Nov. 16 to try and settle the question of a shooting ban imposed in the area.

When residents complained recently of a number of shooting mishaps, a ban was imposed in the Witty's Lagoon area and from Wooton road to Latoria.

Some residents feel that only the Witty's Lagoon area should come unter the ban, others want the area extended.

Recently ratepayers voted for a ban in the lagoon area but there are objections about the extension of the ban to other parts of Metchosin.

Speakers from the department of recreation will attend the meeting and another vote will be taken.

Ask Andy

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Patti Rhyne, age nine, of Dallas, North Carolina, for her question:

Where is the native home of the panda bear?

A few giant pandas and many little lesser pandas enjoy comfortable lives on our zoos. We would have to travel far and climb high to find them in their native homes. The Chinese call the six-foot giant panda Beishung—the white bear. But pandas are not really members of the bear family.

The giant panda lives in out-of-the-way places, almost at the top of the world. The people of eastern Tibet and Southwestern China have known about him for ages. But 100 years ago he was almost unknown to the rest of the world. His native home is high on the slopes of the towering Himalayas. The frosty white crowns of these mountains are the highest peaks in the whole world. And the panda lives on the lower slopes covered with dense forests of tall bamboo. Where the bamboo ends, the ground is a patchwork of snowy pockets and jutting rocks. These higher slopes climb up and up to the eternal glaciers on the lofty peaks.

The panda's favorite food is bamboo and more bamboo. He has a set of mighty grinding teeth and strong jaws to chew the leaves and even the tough stalks. He tends to doze all day. At night he often crunches and munches for 10 long hours to get the food his huge body needs. As he wanders along his favorite trails, he makes tunnels through the tall stiff stalks and leafy foliage.

Looks Like a Bear

It is almost impossible to spot the big, shy fellow in his dark tunnel trails. Sometimes he takes a stroll on the rising ground above the dense bamboo. You would think that the six-foot tall, 200-pound giant could be spotted easily out in the open. Not at all. In the zoo, his shaggy eye-catching black-and-white jacket makes him look like a pinto painted bear. But on the high open ground his patches match and blend together with the shadowy rocks and sunlit snow.

His shaggy coat is basically white with long black hose and a wide black collar. His cheerul white face is topped with two round black ears. Each eye peers from a blob of black fur and there is an inky dab on the end of his stubby nose. His stubby tail, too small to mention, happens to be white. The giant panda looks like a bear in a clownish costume. But he is not related to the bear family. He is a cousin of the fluffy, cat-sized lesser panda who also lives in Asia. The pandas of Asia have several American cousins.

The long-nosed coati and the cute kinkajou are members of the panda family. And so is our clever raccoon.

The giant panda looks and also acts like a bear. The flat-footed fellow lumbers along on the soles of his feet and uses his front paws to handle his food. Sometimes he piles food on his furry tummy and enjoys a lazy meal flat on his back. Like the bear, he is full of clever tricks and clownish pranks. And like the bear, Mr. Panda tends to become a rather crusty character as he grows older. But experts class him in the animal family Procyonidae and bears belong in the family Ursidae.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Dan Cabana, age seven, of San Diego, California, for his question:

Is it true that the earth is heavier than the moon?

This is quite true and what's more it is true in two ways. First, the earth is made of heavier materials than the moon. Second, the earth is a lot bigger than the moon. You would expect a big freight car full of heavy coal to be much heavier than a smallish truck full of light feathers. So you would expect the earth to be heavier than the smaller, lighter moon. And so it is. Naturally, of course, you now want to know what the exact difference is. Experts cannot figure this out to the exact ton. But they can give us some very close figures.

They tell us that the moon weighs about 81 billion billion tons. This astronomical figure is 81 with a tail of 18 zeros. We cannot, of course, weigh the earth or even the moon on a pair of scales. If we could, we would need 82 moons to balance the weight of the earth. The moon's round globe weighs about 3½ times more than a ball of water of the same size. The earth weighs 5½ times more than an earth-sized ball of water. And though the earth is almost four times wider than the moon, if its big glove were hollow, 50 moon-sized globes could be stuffed inside it.

'INFLAMMABLE' ARTICLES

Abortion Hearing Witnesses Scored

OTTAWA (CP)—A Commons committee meeting studying bills proposing widening of abortion law turned into a two-hour argument Tuesday as the committee heard three witnesses who opposed broadening the law.

At one point in the give and take of opinion, Dr. Lewis Brand (PC—Saskatoon) tongue-lashed the witnesses for using "highly inflammable articles" to support their case.

The witnesses represented the Emergency Organization for the Defence of Urban Children of Toronto, and its local affiliate, the Ottaws Committee for the Defence of Unborn Children.

Presenting briefs were Mrs. Olive Heron, a Scarborough, Ont., mother of five and president of the organization; Mrs. Mary Cooper, mother of six and chairman of the Ottawa group; and her husband, Philip Cooper, government information officer. Mrs. Heron said the organization has 200-250 members in six cities.

Mr. Cooper termed abortion "the unwarranted destruction of human life."

The delegation said abortion was a "logically defensible proposition" only if it can be shown that to allow a pregnancy to continue presents a direct threat to the mother's life.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) took exception to references in briefs submitted by the witnesses earlier suggesting a link between those favoring broader abortion laws and the views of Hitler. He asked the witnesses to withdraw the allegation. They declined. Mrs. Heron's brief contains the paragraph:

"A little over 20 years ago our country was engaged in a war against a mass murderer called Hitler. Among other things, this madman was in favor of abortion. . . . Today we are being asked to be allowed to get rid of unwatned Canadian babies on a voluntary basis . . . What we have to guard against is adopting the moral standards of a maniac."

Dr. Brand accused the witnesses of indicting the medical profession. Mr. Cooper said no blanket indictment was intended but no profession was made up entirely of "white sheep."

Dr. Brand objected to a "facts sheet" put out by the group referring to fetuses crying after being aborted.

Student Receives Smaller Fine, Added Suspension

Mark Stone, 18, of 1317 Hillside Tuesday was fined $200 and had his licence suspended for six months for impaired driving.

Stone was arrested by police after his car was involved in an accident Oct. 25.

Magistrate Ostler said: "I am reducing the fine and extending the period of suspension because the accused is a student.

"I want to arrange it so that he pays the fine himself."

Court was told Stone intended to sell his car to pay the fine. The magistrate gave him two months to pay.

CAMPAIGN to raise $110,000 a year to pay for a Canadian television program promoting "Quebec's independence" was announced today by Gilles Gregorie, Independent member of the Commons. He said the amount would pay for half an hour a week on 10 privately owned Quebec stations. The fund will be raised mainly by word of mouth and personal contacts with bankers and industrialists.

Holiday Hours

The Senior Citizens' Activity Centre at Centennial Square will be open on Monday, Nov. 13, between 1 and 4 p.m. instead of the usual hours 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Monday is being observed by the centre as a holiday, as well as Nov. 11 — Remembrance Day.

Senior citizens interested in a special four-day tour to San Francisco in February are also asked to contact the reservations.

The tour is not sponsored by the centre but is available to members.

Esquimalt branch of the Silver Threads Service will be open Saturday but closed Monday for Remembrance Day observance.

BY 4,000,000 MILES

Planet to Miss Earth

LONDON (AP)—The minor planet Icarus approaches earth next June 15 on what scientists once feared would be a collision course.

But the British government said Tuesday it will be a miss by 4,000,000 miles.

"No collision, nor any near approach in any but the astronomical sense will occur," said a spokesman for Britain's Sicence Research Council.

The council said it is indebted for this information to the Institute of Theoretical Astronomy in Leningrad—recognized international centre for the collection of information about minor planets.

One British scientist, Ian McIntyre, has calculated that if Icarus, one mile across, struck the earth the impact would be the equivalent of letting off 100 megatons of TNT, or many hydrogen bombs.

He said the effects would be many times worse than the biggest known explosion—that of the volcano Krakatoa in 1884 which set off worldwide tidal waves and drowned 36,000 people in the Dutch East Indies.

Another scientist worked out that on the figures quoted, the odds against a direct hit must be about one million to one.

Ignition Alarm System: a buzzing reminder not to forget your ignition key when you leave your car.

This is one of many, many examples of General Motors advanced thinking that you'll find incorporated in every Chevrolet for '68. A good idea to make your driving a little more carefree.

Forget your key in the ignition? Not a chance with Chevrolet's

Ignition Alarm System. When you turn the ignition off and open the front door, you'll hear a firm, but gentle buzzing if you've left the key in the ignition. Take the key out, the buzzing stops. Convenient for car owners. Very inconvenient for car thieves.

Chevrolet for '68 has gone all-out to come up with quality features for convenient, safer, more carefree motoring. Two examples of many: Hide-A-Way windshield wipers with an articulating left arm that sweeps a greater windshield area for clearer vision. Astro Ventilation (standard on Caprice Coupe) circulates fresh air with the windows closed, eliminating ventipanes.

Prove it to yourself. Your Chevrolet dealer can offer you the best deal with his unbeatable combination of low price and unmatched Chevrolet value.

There will be some soul-searching in some trade unions if Victoria Machinery Depot's Harold Husband's dream comes true. He suggested Victoria yards should go after sub-contracts from the busy Pacific Northwest states.

Much of this production is war production for Vietnam however. And many trade unionists, along with other Canadians, are highly critical of the present participation of Canada in supplying U.S. war needs.

So far the concern is largely under the surface. But there are murmurs and doubts about which comes first, principles or jobs?

Funny thing about Halloween. Firecrackers are now against the law. But you could hear them exploding all over Greater Victoria.

It's no mystery to our staffer Al White however. He toured city stores last week asking for firecrackers. Sure enough he found a corner store where the clerk reached under the counter and came up with a parcel wrapped in plain brown paper. For $2 you can still get a bang out of Halloween.

Not everyone who writes a book mentioning Victoria describes it as a sleepy city. Retired RCMP commissioner C. W. Harvison notes in his book The Horsemen, that he was glad to be sent here because he'd heard Victoria was staid. But he lived to discover that keeping pace with the local social set required an iron constitution. One way or another, the police seem to get to all the good parties.

A couple of explorers important to British Columbia history have been honored on new Spanish postage stamps.

One is Don Juan Francisco de la Bodega y Quadra after whom Quadra Street and Quadra Island were named. The other is Don Cayetano Valdes, whose name was given to Valdes Island. Another stamp gives a view of the Nootka settlement which the Spaniards gave up after Capt. George Vancouver rattled his sword.

The stamps were issued to honor Canada's centenary and the centenary of the purchase of Alaska from the Russians by the U.S.

Service station operator Haldor E. Beebe is protesting the "gimmicks, games and giveaways" launched by the major oil companies to promote gas sales. He has mailed a rhyming denunciation of the various contests to the oil companies involved, the press and 500 local residents. He says the contests don't increase sales sufficiently to pay their cost. Each of 600 service station operators in B.C. is out of pocket $200 through enforced participation he claims.

For ourselves, if any gasoline company really wants to attract our business, the gimmick we love is a price cut.

More than 350 members of 4-H Clubs between here and Ladysmith chipped in to provide retirements gifts for Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes. They settled on a clock and a brooch. Presentation was to have been made at a 4-H reception at Government House recently. But no one notified B.C. 4-H supervisor Wayne Wickens. The breathless kids were disappointed.

To those who went home wondering, Roundabout can report the presentation was made later, privately, and the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes were happily surprised.

Can anyone help Roundabout find the owner of a faded silver medal found recently in Beacon Hill Park?

It bears the inscription: "Presented to DVR Robert Bigsby, R.F.A. Scotswood Own, for services rendered in the Great War, 1914-1919."

Finder was Michelle Glover, 10, of 4040 Haro Road (477-4726).

Recently we drew attention to renovations to the Welcome To Victoria sign on the Causeway. We mentioned that originally the sign was cared for by the Chamber of Commerce. We have since been corrected, several times. The original project was undertaken by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce. We're sorry we slipped. Okay juniors?

The use of Uvic students as Red Feather-Red Cross canvassers has its risks. Disenchantment with the older generation — the force that creates Hippies they say — often results. Two students we know were appalled by the man who came out of a $30,000 house to drive away in a $7,000 car.

"I'm retired. We're not interested," he said.

The excuses other adults dug up for not giving also amazed the students. But finally they met an elderly man in a poor house who dug out a treasured $2 bill, printed in 1937. It was the only one he had so he parted with it. His action assured the youngsters that generosity (and miserliness) appear in all age groups.

CAPTURED three years ago by the Viet Cong, Gustav Hertz, a senior U.S. aid adviser in Vietnam, died last month of malaria while still in Communist hands. Word of his death was relayed by Cambodian chief of state Norodom Sihanouk in a letter to Hertz's wife who resides in Leesburg, Va.

Ultimatum Protested In Lumber Strike

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Officials of International Woodworkers of America have labelled an ultimatum issued Monday by the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association as an attempt to "break down the morale of the strikers."

The ultimatum told workers affected by the current wage dispute that unless an agreement was reached by Wednesday next week, the employers will not pay a retroactive 20-cent-an-hour increase. the wage increase will only be paid from the date a settlement is concluded, said the NILA.

Uvic Editors Will Attend C.U.P. Seminar

Two students from the University of Victoria will fly to Winnipeg Thursday to attend the western regional conference of the Canadian University Press.

They are Deryk Thompson, editor of the campus paper, the Martlet, and sports editor Steve Hume.

Much of the conference, which runs from Friday through Sunday, will be spent in workshops and seminars on every aspect of newspaper work (e.g. layout, writing, editing, advertising and photography).

Representative from campus papers from Vancouver to Winnipeg will also be attending the annual affair.

C.U.P. is the national student newspaper organization to which practically all campuses across the country belong. Three to four times a week (depending on the size of the paper) it sends out packages of stories to member papers in order to keep them up to date on what is hapening across the country.

Senior Chamber Gets Hand-Out

The Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee turned the cold shoulder on four out of five bids for money Tuesday.

Only the Chamber of Commerce was successful in pressing its bid for a hand-out and that because the $384 requested was already in the budget.

The chamber asked that the money be transferred from the old industrial committee fund to the newly established commission under chamber direction.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce asked the committee for $650 to provide "light refreshments" during the national Jaycee convention next June.

Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox said he could see no justification for taxpayers picking up the light refreshment tab for people who were actually on holiday.

"These conventions are really a kind of holiday for these people," he said. "They have no official or public capacity and I don't see why we should pick up the tab for their light refreshments."

Mayor Hugh Stephen suggested that the Jaycees deserved some support for their aggressive public spirit but Reeve Cox could not be persuaded.

"What if the senior chamber was holding a national convention here?" asked the mayor.

"I would feel exactly the same way," answered Reeve Cox.

The Jaycee request, along with requests from the Canadian Highway Safety Council, the Community Planning Association and the Victoria Basketball Commission, were tabled for a final decision.

Negro Students Rebel

MADISON, Ill. (UPI) — Madison High School was shut down without warning Tuesday in a dispute that began when Negro footballers boycotted practice because the team has only one colored cheerleader. Some of the school's 750 students arrived at school Tuesday morning to be told that classes were not being held. Even teachers were surprised at the sudden decision.

YOUTH TO BE PRAISED

Next week will be observed throughout British Columbia as Youth Apprecaition Week, the provincial cabinet announced.

The order stated that "the vast majority of the young people of this province, in their efforts to become sound mature citizens, are making tremendous contributions to the cultural, spiritual and social life of their communities, and are worthy of praise and commendation".

FROZEN FOOD CONTROL SOUGHT BY CONSUMERS

OTTAWA (CP)—The Consumers' Association of Canada wants all frozen food products stamped with the date of freezing as a protective measure for consumers.

The CAC said the action is necessary because there is no indication to the consumer of how much "freezer life" remains in frozen food at the time of purchase.

The CAC also wants a chemical indicaotr on each frozen-food package to show if the item had been thawed at any stage between manufacturers and retailer.

The association said in a statement Tuesday its request has been forwarded to the Canadian Food Processors Association and the Canadian Grocery Distributors Institute.

World Peace Cause 'Requires Equality'

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly adopted unanimously Tuesday a declaration for elimination of discrimination against women. It says full development of nations, the world's general welfare and the cause of peace require full equality of both sexes everywhere.

The resolution, unanimously approved Oct. 16 by the assembly's social, humanitarian and cultural committee, calls for all nations to take "all appropriate measures" to abolish any law or custom that now discriminates against women.

It also calls on nations to educate public opinion "and direct national aspirations" toward elimination of prejudice and any practices "based on the idea of the inferiority of women."

The declaration provides that "the principle of equality of rights shall be embodied in the constitution or otherwise guaranteed by law" in each nation, and that international instruments of the United Nations relating to discrimination against women shall be "ratified or acceded to and fully implemented as soon as possible."

Among the rights covered by the declaration are the right to vote in all elections, to hold public office and to have equal access to educational and employment opportunities.

NO BITTERNESS

Japanese Repay A Favor

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

In a full page article in this newspaper, last Saturday night, Pete Loudon wrote in depth of the injustices and chicaneries that followed evacuation of Japanese from the Pacific Coast during the war hysteria of 1942.

He told of land deals and fish boat sales that were anything but fair. He spoke of equipment that disappeared, farms that deteriorated.

He wrote of relocation grants ($120 per couple and $45 a single person) to get the already displaced Japanese to spread across Canada. And he gave a round number of 13,000 who did make new homes in other parts of the country from Alberta right through to the province of Quebec.

What Pete did not say is that the majority of those evacuees, in their quiet, patient way, made good in these new locations.

Many of the old ones are gone now. But the younger men and women — those who were youngsters when their families were dispossessed and evacuated — have married, borne children, made friends and have become responsible citizens in the cities, towns and communities they now call home.

★ ★ ★

Friendships were made as far back as the first day they arrived in those various localities — tired, bemused and more than a little frightened. People who sincerely sympathized with them rallied to help and continued to help because they like the Japanese.

When I was visiting in Hamilton, Ontario, in 1964, I heard a story that, in turn, shows how the Japanese who settled in and near that city, valued the friendships they made in those first confusing days.

That spring it was exactly 20 years from the time they arrived with little but the clothes they wore and the small bundles in their hands.

In those years, with the help of fair-minded friends, the older ones had been settled on farms and in small businesses.

Younger ones had gone to school (some to universities) and they were then making places for themselves in the life of the city.

It was time, the old ones said, to show appreciation to those who had been kind in the beginning and had helped them to become self-supporting citizens again.

So a huge banquet was planned. In the best auditorium in Hamilton. The finest Japanese foods were prepared. Printed invitations were sent out.

When the night arrived the auditorium was filled to capacity with Japanese men, women and children and their guests, all of whom were people who had befriended them when they first arrived.

It was an emotion-packed event. Tears flowed as the old ones spoke of those first days an expressed thanks of all the Japanese present to their guests. There were smiles too, and laughter, as the children came forward with gifts for these friends, made by the best craftsmen in Japan and imported specially for the occasion.

★ ★ ★

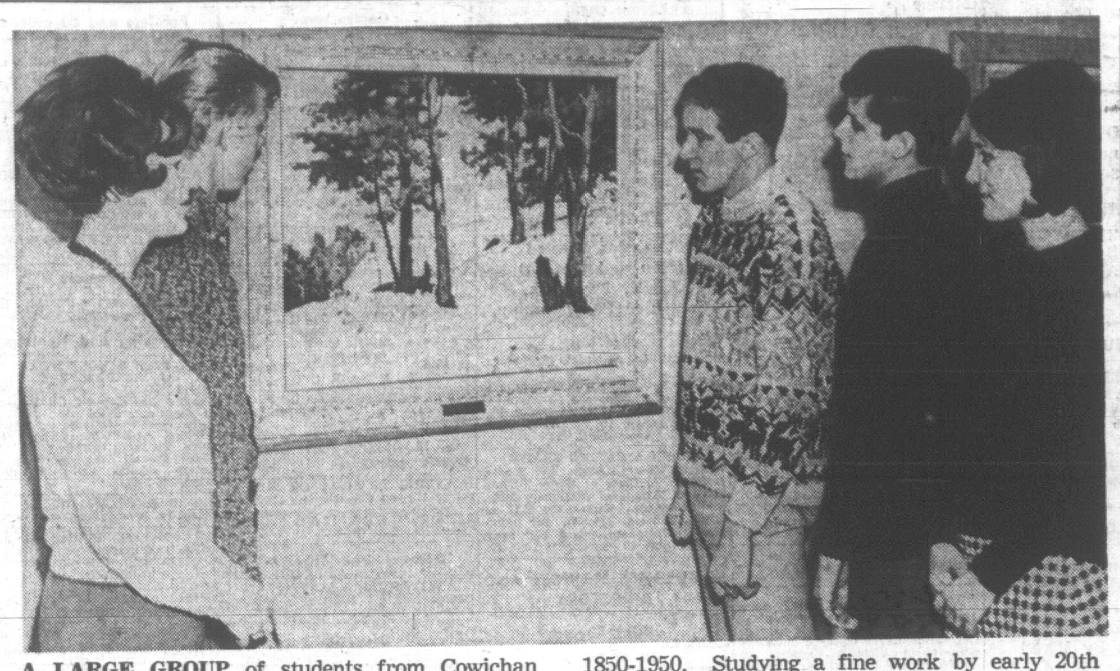

One other story that I would like to share with you, shows that although cities and towns in which they live have now been accepted as home, younger Japanese men and women do not forget their Pacific Coast birthplaces.

I know of a Japanese man (and no doubt there are others) who returned to Victoria with his wife and children, this past summer, to find the place where he was born and to see again where he started school.

There was no bitterness in his heart. He was proud of Victoria because it was his birthplace. And he spoke of people here who had been friends of his parents a quarter century ago.

He spent a morning at the school where he first said his ABCs. He got in touch with teachers he remembered. His camera worked overtime and he took away with him pictures to show others who were born and went to school here.

His home is in Toronto now, where his parents and a number of other Victoria Japanese settled. They have all done well, he said, in various types of work. Some have their own businesses. Others hold good positions. Many of the younger ones completed university educations.

Russia Will Honor 12-Mile Fish Zone

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — No trouble is expected from Russia if Canada proclaims an exclusive 12-mile fishing zone on the West Coast based on a line drawn from headland to headland, informed sources say.

Officials decline to say at this point whether Canada intends to declare the waters between the Queen Charlotte Islands and the British Columbia mainland—Hecate Strait, Dixon Entrance and Queen Charlotte Sound—as exclusive Canadian fishing territory.

But if she does, Russia is expected to make it at most a token protest.

The main reason is that Russia has declared a 12-mile territorial sea—Canada claims no more than three miles—and consequently 12-mile fishing zone.

Russia has enclosed the entire White Sea, its main port on that sea is Archangel, as territorial sea.

The Soviet Union recognizes that it has no historic fishing rights off Canada's coasts. Since 1962, two years before Canada declared its intention to proclaim a 12-mile fishing zone, Russia has respected Canada's request that its trawlers not fish the Bay of Fundy.

Canada has already proclaimed a 12-mile fishing zone on the headland-to-headland principle along the Labrador coast and the east and south shores of Newfoundland.

Negotiations are continuing with eight countries—the U.S., Britain, Norway, Denmark, France, Portugal, Spain and Italy—on proclamations covering the rest of Canada's coastline.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons fuli a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Union Raises $13,000 for Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP) — A fishermen's union spokesman said Tuesday night that $13,000 has been raised to aid the fight against a contempt of court conviction of three union officers earlier this year.

Jack Nichol, business agent for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, made the remark during an address to the Vancouver Labor Council.

He asked all unions for financial support.

Mr. Nichol Tuesday won an appeal against his conviction in a 2-to-1 decision by the B.C. Appeal Court, but two other union officers, President Steve Stavenes and secretary Homer Stevens, lost their appeals.

Fishermen's lawyer John Stanton said there will be an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Nichol said lawyers' fees already have amounted to $20,000 and much money is going to be needed to take the appeals to the higher court.

In addition, the union was fined $25,000 following the dispute last March in the Prince Rupert fishing strike. Subsequent comments in bulletins and a union membership vote on whether the injunction should be obeyed led to the contempt convictions.

The three men were each sentenced to one year in jail.

Stavenes and Stevens, who had been free on bail with Mr. Nichol, were returned to custody Tuesday pending a new bail application. Although they lost their appeal against conviction, an appeal against sentence is still to be heard.

Islanders To Attend 4-H Talks

A group of 14 4-H young farm delegates from all parts of British Columbia, four from Vancouver Island, leave Victoria this evening to attend a week-long national 4-H conference in Ottawa and Toronto, starting on Nov. 8.

The members were selected for the trip for all-round achievement at provincial 4-H competitions held at Vernon this summer.

Two of the delegates are from Saanich—June Simmonds, 4313 Blenkinsop Road, a member of the Saanich 4-H Home Arts Club, and Gordon Michell, 2598 Island View, Road, of the Saanich Peninsual 4-H Beef Club.

Other Island delegates are Kathryn Allison of Ladysmith, and Edgar Smith of Comox.

The group assembled here today and were scheduled to meet Agriculture Minister Frank Richter before proceeding on a tour of Victoria.

The were received by Lieutenant - Governor G. R. Pearkes at Government House this morning and later were to visit HMC Dockyard.

A banquet at 5 p.m. will be held at the Dominion Hotel before leaving for Ottawa.

The party will be accompanied by Cathy Day, extension home economist, and Ted Cornwall, district agriculturist at Kamloops.

The conference ends on Nov. 15.

TOYOTA COROLLA
"THE CLEANEST ECONOMY CAR EVER TO COME FROM THE OTHER SIDE OF ANY OCEAN!!"
Who wants an economy car that won't get out of its own way and is left behind on hills? The TOYOTA COROLLA has more power, a higher top speed and better acceleration than any other car in the 1100 cc class. And it still gets better than 40 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Danny Thomas continues to provide one of the most entertaining hours on television whenever he goes back to "The Wonderful World of Burlesque."

Stephen

He took that trip Monday via CBC-TV with top banana Phil Silvers, Nanette Fabray, Cyd Charisse and Tennessee Ernie Ford.

The show was a lively affair which featured outrageously funny skits, enough music to fill between periods and leggy girls, the bald-pated front-row thriller kind.

The sour note of the hour was, unfortunately, Tennesee Ernie Ford. The man is a very humerous type when he goes into his pea-pickin' accent and routine. He also sings light songs with fine voice and flair.

Something like "16 Tons" comes across like gangbusters. But when he attempted to render the Torreador Song from Carmen, it was downright embarrassing.

Still Thomas qualified Ford and his song by explaining that in the old days of burlesque if a member of the east wanted to do something heavier he was allowed to go ahead.

Anything for a laugh, I guess.

NBC-TV's Today show spent two hours trying to explain the Russian Revolution Tuesday. Before the conversation, sprinkled generously with commercials which only broke the train of thought, viewers were shown some of the clearest Early Bird satellite TV shots ever seen of the actual parade in Moscow's Red Square.

TID BITS: A test film for a possible half-hour comedy series that would be the first weekly network show with a Negress as star will go into production next month at NBC-TV. Diahann Carroll will portray a registered nurse who is a widow with a six-year-old son.

CBS-TV will broadcast games of the National Professional Soccer League again next season ... If you're a success in professional sports, show biz's doors open wide. The "fearsome foursome" linemen of the Los Angeles Rams will sing and fun with Milton Berle on ABC-TV's Hollywood Palace Nov. 28. St. Louis Cardinal World Series star Bob Gibson will appear in a Gentle Ben episode. He'll teach Clint Howard how to pitch.

WERNER KLEMPERER, Commander Klink of Hogan's Heroes, has been cancelled as Grand Marshall of Portland, Oregon's Thanksgiving Day fairy tale parade. The parade committee received a rash of protests from indignant residents of the city. Former POW's felt such camps were no laughing matter and such Nazi characters as Klemperer's role are too leniently depicted on television.

THREE BEDROOMS
OWNER MOVING TO MAINLAND

This is undoubtedly the best buy in OAK BAY. Where else can you find a sparkling modern home set amidst tall oak trees on a very easily maintained lot situated on a street where the only sound is the wind whispering through the trees? Think of these FEATURES: three bedrooms, oak floors throughout, separate entrance hall, separate dining room, and large utility room. Furthermore, there are only a few front steps, and the parks, buses, schools, and shops are all very close. Priced at only $18,500 this home is a pleasure to show. For an appointment to view call IAN A. BOORMAN at 386-7521 anytime.

SUPERB VIEWS!

Built to special architectural standards a couple of years ago to suit a very discriminating owner and a challenging view location. Probably no Victoria home enjoys a more exciting location and is so exciting in design and decor.
To say there are four bedrooms, three separate sundecks, de luxe bathrooms, a complete intercom system, a groovy family room with fireplace and breakfast bar, a 24' living room with 20-ft. of view-orientated glass, corion and Propcil carpeting, dark oak flooring, another semi-finished recreation or bedroom, floor-to-ceiling drapes included, range and oven, is only to meagerly describe what may well be YOUR dream home.

Postmen Defy Union Order To End Strike

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Postal employees in St. Catharines, Hamilton and Welland today defied a direct union order to return to work and remained off the job to continue a dispute that began Tuesday.

There were indications the wildcat strike in the Niagara Peninsula might spread. Kingston postal workers said they supported the strikers, and in Toronto the executive of Local 1 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada warned its members to be prepared to support the strikers.

"The fire is there if we want to stoke it," said the local's president, Alex Brown.

In the affected area—Burlington, Stoney Creek, Hamilton, Grimsby, Welland and St. Catharines—470 workers remained off the job. The only services available were the purchase of stamps and deposit of mail. Some persons expecting important letters were allowed to search for them among unsorted mail in post offices.

Gail Dean, president of the St. Catharines local, warned Tuesday night that his members would defy an order by their national leaders in Ottawa to return to work.

"We are not going back to work. We are going to stay out until this man has won his case."

The man in question is Robert Embury, secretary of the St. Catharines local. He was suspended Monday for allegedly holding up mail delivery to help another postman with a heavy load.

OVERLOADS BAG

Mailmen are not allowed to carry more than 35 pounds and union officials called their members out in sympathy for Mr. Embury.

The national council of postal unions, made up of the LCUC and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, sent a telegram from Ottawa to the striking locals calling for a return to work pending negotiation.

But the St. Catharines local has told postal department officials its members will not return until Mr. Embury is back at work, Mr. Dean said. Other local officials went to Toronto to plead their case with provincial officials.

In St. Catharines, Postmaster Thomas Garriock said he has received no communication from the union since the strike started and Mr. Embury has not followed regular grievance procedure to appeal his suspension.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote, during a question period in the Commons, said his department cannot promise that Mr. Embury will not be dismissed.

Plaza Accident Costs Man $75

A man was fined a total of $75 in magistrate's court Tuesday as a result of an accident in the Town and Country shopping plaza Sept. 17.

A man was fined a total of $75 in magistrate's court Tuesday as a result of an accident in the Town and Country shopping plaza Sept. 17.

Christopher Reid, CFB Esquimalt, was the driver of a car which struck a parked car and a lamp standard.

He was fined $50 for careless driving, $15 for being a minor with no insureance, and $10 for failing to register a transfer of his vehicle.

Also fined Tuesday for careless driving were Gregory Manning, 135 Wellington, involved in an accident in the 1400 block Fairfield Oct. 10, $35, and Norman Urquhart, 418 B Craigflower, whose car struck a power pole on Craigflower Sept. 23, $40.

Orange Tinge Below Shoulder Marks a Phoney

Phoney ten dollar bills are still turning up in the city.

City police report a total of 22 fake tens have been turned in since September.

Most of the bills were passed in small stores. Recent ones have come to police from banks and it is not known where they were passed.

They run with four serial numbers: P over T 8731428, O over T 6932311, R over D 7114548, and P over T 2436510.

The fakes are on lighter paper than genuine notes, and have a definite orange tinge just below the Queen's left shoulder.

Remembrance Ceremony Slated For Buildings

A Remembrance Day ceremony will be held in the rotunda of the Legislative Buildings Friday at 4:30 p.m. to honor civil servants who died during war service.

Relatives of civil servants who lost their lives are invited.

The service will be conducted by Rev. Samueal Parsons, D.D., president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches. Three verses of the hymn, Abide With Me, will be sung and one minute's silence will be observed. A piper will play the Flowers of the Forest, and a bugler will sound the Last Post.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston will place a wreath at the base of the war memorial plaque in the rotunda after which the bugler will sound Reveille.

First Meet Held By Regional Hospital Board

The first meeting of the newly-formed Regional Hospital District was held this afternoon.

The meeting convened following the regular meeting of the Regional District.

Both boards are comprised of the same membership.

Prior to consideration of the regular agenda two new members from the Gulf Islands were sworn in.

Douglas Cavaye, Ganges, will represent Salt Spring Island at future meetings and Miss Joan S. Pudchase, Port Washington, the Outer Islands.

The combined boards unanimously accepted the letters patent establishing the new hospital district which will in future be responsible for the financing of hospital projects in the areas bounded by Sooke and Sidney and the Gulf Islands.

Woman Suffers Head Injuries In Car Collision

A woman is in fairly good condition in hospital today with head injuries following a head-on crash on Craigflower Road Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Margaret Barber, 39, of 2321 Sooke Road, was admitted after the car she was driving collided with a car driven by Istvan Sallos, 2642 Wentwich.

Mrs. Barber suffered facial cuts. Two daughters, Cindy, 10, and Debbie, 9, also suffered cuts but were released after treatment.

Inquest Resumes On Nov. 22 In Car Fatality

An inquest into the death of James Elford Jackson, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital Oct. 30, 11 days after a car accident near Thetis Lake, will continue Nov. 22.

Jackson's car plunged down a 40-foot embankment on the Trans-Canada Highway after a truck had skidded into his lane.

The inquest opened Friday with medical evidence. It continues Nov. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Law Courts.

Conciliator Meets Board, Teachers' Group

D. W. Dysart has been named conciliation officer following a breakdown in direct salary negotiations between Greater Victoria School District and its teachers.

First meeting with Mr. Dysart was held Tuesday and another meeting is planned for Monday evening.

George Curran, board spokesman, said negotiations have been "cordial, with give and take on both sides."

Deadline for a conciliation board settlement is Tuesday midnight after which the dispute will go to binding arbitration.

Details of teacher salary demands have not been disclosed.

City Dwellers Don't Know Facts: Philip

By IAN MacDONALD

TORONTO (CP)—Prince Philip said today city dwellers who believe they are superior to farmers just do not know the facts.

Farming in highly-developed countries has advanced as far or farther than other industries, he said in opening the first meeting in Canada of the Royal Agricultural Society of the Commonwealth.

Nineteen member societies from Africa, Australia, Canada, and the United Kingdom were on hand to discuss agricultural engineering at the two-day meeting.

The society, which meets in one of the Commonwealth countries every two years, was founded in 1957 at the suggestion of Prince Philip who serves as president. It was founded as a forum for exchanging information and to encourage the exchange of farmers among Commonwealth countries.

PRODUCTION INCREASED

The prince said mechanization has been the most important single factor responsible for increasing agricultural production. Other factors were the use of fertilizers and pesticides.

After delivering what he termed "a rather bald recital" of the society's past accomplishments, Philip questioned whether it was in man's best interest to keep populations expanding.

He also asked whether it was wise to convert more and more land to agricultural use to the detriment of wild life.

Ontario Premier John Robarts told the meeting factors that unite Canada are much stronger than the divisive factors that the press plays up in foreign newspapers. He said Canada needs a national agricultural policy.

Prince Philip is here for a four-day visit and will open the 1967 Royal Winter Fair here Friday.

Pair Jailed

Two men with previous convictions for the same offence, were sentenced in magistrate's court Tuesday, to jail terms on impaired charges.

Albert Tervo, 3498 Lovat, was sentenced to 20 days and had his licence suspended for having care and control of a car on Oct. 8 while impaired.

He admitted a conviction for the same offence in Dec. 1965.

Stephen Davey, 196 Bushby, was sentenced to 20 days and had his licence supsended for impaired driving on July 31. He admitted being convicted of the same offence Aug. 15.

THIS is an artist's conception showing how Surveyor VI, according to its builder, is aimed to come down in the moon's Central Bay area in relation to positions of previously successful Surveyors I, II and V. Surveyor VI is scheduled to make a soft landing Thursday night. (AP Wirephoto.)

LIFT-OFF THURSDAY

'No Problems . . . Yet' With Giant Saturn

By MARY BUBB

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (Reuters) — The American Surveyor VI spacecraft cruised toward the moon today as scientists here prepared for the test launching Thursday of a giant rocket designed to carry U.S. astronauts to the lunar surface.

Lift-off for the towering Saturn V rocket was expected at noon Thursday while Surveyor VI was scheduled to touch down gently on the moon Thursday night for a closer look at a possible astronaut landing site.

Apollo mission officials said here today the countdown for Saturn V, which will power an unmanned Apollo IV spacecraft, continued smoothly with "no problems at this time."

They expressed confidence that difficulties which delayed the huge rocket's maiden voyage for almost a year have been ironed out.

NEARS TARGET

In Pasadena, Calif., scientists said Surveyor VI was expected to come within 62 miles of its target in the centre of the visible surface of the moon.

The Surveyor engines were fired Tuesday night to correct its flight path, using the star Canopus as a guide on its trip through space. The path was altered as the spacecraft cruised at 4,000 miles an hour 107,680 miles from earth.

Its greatest task was yet to come—landing safely in the rocky, crater-filled Sinus Medii (Central Bay).

Like its predecessors, scientists hoped Surveyor VI would send back television pictures of the lunar landscape.

This time the cameras will use polarized filters which, officials said, should help determine what kind of rock covers the moon.

MAN ALOFT NEXT

The American moon program calls for a manned flight with the fourth Saturn V and an attempted lunar mission with the ninth.

If the launching Thursday is successful, officials said the schedule will undoubtedly be accelerated.

Failure, however, would be devastating, they said, and would set the Apollo program back even further and could mean losing the moon race to Russia.

The cost of Thursday's flight test will be almost $200,000,000.

Liquor Store Up to Residents Says Council

Central Saanich council Monday decided it is up to residents or groups to apply to the provincial government to establish a liquor store in the municipality.

The subject was raised at an October meeting by acting reeve Philip Benn who inquired if residents were interested in a store.

Many people, he said, were in favor of a store at Brentwood but an application for an outlet would have to be made to the Liquor Control Board.

Councillors felt it was up to the people — not council — to request the government for a store. There are no outlets at present in the municipality.

Library Speaker

Sheila Egoff, UBC professor of library science, will be guest speaker at the opening of the annual display of children's books at Victoria Public Library Wednesday, Nov. 15, at 8 p.m.

The display is being held as part of Young Canada's Book Week.

Guinea Restores Ties

LONDON (AP) — Guinea has followed Egyptian President Nasser's lead in agreeing to restore diplomatic ties with Britain after a two-year break.

EDUCATION TV ACT SIGNED

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Johnson Tuesday signed the Public Broadcasting Act, making $20,000,000 in federal funds available to assist educational radio and television services across the U.S.

The act also creates a 15-member Public Broadcasting Corporation which will use the subsidy and any future funds provided free of government control.

Saanich Group Sponsors Meet On Pollution

A public meeting on pollution and sewage disposal will be held in the auditorium of Mount View High School next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

It is sponsored by the Saanich Action Committee, a ratepayers group, which said in a letter to Saanich council this week there has not been enough consideration of dumping sewage into the sea.

The regional sewerage report recommended sewage continue to be dumped into the sea but that outfalls be rebuilt and extended into deep water.

A committee spokesman said speakers at the meeting will be engineer John Priestman, public health inspector Lloyd Smith, University of Victoria biologist Dr. Allan Austin and Dr. Ken Thornton, head laboratory technician at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

BRIDGE RESULTS

Winners of the weekly game held by the Victoria Unit of the American Bridge League were: 1, Brian Larkey and Ken Hilborn; 2, Bill Lamb and Ken Magee; 3, Marjorie Fortye and Earle Dye; 4, Margaret Kirby and Hildegarde Rundquist; 5, Freda Small and Bernard Sassen.

Winners of the Monday Duplicate Building clubrooms were: 1, Iola Riches and John Dimitri; 2, Jean Walpole and Sadie MacPherson; 3, Marjorie Mulcahy and Fran Champion; 4, Bill Champion and Mike O'Brien; 5, Harry Brawn and Ron Smith, Walter Allen and Ken Magee (tie).

Safest Filter Aim Of Conservative MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Marvin Howe, Conservative MP for Wellington-Huron, says cigarette manufacturers should be required by law to provide the safest filter available.

He said in an interview Tuesday he cannot understand why the federal health department is not doing more in this field in view of new processes and products which will make for a safer cigarette.

Mr. Howe, 61, has been engaged in a better-filter campaign for nearly four years while Barry Mather, NDP member for New Westminster, has been campaigning for a ban on cigarette advertising or at least equal time for anti-cigarette medical groups.

The government Monday gave the Commons figures showing that last year the health department spent $129,612 on education about the dangers of smoking while the agriculture department was spending $465,609 to assist development of the Canadian tobacco industry.

Mr. Howe said facilities should be set up in the health department to check filters and then set a standard for all filters used in Canada.

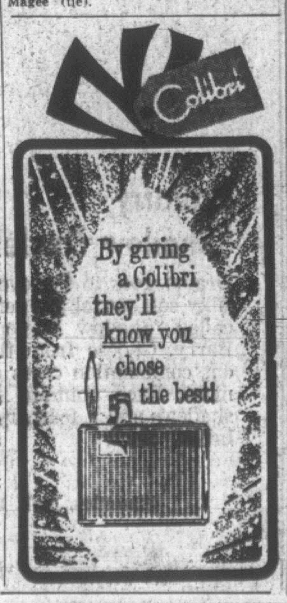

When he raised the matter in June, 1966, in the Commons health committee, Dr. J. N. Crawford, deputy health minister, said:

"We are so concerned about the impact of cigarette smoking on the health of the population that we would be prepared to do almost anything to assist in the elimination of this problem."

Mr. Howe said blind inventor Marcel Beaudoin of Lucerne, Que., holds a patent on what is reported to be a safe filter he developed from experiments with a Canadian army gas mask.

"And the industry wouldn't talk to him," he added.

Last April 3,796,880,845 cigarettes were entered for sale in Canada. In December, 1965, the figure was 3,500,416,585.

BALLERINA HOME

No Pedestal Please! Sheila Dances Because She Likes It

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Dancers are human beings, not "ethereal china dolls as most people think," says Sheila Mackinnon, ballerina with The Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

"They put us on pedestals but that's not the image I like to carry around. We're just normal people who happen to enjoy what we're doing."

Sheila is back in her home town to dance the title role in Brian MacDonald's Rose Latulippe at the Royal Theatre tonight.

After studying with Wynne Shaw for many years, Sheila joined the corps de ballet of the RWB 10 years ago.

HARD WORK, JOY

It was a long hard struggle to become ballerina.

"If I knew what was ahead, I don't know if I could go through with it again," she says, "but I'd probably be stupid enough—there's every kind of disappointment but a lot of joy too."

Working with a small Canadian company has given Sheila chances she would have missed with a larger one.

"In the Royal Ballet, in England, you can have all the talent in the world but if your hair's the wrong color, you can die in the back row of the corps."

Sheila's bright red hair was no deterrent in Winnipeg.

BETTER CHANCE

"I was very lucky when I started to get some choice roles. In a small company you have a better chance to grow and do more things."

She feels there is enough scope for a young dancer in Canada. You don't have to go elsewhere if you're "willing to stick the long grind."

SHEILA MACKINNON
. . . at Royal tonight

Sheila is fond of the role of Rose, although she did not dance it when the company performed at Expo.

"It's a challenge to take over a role—to make sure you don't copy. I like dancing Rose because it's a strong dramatic role.

"But I'm a very versatile dancer too. I like to do lyrical, classical work but I also enjoy modern things from jazz to the twist—though I suppose that's really out now."

ENDS HAPPILY

Rose Latulippe tells the story of a young religious French-Canadian girl. She loves dancing so much that at the Mardi Gras she is tempted away from her sweetheart by a sinister stranger.

But all ends happily.

"It's extremely tiring to dance though we have a lot of fun with it. There's a French-Canadian jig we were taught by a member of the folk-dancing company Les Feux Follets—we call it the Feux Follets Clomp.

"Most of it is classical dancing en pointe but disguised with French-Canadian jigs and reels. The RWB is very definitely a Canadian ballet company. We try to do our own works—the kind of things that suit us. We can do the classics, but why do them if everyone else does?"

LONDON (Reuters) — The second biggest British labor union swung sharply to the left Tuesday in a leadership change. Left-winger Hugh Scanlon, a former Communist, was elected president of the 1,200,000-member Amalgamated Engineering Union, succeeding Lord Carron, who was an anti-Communist and staunch Labor government supporter.

Fishermen Rebuffed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fisheries Minister Robichaud Tuesday told the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union that amendments cannot be made to the Unemployment Insurance Act to make special provisios for herring fishermen.

School Board Denies Castle Is Neglected

Charges that the Greater Victoria School Board is neglecting Craigdarroch Castle were denied Tuesday.

Historian James K. Nesbitt, president of the Craigdarroch Castle Society, made the charges to Mayor Hugh Stephen and school board officials.

He said the stonework and the drains and gutters were being neglected with resulting damage to the building.

The school board claims that regular maintenance is carried out on the building and that claims that the building is deteriorating rapidly are exaggerated.

Mr. Nesbitt said he was not satisfied with the school board reply.

"I wrote to the school board and got a reply which told me exactly nothing," he said.

The old building is being used by the school board as a teachers' library and book storage centre.

ADVICE FROM MINISTER

Don't Duplicate Area Services

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell Tuesday urged North Saanich and Sidney to at least tackle their water problem on a joint basis.

He said the decisive voter rejection of amalgamation still left a number of problems unresolved on the north end of the peninsula.

"Regardless of the vote, I think there are certain problems remaining, not the least of which is water supply," he told The Times.

"I hope that North Saanich, Sidney and the improvement districts involved will establish a formal organization or area board to work out arrangements with Greater Victoria water board for the future supply of water.

"And, because there are going to be continuing problems of duplication of services in the two communities, I hope they will set up an informal committee of representatives from North Saanich and Sidney to co-ordinate their programs.

"That way they could avoid duplications and initiate joint functions which appear to benefit both communities."

Mr. Campbell, who has exerted himself in encouraging small civic units to amalgamate, said he was neither surprised nor disappointed by the weekend vote because his department's advice had been ignored.

"These things take time and they only come step by step and in this case the steps we urged were not followed."

Mr. Campbell said his department had suggested to the two councils they prepare a firm amalgamation plan and accounting before putting the question to the voters and also to give more time for discussion and explanation.

Merger Supporters Opposed

A contest for the reeveship is shaping up in North Saanich.

Coun. Trevor Davis said today property-owners' association will appoint a candidate to contest the reeveship against Reeve J. B. Cumming.

Mr. Cumming is seeking re-election.

A slate of candidates to oppose councillors seeking re-election and who supported amalgamation of North Saanich and Sidney, will also be appointed by the ratepayers' groups, he said.

He said council at present is split and can not carry out the wishes of the ratepayers to preserve the rural amenities of the municipality.

"We want to remain as we are," he said. "We want to live simply."

One of the problems facing North Saanich, he said, was to solve the question of tax relief for large land owners who are paying high taxes but can't subdivide because of land subdivision bylaws.

"We want these people to be able to preserve their property as they are, but not be penalized for it," he explained.

Subdivisions are restricted to a minimum of two-acres in the rural areas of the municipality.

INDIAN MEETING SET

EDMONTON (CP)—Cabinet ministers from four western provinces will meet federal Health Minister Allan MacEachen in Ottawa, November 15, to discuss problems facing Indians, Alberta minister in charge of Indian affairs, F. C. Colborne, said here Monday.

Mr. Colborne said Alberta has suggested an interim agreement with Ottawa under which the provinces would provide welfare on reserves but the federal government would pay for it.

(Welfare Minister Dan Campbell is expected to represent British Columbia.)

Militant Priest Raises a Stink

LINCOLN, England (AP) — For years the choirboys of Lincoln Cathedral have enlivened Sunday morning services by setting off stink bombs, small glass vials containing a solution of sulphurated hydrogen.

Monday, an Anglican priest marched into Walter Lees' joke shop in the shadow of the cathedral and demanded:

"Is this where the boys buy stink bombs to throw in the cathedral?"

Lees said it was.

"One packet, please," said the priest, handing over a shilling.

"I suppose the inconvenience they cause is no concern of yours?" the parson asked Lees. Then he dropped a stink bomb on the floor, ground it under his heel and walked out as the smell of rotten eggs rose.

"The smell inside the shop was awful," said Lees, "but I'm not complaining. I can take a joke as well as sell one."

"I can see the funny side of it," said the dean of the cathedral, Very Rev. Michael Peck, "but I can't possibly believe that the person concerned was a member of the cathedral chapter."

AGAINST JORDAN

Egyptian Bid 'Disruptive'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The UN Security Council, already divided over rival proposals for a Middle East settlement, consulted today on Egyptian demands that it deal with Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it occupied in the June war.

Delegates expressed belief that the 15-nation council would take up the Egyptian request Thursday.

A council meeting scheduled for 4 p.m. today was called at the request of The Congo, which accused Portugal of letting foreign mercenaries in Portuguese Angola invade Congolese territory.

One diplomat charged privately that Egypt was exerting a "disruptive influence" in calling at this stage for debate on territories that Israel seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria last June.

INFLUENCE JORDAN

Many diplomats felt the purpose was to prevent Jordan from accepting an American proposal, one of the two rival plans submitted.

The American draft, already rejected by the Russians, calls for the withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories and stresses the need for "a limitation of the wasteful and destructive arms race in the area."

Informed sources said that King Hussein of Jordan, now visiting in the United States, had told U.S. officials that he would not "interpose any objection" to the U.S. plan.

The other proposal, submitted by India, Mali and Nigeria, calls for Israeli withdrawal "from all territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." Israel considers this wording prejudicial to it.

Both drafts call for a UN representative to be sent to the Middle East to seek a settlement, but they differ on the terms of his assignment.

'REGRETTED MISTAKE'

WASHINGTON (CP) — King Hussein of Jordan says the Arab statement implicating the United States and Britain with direct involvement in the Arab-Israel war last June was "a mistake."

Answering a reporter's question here Tuesday, Hussein said:

"We have regretted this mistake. We have admitted it to be a mistake."

The Arab people knew that the U.S. and Britain were not involved in the war, he added.

'Clearly Marked' Line Rejected

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egypt has rejected an Israeli proposal to clearly mark a ceasefire line along the Suez Canal, the United Nations chief cease fire supervisor, Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull, told Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan Tuesday.

Bull, who had returned here from Cairo, gave details of proposals to strengthen the 32-man ceasefire observation team by bringing in more personnel and giving them air-sea transport.

Dayan expressed disappointment over the UN team's refusal to inspect the area north of Port Said where the Israeli destroyer Elath was sunk Oct. 21 by Egyptian missiles.

Mob Disrupts Soviet Party In Ottawa

Embassy, Guests Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — Anti-Communist demonstrators thronged the gates of the Russian embassy Tuesday night tossing eggs, stones, paint and insults.

Diplomats, politicians and their wives were jeered and booed by the crowd of about 350 as they arrived for a two-hour reception marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

One woman was struck by an egg and other guests narrowly missed.

A bottle of red paint hit the embassy steps and splattered the entrance. Three windows were broken by flying objects. Police arrested five persons and charged them with creating a disturbance.

Russian Ambassador Ivan F. Shpredko, who had feared trouble, said the demonstrators were war criminals and German fascists.

MANY TEEN-AGERS

But reporters found most of the placard-carrying group to be younger than middle age. There were many teen-agers and a number of tots.

The demonstrators were mainly from the Ukraine and the Baltic states, but a scattering of others identified themselves as former citizens of Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

They shouted "shame" and "finks" at arriving guests, and chanted "Down with Russia," Freedom now," and "We'd rather be dead than red."

They hurled their leaflets on the embassy lawn and burned a symbolic black coffin and a red flag.

POLICE PERPLEXED

Police struggled to balance the right of free assembly against their duty to protect the embassy. At one point a representative of the external affairs formally requested stronger police action to prevent more windows from being broken.

Only one of the five persons charged with creating a disturbance appeared in magistrate's court today. He was Peter Freibergs, 21, of Ottawa, who pleaded not guilty to creating a disturbance. Bench warrants were issued for Martha Duma, 37, and Roman Bezchlibnyk, 20, both of Toronto; Stefan Wankevych, 47, of Oshawa, and George Horich of London. They had been freed on $30 bail Tuesday night.

External Affairs Minister Martin represented Prime Minister Pearson at the affair. He ordered his driver once around the block before heading into the embassy grounds.

U.S. ELECTIONS

First Negro Elected Mayor Of Major City

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cleveland Democrat Carl B. Stokes, descendant of a slave, has become the first Negro elected mayor of a major United States city, but Republicans claimed a pattern of victory and an omen for 1968 in Tuesday's elections in other cities and states.

The Republicans captured the governorship in Kentucky and took over the state legislature in New Jersey where a Democrat, Richard Hughes, is governor.

Another Negro Democrat, Richard G. Hatcher, came top of the mayoral ballot counting in Gary, Ind., with a margin of 1,495 over his white opponent, Joseph Radigan.

Radigan contended that in two districts where Hatcher gathered top-heavy majorities "more voters voted than were on the rolls."

The issue was to be put before the same federal court to which Hatcher had gone with his own pre-election fraud complaint.

In a third race-tinged contest for mayor, Boston voters rejected the white backlash-oriented campaign of Louis Day Hicks.

In Gary as in Cleveland, the mathematics of race was the crucial factor. And the issue of Negro-white balance in the public schools was a key question in Boston, where Secretary of State Kevin H. White was elected mayor in a non-partisan run-off between two Democrats.

Ray C. Bliss, Republican national chairman, saw in the election returns evidence "that the upsurge in Republican strength which began in 1966 is continuing."

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey said he discerned no trend at all.

Democrats reclaimed the mayor's office in Baltimore, and held Philadelphia's city hall despite internal discord and a stiff Republican challenge.

WILLISTON EXPLAINS STAND

B.C. Gives Firm 'No' To Exporting Water

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO—Resources Minister Ray Williston entered the lion's den here today to tell Americans they're wrong in claiming B.C. is selfish because it won't export water.

Mr. Williston repeated the province's emphatic "no" at the prestigious Third American Water Resources Conference here on the heels of speeches by U.S. officials outlining the coming water shortages they expect in California and the Pacific Northwest states.

He followed directly R. P. Kelly, director of natural resources for the Ralph M. Parsons Co. in Los Angeles, who outlined the North American Water and Power Alliance which his company is promoting as the answer to continental water needs.

The controversial NAWAPA plan would use B.C.—where one-third of all Canada's rainfall occurs—as a huge basin supplying water to the southern U.S. and the Great Lakes through a series of diversion dams and canals costing about $100 billion.

NOT INVENTORIED

Mr. Williston told the conference that B.C. still doesn't have all its water supply inventoried nor can this vital resource be evaluated against future needs.

"Therefore, those in authority have had to adopt the position that if a decision is required now as to whether water should be exported, the answer must be firm and must be negative," he stressed.

And, he added, B.C. cannot consider any proposal for "temporary" diversion of its water because such an arrangement "would become locked in with the economy of the areas being serviced and it would be morally wrong and politically impossible to withdraw from any such diversion arrangement in the future."

Mr. Williston said he wanted to explain clearly the reasons for B.C.'s decision because it has been misunderstood widely in the U.S. and "has been criticized as being selfish, arbitrary and even not in our own best interests."

Mr. Williston said it would be

WIRE BRIEFS

Arrested on Crete

ATHENS (Reuters)—Several persons, including a former member of the Greek parliament, were arrested in Crete following two bomb explosions, reliable sources on the island reported today.

Saboteurs Killed

TEL AVIV (AP)—Seven Arab saboteurs were killed in an hour-long gun battle with Israeli security troopers in the rocky panhandle of the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River Tuesday, the Israeli Army said.

Fierce Viet Battle

SAIGON (AP)—A fierce U.S. marine battle with North Vietnamese troops, Communist attacks up and down the country on provincial capitals and refugee hamlets, and heavy air strikes against North Vietnam that cost three U.S. planes were reported today.

Red Congress Agreed

MOSCOW (UPI)—Leaders of Communist parties visiting Moscow for the 50th anniversary of the Soviet Union have agreed to convene a world Communist congress next year, informed sources said today.

U.S. Singer Killed

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — American tenor Albert Lloyd da Costa, 39, a star of the Metropolitan Opera in New York for nine seasons, was killed early today when his car went out of control on a slippery stretch of road between Kolding and Vejle, in Jutland.

Brown to Visit Japan

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary George Brown will fly to Japan in two weeks for talks likely to be dominated by China, Vietnam and European issues.

BUSY INTERSECTION BOMBED BY TERRORISTS

HONG KONG (AP)—Terrorists bombed a crowded Hong Kong street intersection tonight, killing two persons and wounding 37.

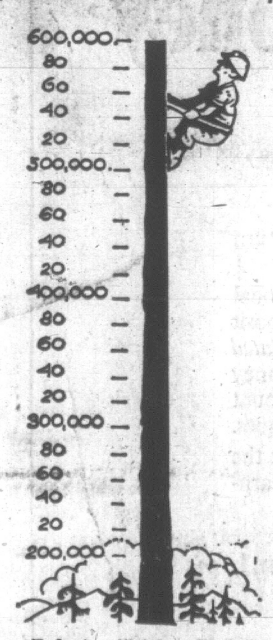

Several of the wounded were police, baited into position by a mixture of planted (fake and real) bombs along the street leading to the intersection.

Since Communist rioting and terrorism erupted May 11, 47 persons have been killed and more than 220 wounded.

Earlier today terrorists bombed a rural government building in the New Territories, between Hong Kong and China.

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top

Today's official audited figures for the United Red Feather - Red Cross Appeal stood at $488,839 or 81-4 per cent of the appeal target of $600,000.

ABOUT-FACE!

Let Him Tell It To the Admiral

By TED GASKELL

"I'd like to see the admiral run his operation with a staff of four."

That was the comment of a petty officer who had wondered why the Victoria region of the Boy Scouts of Canada couldn't function with volunteers.

The inquiring sailor changed his mind after getting a close look at the regional office here.

SAME NUMBER

He made his comment about the admiral after noting the staff handles the affairs of 4,000 boys—the same number of men on Pacific Maritime Command rolls here.

It costs $38,637 to run the Scouts' affairs. Of this $30,517 will come from the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Salaries of the five professional helpers, executive Jack Scrivener, a field executive, a camp supervisor, and an office staff of two, take up a good portion of the budget. But for every person paid there are nearly 100 volunteers.

ALL UNPAID

There is a supervising staff of 25 and 450 leaders, all unpaid. They take care of Cubs, Scouts, Venturers and Rover Scouts ranging in age from eight to 21 all over the peninsula from Swartz Bay to Jordan River.

Some money goes to help run Camp Barnard which has a year-round program in addition to the summer camping facilities.

It costs money to hold the regional jamborees and in a few cases, boys who cannot afford to go are assisted but only when every effort to help them earn their own money has failed.

The boys contribute one sixth of the association's budget. They provide as much again to send to provincial and national headquarters to help provide books and equipment to run the provincial and national jamborees.

This region has two special packs, one for the physically handicapped boys who are members of a cub pack at the Solarium and for a troop of mentally handicapped Scouts, sponsored by the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

But so far no financial aid has been given directly to these two groups although such aid is being considered.

'The Great Dilemma' For Liberals, Pearson

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The Gallup Poll published today which shows the number of Liberals who want Lester Pearson to resign has increased by an unprecedented 13 per cent provides yet another public indication of the hazardous dilemma confronting the Liberal party and its leader.

In recent days a series of important private conferences have taken place in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa attended by some senior members of the government caucus and top-level Liberal executives.

Newman

The subject of these meetings has been the timing and circumstances of the leader's departure. The issue was also discussed by telephone between Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

See Poll Page 5

Mitchell Sharp's Calgary statement that Mr. Pearson "does not intend to take the Liberal party through the next election" was part of the same debate which is currently tearing at the party and creating a grave political quandary for the Prime Minister.

PREFER PEARSON

On one side, there is a strong and growing feeling — concentrated in the French wing of the party — that Pearson is the indispensable man in the struggle for national unity. In fact, a few weeks ago, a group of 33 Quebec MPs met in secret session to affirm they would prefer to have Pearson lead the party through the next election over any other possible candidate, including Jean Marchand.

On the other side, the Gallup Poll taken after the Tory convention (which showed a 13-per-cent jump in Tory strength) plus the current catfight between Judy LaMarsh and the CBC have seriously deepened the rumblings of discontent inside the party about the quality and duration of Pearson's leadership.

Shortly after the Quebec MPs pledged their renewed loyalty to Pearson, a delegation of MPs from the Ontario caucus — including Ian Wahn (St. Paul's), Robert Andrews (Port Arthur), Joseph Macaluso (Hamilton West) and Stanley Haidasz (Parkdale) sent word through Liberal caucus chairman Russell Honey requesting that Pearson make known the decision about his future retirement plans as soon as possible.

Militant Priest Raises a Stink

LINCOLN, England (AP) — For years the choirboys of Lincoln Cathedral have enlivened Sunday morning services by setting off stink bombs, small glass vials containing a solution of sulphurated hydrogen.

Monday, an Anglican priest marched into Walter Lees' joke shop in the shadow of the cathedral and demanded:

"Is this where the boys buy stink bombs to throw in the cathedral?"

Lees said it was.

"One packet, please," said the priest, handing over a shilling.

"I suppose the inconvenience they cause is no concern of yours?" the parson asked Lees. Then he dropped a stink bomb on the floor, ground it under his heel and walked out as the smell of rotten eggs rose.

"The smell inside the shop was awful," said Lees, "but I'm not complaining. I can take a joke as well as sell one."

'I can see the funny side of it," said the dean of the cathedral, Very Rev. Michael Peck, "but I can't possibly believe that the person concerned was a member of the cathedral chapter."

POLICE GRAPPLE with demonstrator taken into custody during fracas in front of Soviet Embassy in Ottawa Tuesday night as friends at right protest verbally. Demonstration was held as a diplomatic party was taking place inside to celebrate 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Embassy, Guests Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — Anti-Communist demonstrators thronged the gates of the Russian embassy Tuesday night tossing eggs, stones, paint and insults.

Diplomats, politicians and their wives were jeered and booed by the crowd of about 350 as they arrived for a two-hour reception marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

One woman was struck by an egg and other guests narrowly missed.

A bottle of red paint hit the embassy steps and splattered the entrance. Three windows were broken by flying objects. Police arrested five persons and charged them with creating a disturbance.

Russian Ambassador Ivan F. Shpredko, who had feared trouble, said the demonstrators were war criminals and German fascists.

MANY TEEN-AGERS

But reporters found most of the placard-carrying group to be younger than middle age. There were many teen-agers and a number of tots.

The demonstrators were mainly from the Ukraine and the Baltic states, but a scattering of others identified themselves as former citizens of Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

They shouted "shame" and "finks" at arriving guests, and chanted "Down with Russia," Freedom now," and "We'd rather be dead than red."

They hurled their leaflets on the embassy lawn and burned a symbolic black coffin and a red flag.

POLICE PERPLEXED

Police struggled to balance the right of free assembly against their duty to protect the embassy. At one point a representative of the external affairs formally requested stronger police action to prevent more windows from being broken.

Only one of the five persons charged with creating a disturbance appeared in magistrate's court today. He was Peter Freibergs, 21, of Ottawa, who pleaded not guilty to creating a disturbance. Bench warrants were issued for Martha Duma, 37, and Roman Bezchlibnyk, 20, both of Toronto; Stefan Wankevych, 47, of Oshawa, and George Horich of London. They had been freed on $30 bail Tuesday night.

External Affairs Minister Martin represented Prime Minister Pearson at the affair. He ordered his driver once around the block before heading into the embassy grounds.

U.S. ELECTIONS

First Negro Elected Mayor Of Major City

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cleveland Democrat Carl B. Stokes, descendant of a slave, has become the first Negro elected mayor of a major United States city, but Republicans claimed a pattern of victory and an omen for 1968 in Tuesday's elections in other cities and states.

The Republicans captured the governorship in Kentucky and took over the state legislature in New Jersey where a Democrat, Richard Hughes, is governor.

Another Negro Democrat, Richard G. Hatcher, came ou of the mayoral ballot counting in Gary, Ind., with a margin of 1,495 over his white opponent, Joseph Radigan.

Radigan contended that in two districts where Hatcher gathered top-heavy majorities "more voters voted than were on the rolls."

The issue was to be put before the same federal court to which Hatcher had gone with his own pre-election fraud complaint.

In a third race-tinged contest for mayor, Boston voters rejected the white backlash-oriented campaign of Louis Day Hicks.

In Gary as in Cleveland, the mathematics of race was the crucial factor. And the issue of Negro-white balance in the public schools was a key question in Boston, where Secretary of State Kevin H. White was elected mayor in a non-partisan run-off between two Democrats.

Ray C. Bliss, Republican national chairman, saw in the election returns evidence "that the upsurge in Republican strength which began in 1966 is continuing."

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey said he discerned no trend at all.

Democrats reclaimed the mayor's office in Baltimore, and held Philadelphia's city hall despite internal discord and a stiff Republican challenge.

AGAINST JORDAN

Egyptian Bid 'Disruptive'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The Un Security Council, already divided over rival proposals for a Middle East settlement, consulted today on Egyptian demands that it deal with Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it occupied in the June war.

Delegates expressed belief that the 15-nation council would take up the Egyptian request Thursday.

A council meeting scheduled for 4 p.m. today was called at the request of The Congo, which accused Portugal of letting foreign mercenaries in Portuguese Angola invade Congolese territory.

One diplomat charged privately that Egypt was exerting a "disruptive influence" in calling at this stage for debate on territories that Israel seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria last June.

INFLUENCE JORDAN

Many diplomats felt the purpose was to prevent Jordan from accepting an American proposal, one of the two rival plans submitted.

The American draft, already rejected by the Russians, calls for the withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories and stresses the need for "a limitation of the wasteful and destructive arms race in the area."

Informed sources said that King Hussein of Jordan, now visiting in the United States, had told U.S. officials that he would not "interpose any objection" to the U.S. plan.

The other proposal, submitted by India, Mali and Nigeria, calls for Israeli withdrawal "from all territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." Israel considers this wording prejudicial to it.

Both drafts call for a UN representative to be sent to the Middle East to seek a settlement, but they differ on the terms of his assignment.

'REGRETTED MISTAKE'

WASHINGTON (CP) — King Hussein of Jordan says the Arab statement implicating the United States and Britain with direct involvement in the Arab-Israel war last June was "a mistake."

Answering a reporter's question here Tuesday, Hussein said:

"We have regretted this mistake. We have admitted it to be a mistake."

The Arab people knew that the U.S. and Britain were not involved in the war, he added.

'Clearly Marked' Line Rejected

TEL AVIV (AP) — Egypt has rejected an Israeli proposal to clearly mark a ceasefire line along the Suez Canal, the United Nations chief cease fire supervisor, Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull, told Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan Tuesday.

Bull, who had returned here from Cairo, gave details of proposals to strengthen the 32-man ceasefire observation team by bringing in more personnel and giving them air-sea transport.

Dayan expressed disappointment over the UN team's refusal to inspect the area north of Port Said where the Israeli destroyer Elath was sunk Oct. 21 by Egyptian missiles.

B.C. Gives Firm 'No' To Exporting Water

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO—Resources Minister Ray Williston entered the lion's den here today to tell Americans they're wrong in claiming B.C. is selfish because it won't export water.

Mr. Willsiton repeated the province's emphatic "no" at the prestigious Third American Water Resources Conference here on the heels of speeches by U.S. officials outlining the coming water shortages they expect in California and the Pacific Northwest states.

He followed directly R. P. Kelly, director of natural resources for the Ralph M. Parsons Co. in Los Angeles, who outlined the North American Water and Power Alliance which his company is promoting as the answer to continental water needs.

The controversial NAWAPA plan would use B.C.—where one-third of all Canada's rainfall occurs—as a huge basin supplying water to the southern U.S. and the Great Lakes through a series of diversion dams and canals costing about $100 billion.

NOT INVENTORIED

Mr. Williston told the conference that B.C. still doesn't have all its water supply inventoried nor can this vital resource be evaluated against future needs.

"Therefore, those in authority have had to adopt the position that if a decision is required now as to whether water should be exported, the answer must be firm and must be negative," he stressed.

And, he added, B.C. cannot consider any proposal for "temporary" diversion of its water because such an arrangement "would become locked in with the economy of the areas being serviced and it would be morally wrong and politically impossible to withdraw from any such diversion arrangement in the future."

Mr. Williston said he wanted to explain clearly the reasons for B.C.'s decision because it has been misunderstood widely in the U.S. and "has been criticized as being selfish, arbitrary and even not in our own best interests."

Mr. Williston said it would be

ATHENS (Reuters)—Several persons, including a former member of the Greek parliament, were arrested in Crete following two bomb explosions, reliable sources on the island reported today.

Saboteurs Killed

TEL AVIV (AP)—Seven Arab saboteurs were killed in an hour-long gun battle with Israeli security troopers in the rocky panhandle of the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River Tuesday, the Israeli Army said.

Fierce Viet Battle

SAIGON (AP)—A fierce U.S. marine battle with North Vietnamese troops, Communist attacks up and down the country on provincial capitals and refugee hamlets, and heavy air strikes against North Vietnam that cost three U.S. planes were reported today.

Red Congress Agreed

MOSCOW (UPI)—Leaders of Communist parties visiting Moscow for the 50th anniversary of the Soviet Union have agreed to convene a world Communist congress next year, informed sources said today.

U.S. Singer Killed

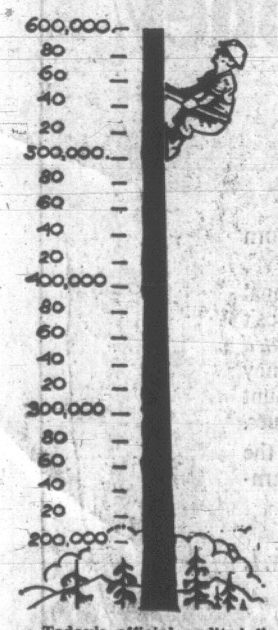

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — American tenor Albert Lloyd da Costa, 39, a star of the Metropolitan Opera in New York for nine seasons, was killed early today when his car went out of control on a slippery stretch of road between Kolding and Vejle, in Jutland.

Today's official audited figures for the United Red Feather - Red Cross Appeal stood at $485,839 or 81.4 per cent of the appeal target of $600,000.

Let Him Tell It To the Admiral

By TED GASKELL

"I'd like to see the admiral run his operation with a staff of four."

That was the comment of a petty officer who had wondered why the Victoria region of the Boy Scouts of Canada couldn't function with volunteers.

The inquiring sailor changed his mind after getting a close look at the regional office here.

SAME NUMBER

He made his comment about the admiral after noting the staff handles the affairs of 4,000 boys—the same number of men on Pacific Maritime Command rolls here.

It costs $38,637 to run the Scouts' affair. Of this $30,517 will come from the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Salaries of the five professional helpers, executive Jack Scrivener, a field executive, a camp supervisor, and an office staff of two, take up a good portion of the budget. But for every person paid there are nearly 100 volunteers.

ALL UNPAID

There is a supervising staff of 25 and 450 leaders, all unpaid. They take care of Cubs, Scouts, Venturers and Rover Scouts ranging in age from eight to 21 all over the peninsula from Swartz Bay to Jordan River.

Some money goes to help run Camp Barnard which has a year-round program in addition to the summer camping facilities.

It costs money to hold the regional jamborees and in a few cases, boys who cannot afford to go are assisted but only when every effort to help them earn their own money has failed.

The boys contribute one sixth of the association's budget. They provide as much again to send to provincial and national headquarters to help provide books and equipment to run the provincial and national jamborees.

This region has two special packs, one for the physically handicapped boys who are members of a cub pack at the Solarium and for a troop of mentally handicapped Scouts, sponsored by the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

But so far no financial aid has been given directly to these two groups although such aid is being considered.

BUSY INTERSECTION BOMBED BY TERRORISTS

HONG KONG (AP)—Terrorists bombed a crowded Hong Kong street intersection tonight, killing two persons and wounding 37.

Several of the wounded were police, baited into position by a mixture of planted (fake and real) bombs along the street leading to the intersection.

Since Communist rioting and terrorism erupted May 11, 47 persons have been killed and more than 220 wounded.

Earlier today terrorists bombed a rural government building in the New Territories, between Hong Kong and China.

'The Great Dilemma' For Liberals, Pearson

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The Gallup Poll published today which shows the number of Liberals who want Lester Pearson to resign has increased by an unprecedented 13 per cent provides yet another public indication of the hazardous dilemma confronting the Liberal party and its leader.

In recent days a series of important private conferences have taken place in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa attended by some senior members of the government caucus and top-level Liberal executives.

Newman

The subject of these meetings has been the timing and circumstances of the leader's departure. The issue was also discussed by telephone between Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

See Poll Page 5

Mitchell Sharp's Calgary statement that Mr. Pearson "does not intend to take the Liberal party through the next election" was part of the same debate which is currently tearing at the party and creating a grave political quandry for the Prime Minister.

PREFER PEARSON

On one side, there is a strong and growing feeling — concentrated in the French wing of the party — that Pearson is the indispensable man in the struggle for national unity. In fact, a few weeks ago, a group of 33 Quebec MPs met in secret session to affirm they would prefer to have Pearson lead the party through the next election over any other possible candidate, including Jean Marchand.

On the other side, the Gallup Poll taken after the Tory convention (which showed a 13 per cent jump in Tory strength) plus the current catfight between Judy LaMarsh and the CBC have seriously deepened the rumblings of discontent inside the party about the quality and duration of Pearson's leadership.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1967—PAGE 13

Arthur Mayse

On a bright day next spring, Beach Drive dog-walkers may be startled to observe what looks uncommonly like a beer sausage scudding across and a trifle above our narrow waters. This, if the Air Transport Board approves its species for coast use, will be a Hovercraft outward bound with its passengers on the Victoria-Vancouver run.

At full scoot, it will attain a speed of about 60 miles an hour, and though its nine-foot prop generates a considerable roar, those on board will find their air-cushioned ride smooth and relatively quiet.

I can pass these facts on to you from personal experience, even though my Hovercraft ride was no more than a St. Lawrence River scurry in the company of other Expo pilgrims.

I wasn't too keen about committing myself to a wingless flying boat that supported itself by means invisible to the viewer, and was persuaded only after we had watched the sausage propel itself briskly between its ports several times.

Then, convinced that the craft was stable and functional, though still mighty odd, I tagged after my eager wife to join the lineup at the Hovercraft's berth.

★

This consisted mostly of a broad, concrete apron that sloped gently to the river.

In came the chunky monster, roar descending to a growl as it eased up against the current. At close range, it looked rather like an outsized doughnut life raft with cabin and cockpit let into it.

Its outer hull, if such it may be called, was a pneumatic cylinder four feet in diameter, colored medium blue and reassuringly plumped out with air.

The know-it-all behind me in the lineup explained to his wife that this cylinder was called the skirt, and told her to watch what happened next.

Still under power, the Hovercraft nosed the concrete, slid out upon it, and advanced in our direction. At the top of the apron it skidded itself sideways. The skirt collapsed, the craft settled, then a bow door opened outward neat as you please to form a ramp.

Passengers clambered out of the Hovercraft's bowels like so many Jonahs emerging from a whale. They looked kind of pleased with themselves, and it was obvious they had weathered the crossing in good fettle.

★

An attendant counted us off in twos from our double rank. By this time I was chafing to board and test our luck; but the count ended just short of Win and me.

The Hovercraft, its quota gulped, closed its mouth, expanded its skirt, and hitched itself about. Then it slid slick as a seal into the river, to ride on a cushion of air with its bulk clear of the current.

We didn't have to wait long before another ship of the pudgy fleet hove into sight with a rainbow of spray arched over its bows. It repeated the landing manoeuvre, swallowed about three dozen of us, and took off.

We had been anticipating a wild ride, but to our disappointment, the Hovercraft could have passed for a bus travelling a more than ordinarily smooth road in a sun shower. Its driver, or pilot as I suppose he should be called, handled his craft with proper British nonchalance.

By no means an exciting trip, we decided—but after all, it wasn't supposed to be.

So much for that brief encounter, and to it I can only add that the Hovercraft in its various types and sizes is by no means unproved in serious service. Invented, designed and manufactured in Britain, the sturdy skimmers have been subjected to tests that include rigorous land and water travel in the Canadian Arctic.

I don't know how they'll take the Gulf of Georgia if their use is approved, but this I can assure you: when you see a Hovercraft, it'll be some time before you can really believe it!

Bunn Fears 'Patsy' Curriculum Committee As Teachers Quit Over Peterson Snub

By BRUCE YEMEN

The danger of a "patsy" high school English curriculum committee approving "Pablum" course content was raised today in the wake of the mass resignation of the seven-member committee that chose a controversial Grade 12 textbook.

But Greater Victoria School Board chairman Peter Bunn, who issued the warning, said he agreed entirely with the committee's stand in the face of "gross interference" by Education Minister Peterson.

The seven-member committee of the B.C. Teachers' Federation quit in protest against the minister's handling of the controversy over a four-letter word for sexual intercourse which appeared in the optional Grade 12 text, Story and Structure.

IGNORED

The committee said Mr. Peterson ignored its professional judgment in his public pronouncements. Resignation was mainly on that matter of principle.

Miss Mabel Conibear, head of English at Esquimalt Secondary School and the only Victoria member of the committee, said she felt the resignation would strengthen the position of a new committee to be appointed by the curriculum branch of the education department.

Usual procedure for

appointment is for the department curriculum branch to ask the teachers' federation for nominations to the committee.

There is a possibility the federation might refuse to put forward any names as a matter of principle but this would be an extreme measure that could harm the future English curriculum, one Victoria federation member said.

The department doesn't have the manpower to take over the work, he said.

Mr. Bunn was concerned that Mr. Peterson's demonstration that "political expediency over-rides all other considerations" would make it extremely difficult for a future committee to hold the line against "pablum" influences in English course content.

WORDS DELETED

Mr. Peterson announced Oct. 30, two weeks after the controversy erupted, that an alternate text had been approved for the Grade 12 course and later said arrangements had been made to delete the four-letter words from the story in question, Defender of the Faith by Philip Roth.

Neither Miss Conibear nor Mr. Bunn had any quarrel with Mr. Peterson's personal objection to the four-letter word but they stressed professional matters should be left to the professionals.

Miss Conibear said the story containing the word was "very moral" and that the revised English curriculum was making a healthy impact on students.

Mr. Bunn said the new curriculum was the most exciting thing to happen in high school English education in years.

HARMED SYSTEM

Mr. Peterson's interference has done "nothing but harm to the education system," Mr. Bunn said.

The committee was composed of senior B.C. English teachers and included three UBC professors. There was no chairman as such. John Meredith, education department assistant instruction superintendent, handled the meetings.

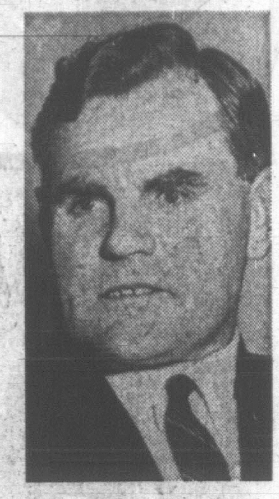

Committee members received an annual honorarium of $60 plus expenses for monthly meetings in Vancouver, but the reading of several possible textbooks during the selection process made great demands on the time of members, Miss Conibear said.

As an example, she said members had read eight anthologies before selecting Story and Structure.

The mass resignation was announced Tuesday in Vancouver and were accepted by the education minister.

Mr. Peterson thanked the committee for its service saying its only failure was in not advising the department about the controversial words in the Grade 12 textbook.

Mr. Peterson received the resignations in a letter from the committee. Another letter from Charles Ovans, general secretary of the teachers' federation, also objected strongly to the minister's handling of the controversy.

Jubilee Annex To Close

St. Joseph's Takes Isolation Patients

By PETE LOUDON

Royal Jubilee Hospital's infectious diseases annex is slated to close January 1.

All adult patients with diseases requiring isolation will be moved to St. Joseph's Hospital.

An isolation annex there will be expanded to become the main treatment centre for Greater Victoria.

Children aged under 14 will still be treated at Royal Jubilee under the plan, a St. Joseph's official said today.

He said both hospitals are agreed on the creation of a single isolation centre for adults but the plan requires approval of Metro medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Dr. Whitbread, who is responsible for isolation facilities and reporting of all communicable diseases, said today he expects the move to proceed.

The plan removes a duplication of facilities and makes fuller use of available isolation beds. The new ward is expected to be located in an annex at St. Joseph's which previously was only partly used for isolation cases.

Patients with polio, scarlet fever, infectious hepatitis, chicken pox, measles, and mumps and several other infectious diseases would be sent to the new ward at St. Joseph's.

FIRE TRAP

Vacating the old annex at Royal Jubilee is expected to revive a controversy about whether or not the old ward should be demolished. It has been called a fire trap.

But at the last annual meeting of Jubilee Hospital, Dr. R. C. Anderson disupted this. He said he had examined the one-storey wooden frame building and found it as safe as any other part of the hospital.

"A long look should be taken at retaining it for a five-year period," he said, drawing attention to the serious bed shortage in Victoria hospitals.

Other doctors have said privately that in view of the need for chronic care beds in the city it would be wrong to destroy the annex before alternative bed space is available.

Dr. Whitbread believes the annex should be removed as soon as possible.

He indicated the expanded isolation centre at St. Joseph's should also be regarded as a stop-gap. He said a new separate isolation hospital is required. He said it should be located near the public health laboratory which is located at Royal Jubilee.

NEW MODERATOR of the British Columbia synod, Presbyterian Church in Canada, is Rev. A. Gordon Faraday of Esquimalt. He was elected by a unanimous vote of Presbyterian clergy attending the provincial synod (parliament) in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, today. Mr. Faraday is command chaplain (Protestant) to Canada's Pacific defence force. Born at Ottawa, he served as chaplain with the Royal Canadian Navy in Korea from 1952 to 1953 and was posted to Esquimalt in 1964 as senior chaplain to HMCS Naden.

Ald. Stewart To Seek Re-election

Ald. Ian Stewart, completing his first term on Victoria city council, announced today that he will seek re-election in December.

Ald. Stewart said he will file his nomination papers Thursday immediately following city council's ratification of city clerk Morran Waller as returning officer.

A lawyer, Ald. Stewart said if re-elected he will continue to press for the energetic development of the downtown core.

"We have to answer two questions," he said. "One, do we have a city core now? and two, do we really want a solid and thriving core in the city?

"I think we do. And I think that with progressive planning we can in quite a short time see the redevelopment of the area between Cook and Blanshard and the redevelopment of the Wharf Street area.

REALITY

"With these two areas developed the downtown core we often talk about would become reality."

Ald. Stewart said one of his prime reasons for seeking a further term on council is a desire to see city council find a solution to the present housing problem in the city.

"Housing has not been an area of my responsibility in the past," he said. "But if I am returned to council in December I intend to make it an area of responsibility in the future. We have to find a solution to the housing problems facing our citizens, particulary those in the low income bracket."

$50 REWARD

Aluminum Bars Lost At Dockyard

The disappearance of 14 small aluminum bars from a jetty at Esquimalt Dockyard could put a crimp in a year-long research project being carried out by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The bars, each measuring 24 inches long, two inches wide and one-quarter of an inch thick, attached to a rack, were tied to a rope and lowered into the water from the jetty early this year.

Officials of the Defence Research Board, who are assisting Alcan in the project, were to check the newly-developed alloy's strength and corrosion resistant qualities during the test period.

When members of the Pacific Naval Laboratory went to check the bars a few days ago they found the rope had been severed at the water line. Divers were called in to search the sea bottom around the jetty but they could not find the bars.

$50 REWARD

Officials believe the rope could have been severed by a drifting log. If so it might have been washed up on a beach with the bars still attached. A $50 reward has been offered for return of the bars.

An advertisement placed in newspapers Tuesday said the bars "are essential to an important research program."

Persons with information about the bars were advised to contact Ray Buckett, a technical officer with PNL.

It was learned that Alcan was anxious to have results of the Esquimalt test because the company is preparing a paper on the program for presentation to a symposium in the spring.

Although the new alloy is being tested in many parts of the nation the Esquimalt test was considered important in providing control data because sea water here has the lowest level of industrial contamination in Canada, it was reported.

Ask The Times

Q. Doesn't anyone know the name of those weights used not too many years ago to tether or anchor cart horses while their drivers made house-to-house deliveries? The weight was attached to a long strap which was fastened to the horse's bridle and when the driver left the cart he'd swing the weight to the ground and the resulting pressure on the horse's mouth discouraged it from moving away. A. It was called a "frog." Reference: Birdcage Theatre Museum, Tombstone, Arizona.

Route Cleared For Sewer Plan

Regional District Approves

By JIM HUME

The Regional District this afternoon approved the amended letters patent covering the implementation of the master plan for a district-wide trunk sewer system.

The board also approved the hiring of a firm of consultants to design and plan the actual construction of the system.

The decisions clear the way for the financing and construction of the $23.5 million sewerage collection and disposal system recommended 18 months ago in the massive sewerage survey study prepared by Associated Engineering Services.

Individual councils still have to approve the project but no major hold-up is anticipated. Saanich and Esquimalt are already on record as fully approving the over-all plan. Oak Bay and Victoria have also indicated that they will approve once the cost-sharing formula is carefully spelled out.

The project, designed to be built in stages over the next 50 years, would be capable of serving a population of 420,000, the estimated population of the Greater Victoria district in 2017.

Present population is 170,000.

$17 ANNUALLY

The estimated per capita cost over the first 10 years of construction has been set at $17 annually, or $1.50 per person per month.

In the original report the engineers stressed that cost estimates were based on 1965-66 construction costs and that the ultimate cost of an adequate trunk sewer system could be well over the $23.5 million.

The engineers also stressed that much of the work to be done to provide an adequate sewer system is of an urgent nature and strongly recommended that 50 per cent of the total cost should be spent during the first 10 years of the 50-year program.

Colwood, Langford, View Royal and Brentwood were placed at the top of the priority list by the engineers.

Ferry Tie-Up Threatened If Cabinet Doesn't Budge

Cabinet inaction "could well result in a work stoppage" aboard the government ferries, a union spokesman said today.

Tom Gooderham of the Canadian Labour Congress said the cabinet has refused to date to give the 700-member ferry employees union an answer to recommendations made by B.C. Ferries to the cabinet.

Tentative agreement was reached last month between the union, which represents deck, catering and shore workers, and management of B.C. Ferries but cabinet approval also is necessary.

Issues involved in the tentative agreement include overtime, scheduling of hours and union dues checkoff in an amount greater than the government has allowed other civil servants.

"NO SUCCESS"

"The union has through numerous phone calls to the authority management, Attorney-General Bonner and the premier's office endeavored to get an answer but have had no success," said Mr. Gooderham.

"Union members are demanding their officers implement the program arrived at several weeks ago when the employees refrained from taking action to tie up the ferries.

"The employees were intending a stoppage on the Thanksgiving holiday weekend and again on subsequent weekends but refrained from taking action at the request of union officers, who asked for restraint in the hope of finding a settlement.

WAITING

"Union members have been waiting patiently for a reply from the government on the recommendations made by the ferry authority management but to date have not received an answer.

"Employees are becoming very impatient, but if a satisfactory answer is given by the cabinet a memorandum of understanding will be arrived at in written form between the ferry authority and union which would eliminate the need of work stoppages by employees at least for the duration of the memorandum and would pave the way for future good labor-management relations."

$1,000 LIFT FOR APPEAL FROM SAILORS

United Red Feather - Red Cross Appeal was swelled today with a pledge of $1,000 by the ship's company of HMCS Yukon, now en route to Esquimalt after an Australian cruise.

Instead of canvassing for the United Appeal, a series of small raffles were organized and nearly $100 a month has been raised in this manner.

Internship Program Designed to Avert Social Tragedies

By DON VIPOND
Times Education Reporter

Throughout our bustling economy are many people at work where they don't belong.

This is sad enough. But when some of them can't get to where they do belong, it's a social tragedy.

And often a terrible waste of talent.

Educators have done something about it.

The teacher internship program is tapping a rich supply of potential teachers now in industry, business or the home. These are university graduates, in their late twenties, who have developed a yen to teach after launching another career.

What stopped these people from moving into a profession always in need of more good men and women?

Money, of course. To qualify as teachers, they needed an additional year of university training. Not many could finance that without a job.

So the University of Victoria started its teacher internship program a year ago. Out of 226 inquiries to advertisements came 11 persons who spent last May and June getting a first-hand taste of teaching, under supervision.

Jim London is 31, married and the father of a baby boy. He has spent five years as a salesman with a downtown department store.

For him and the other interns it was a spring they won't forget. During the early part of the day they prepared lessons or taught. When school was out the interns headed for the university and a two-hour class. At night they prepared the next day's lessons.

●

During July and August the interns were at summer school classes. In Septembef they began full-time teaching under Letters of Permission.

Through this year they will attend 16 Saturday morning seminars at the university. And they will spend next summer at school there too.

But in the meantime they are being paid a salary.

"When this program came along it made it possible for me to do two things," says Jim, "complete my education and earn a living at the same time."

Both he and Ken Warren, another intern, are teaching at Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School. If all goes well, they will be fully qualified teachers when the next school year starts.

"We've had nothing but favorable comments on the program," says Dr. Richard Monk, associate professor in the university's faculty of education. "And there have been surprisingly few bugs to iron out too."

It will be watched closely with a view to expansion, he added.

Can Christmas Be Far Behind?

The first mandarin oranges of the Christmas season will be on sale in stores here Thursday.

George Pears, manager of Slade and Stewart, fruit and vegetable wholesalers, said the oranges arrived in Vancouver from Formosa today aboard the Ss. Washington.

A part of the cargo of 38,000 bundles was being shipped to the city, he said.

The 14,361-ton freighter is about two weeks ahead of the first Japanese shipment.

Five Persons Now Seeking Saanich Seat

A fifth person announced today he will seek the single Saanich seat on the Greater Victoria School Board in the Dec. 9 election.

He is former city manager Cecil Wyatt, 3461 Mayfair Drive, currently secretary of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

He said this morning his knowledge and experience in local government, especially in financial affairs, "could be of value."

Other four candidates are William Hibbert, Richard Reeve, Mrs. R. B. Restall and Douglas Brown. Saanich trustee Mrs. Frances Thompson said earlier she will not seek re-election.

Rates Called Fair, Few Motels Gouging

Very few B.C. motels overcharge their customers.

That is the general opinion of delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Motels and Resorts Association at Holyrood House.

"We are satisfied that very few B.C. operators take advantage of the public when there is a shortage of accommodation," said Jack Luckhurst of Port Alberni.

"Generally speaking, I would say our rates compare favorably with any in North America. Most B.C. motels are listed in the green book and the majority post their winter and summer rates in the rooms."

Mr. Luckhurst said many delegates to the convention discussed motel charges after B.C. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan urged motel operators to post their winter and summer rates.

'FAIR PRICING'

Mr. Kiernan said B.C. motels should establish a reputation for "fair dealing and fair pricing."

"No one would argue with the minister on that point," Mr. Lockhurst said. "But I don't think we should treat it as a criticism. We are satisfied that most B.C. operators give good value for money."

This view was endorsed by Ernest Shauer of Cache Creek who was elected president of the association for the coming year.

COURSES OPPOSED

Most of the 150 delegates opposed a suggestion that motel proprietors should have to pass test courses before being allowed to operate.

"This was never put in the form of a resolution," Mr. Shauer said. "It was simply a suggestion from the floor of the convention and, after discussion, it was referred to the executive for study."

Mr. Luckhurst said most members are in favor of high standards of motel-keeping but would oppose interference either by the association or the provincial government.

Larry Facey of Vancouver was elected vice-president in the motels division; William Ashworth of Savory Island, vice-president in the resorts division; and Walter Mueller of Parksville, vice-president in the trailer courts division.

The association supported a resolution asking the federal government to continue its efforts to revive the West Coast supply of herring and salmon.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Appeal Court today rejected an application for bail by two top officials of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

Union president Steve Stavenes and secretary Homer Stevens made the bail application after the British Columbia Court of Appeal had rejected their appeal against a one-year jail term for contempt of court.

Home Loans for Indians Improved

OTTAWA (CP) — A new loan program to improve the quality of homes on Indian reserves was announced today by the Indian affairs department.

Indians now may get a $7,000 grant from the department to build houses. They can get additional money through the band or borrow from Central Mortgage & Housing Corporation if the loan is backed by band funds.

Power Blackout Hits Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)—Electric power was being restored to Greater Montreal after a massive power blackout hit the island and several south shore communities at mid-morning today.

Speed Limits Imposed on Airliners

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Aviation Administration today imposed speed limits for airplanes operating in the crowded lower altitudes to try to cut down on an increasing number of in-flight collisions.

The FAA said that beginning December 15, all planes operating below 10,000 feet mean sea level would be restricted to flying less than 250 knots, 288 miles an hour.

AGAINST JORDAN

Egyptian Bid 'Disruptive'

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The UN Security Council, already divided over rival proposals for a Middle East settlement, consulted today on Egyptian demands that it deal with Israel's refusal to withdraw from territory it occupied in the June war.

Delegates expressed belief that the 15-nation council would take up the Egyptian request Thursday.

A council meeting scheduled for 4 p.m. today was called at the request of The Congo, which accused Portugal of letting foreign mercenaries in Portuguese Angola invade Congolese territory.

One diplomat charged privately that Egypt was exerting a "disruptive influence" in calling at this stage for debate on territories that Israel seized from Egypt, Jordan and Syria last June.

Many diplomats felt the purpose was to prevent Jordan from accepting an American proposal, one of the two rival plans submitted.

The American draft, already rejected by the Russians, calls for the withdrawal of armed forces from occupied territories and stresses the need for "a limitation of the wasteful and destructive arms race in the area."

Informed sources said that King Hussein of Jordan, now visiting in the United States, had told U.S. officials that he would not "interpose any objection" to the U.S. plan.

The other proposal, submitted by India, Mali and Nigeria, calls for Israeli withdrawal "from all territories occupied as a result of the recent conflict." Israel considers this wording prejudicial to it.

Both drafts call for a UN representative to be sent to the Middle East to seek a settlement, but they differ on the terms of his assignment.

MARTIN TELLS HOUSE

Police Measures Were Inadequate

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said today the Ottawa police took inadequate measures to deal with a demonstration at the Soviet embassy here Tuesday night.

He said in the Commons he has directed that action be taken to compensate the embassy and to repair the damage.

Mr. Martin said in reply to Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton Strathcona) that he regrets the police took inadequate measures.

However, the police had said there were clear statutory limitations on actions they could take to deal with such a demonstration.

Mr. Martin also said Canadian citizens are free to express their opinions in a lawful way.

Diplomats, politicians and their wives were jeered and booed by the crowd of about 350 as they arrived for a two-hour reception marking the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

One woman was struck by an egg and other guests narrowly missed.

A bottle of red paint hit the embassy steps and splattered the entrance. Three windows were broken by flying objects. Police arrested five persons and charged them with creating a disturbance.

Russian Ambassador Ivan F. Shpredko, who had feared trouble, said the demonstrators were war criminals and German fascists.

MANY TEEN-AGERS

But reporters found most of the placard-carrying group to be younger than middle age. There were many teen-agers and a number of tots.

The demonstrators were mainly from the Ukraine and the Baltic states, but a scattering of others identified themselves as former citizens of Hungary, Poland, Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

They shouted "shame" and "finks" at arriving guests, and chanted "Down with Russia," Freedom now," and "We'd rather be dead than red."

They hurled their leaflets on the embassy lawn and burned a symbolic black coffin and a red flag.

POLICE PERPLEXED

Police struggled to balance the right of free assembly against their duty to protect the embassy. At one point a representative of the external affairs formally requested stronger police action to prevent more windows from being broken.

Only one of the five persons charged with creating a disturbance appeared in magistrate's court today. He was Peter Freibergs, 21, of Ottawa, who pleaded not guilty to creating a disturbance. Bench warrants were issued for Martha Duma, 37, and Roman Bezchlibnyk, 20, both of Toronto; Stefan Wankevych, 47, of Oshawa, and George Horich of London. They had been freed on $30 bail Tuesday night.

External Affairs Minister Martin represented Prime Minister Pearson at the affair. He ordered his driver once around the block before heading into the embassy grounds.

Williston Explains Policy

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO—Resources Minister Ray Williston entered the lion's den here today to tell Americans they are wrong in claiming British Columbia is selfish because it won't export water.

Mr. Williston repeated the province's emphatic "no" at the prestigious Third American Water Resources Conference here on the heels of speeches by U.S. officials outlining the coming water shortages they expect in California and the Pacific Northwest states.

He followed directly R. P. Kelly, director of natural resources for the Ralph M. Parsons Co. in Los Angeles, who outlined the North American Water and Power Alliance which his company is promoting as the answer to continental water needs.

The controversial NAWAPA plan would use B.C.—where one third of all Canada's rainfall occurs—as a huge basin supplying water to the southern U.S. and the Great Lakes through a series of diversion dams and canals costing about $100 billion.

NOT INVENTORIED

Mr. Williston told the conference that B.C. still doesn't have all its water supply inventoried nor can this vital resource be evaluated against future needs.

"Therefore, those in authority have had to adopt the position that if a decision is required now as to whether water should be exported, the answer must be firm and must be negative," he stressed.

And, he added, B.C. cannot consider any proposal for "temporary" diversion of its water because such an arrangement "would become locked in with the economy of the areas being serviced and it would be morally wrong and politically impossible to withdraw from any such diversion arrangement in the future."

Mr. Williston said he wanted to explain clearly the reasons for B.C.'s decision because it has been misunderstood widely in the U.S. and "has been criticized as being selfish, arbitrary and even not in our own best interests."

Mr. Williston said it would be

Militant Priest Retaliates

LINCOLN, England (AP) — For years the choirboys of Lincoln Cathedral have enlivened Sunday morning services by setting off stink bombs, small glass vials containing a solution of sulphurated hydrogen.

Monday, an Anglican priest marched into Walter Lees' joke shop in the shadow of the cathedral and demanded:

"Is this where the boys buy stink bombs to throw in the cathedral?"

Lees said it was.

"One packet, please," said the priest, handing over a shilling.

"I suppose the inconvenience they cause is no concern of yours?" the parson asked Lees. Then he dropped a stink bomb on the floor, ground it under his heel and walked out as the smell of rotten eggs rose.

"The smell inside the shop was awful," said Lees, "but I'm not complaining. I can take a joke as well as sell one."

"I can see the funny side of it," said the dean of the cathedral, Very Rev. Michael Peck, "but I can't possibly believe that the person concerned was a member of the cathedral chapter."

U.S. ELECTIONS

Negroes in as Mayors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cleveland Democrat Carl B. Stokes, descendant of a slave, has become the first Negro elected mayor of a major United States city, but Republicans claimed a pattern of victory and an omen for 1968 in Tuesday's elections in other cities and states.

The Republicans captured the governorship in Kentucky and took over the state legislature in New Jersey where a Democrat, Richard Hughes, is governor.

Another Negro Democrat, Richard G. Hatcher, came top of the mayoral ballot counting in Gary, Ind., with a margin of 1,495 over his white opponent, Joseph Radigan.

Radigan contended that in two districts where Hatcher gathered top-heavy majorities "more voters voted than were on the rolls."

The issue was to be put before the same federal court to which Hatcher had gone with his own pre-election fraud complaint.

In a third race-tinged contest for mayor, Boston voters rejected the white backlash-oriented campaign of Louis Day Hicks.

In Gary as in Cleveland, the mathematics of race was the crucial factor. And the issue of Negro-white balance in the public schools was a key question in Boston, where Secretary of State Kevin H. White was elected mayor in a non-partisan run-off between two Democrats.

Ray C. Bliss, Republican national chairman, saw in the election returns evidence "that the upsurge in Republican strength which began in 1966 is continuing."

Democratic Chairman John M. Bailey said he discerned no trend at all.

Democrats reclaimed the mayor's office in Baltimore, and held Philadelphia's city hall despite internal discord and a stiff Republican challenge.

United Appeal

Put Him Up On Top

Today's official audited figures for the United Red Feather - Red Cross Appeal stood at $488,839 or 81.4 per cent of the appeal target of $600,000.

ABOUT-FACE!

Let Him Tell It To the Admiral

By TED GASKELL

"I'd like to see the admiral run his operation with a staff of four."

That was the comment of a petty officer who had wondered why the Victoria region of the Boy Scouts of Canada couldn't function with volunteers.

The inquiring sailor changed his mind after getting a close look at the regional office here.

SAME NUMBER

He made his comment about the admiral after noting the staff handles the affairs of 4,000 boys—the same number of men on Pacific Maritime Command rolls here.

It costs $38,637 to run the Scouts' affairs. Of this $30,517 will come from the United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal's $600,000.

Salaries of the five professional helpers, executive Jack Scrivener, a field executive, a camp supervisor, and an office staff of two, take up a good portion of the budget. But for every person paid there are nearly 100 volunteers.

ALL UNPAID

There is a supervising staff of 25 and 450 leaders, all unpaid. They take care of Cubs, Scouts, Venturers and Rover Scouts ranging in age from eight to 21 all over the peninsula from Swartz Bay to Jordan River.

Some money goes to help run Camp Barnard which has a year-round program in addition to the summer camping facilities.

It costs money to hold the regional jamborees and in a few cases, boys who cannot afford to go are assisted but only when every effort to help them earn their own money has failed.

The boys contribute one sixth of the association's budget. They provide as much again to send to provincial and national headquarters to help provide books and equipment to run the provincial and national jamborees.

This region has two special packs, one for the physically handicapped boys who are members of a cub pack at the Solarium and for a troop of mentally handicapped Scouts, sponsored by the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

But so far no financial aid has been given directly to these two groups although such aid is being considered.

BUSY INTERSECTION BOMBED BY TERRORISTS

HONG KONG (AP)—Terrorists bombed a crowded Hong Kong street intersection tonight, killing two persons and wounding 37.

Several of the wounded were police, baited into position by a mixture of planted (fake and real) bombs along the street leading to the intersection.

Since Communist rioting and terrorism erupted May 11, 47 persons have been killed and more than 220 wounded.

Earlier today terrorists bombed a rural government building in the New Territories, between Hong Kong and China.

SHOULD PM STAY OR RETIRE?

'The Great Dilemma' For Liberals, Pearson

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The Gallup Poll published today which shows the number of Liberals who want Lester Pearson to resign has increased by an unprecedented 13 per cent provides yet another public indication of the hazardous dilemma confronting the Liberal party and its leader.

In recent days a series of important private conferences have taken place in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa attended by some senior members of the government caucus and top-level Liberal executives.

The subject of these meetings has been the timing and circumstances of the leader's departure. The issue was also discussed by telephone between Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland and Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan.

Mitchell Sharp's Calgary statement that Mr. Pearson "does not intend to take the Liberal party through the next election" was part of the same debate which is currently tearing at the party and creating a grave political quandary for the Prime Minister.

PREFER PEARSON

On one side, there is a strong and growing feeling — concentrated in the French wing of the party — that Pearson is the indispensable man in the struggle for national unity. In fact, a few weeks ago, a group of 33 Quebec MPs met in secret session to affirm they would prefer to have Pearson lead the party through the next election over any other possible candidate, including Jean Marchand.

On the other side, the Gallup Poll taken after the Tory convention (which showed a 13 per cent jump in Tory strength) plus the current catfight between Judy LaMarsh and the CBC have seriously deepened the rumblings of discontent inside the party about the quality and duration of Pearson's leadership.

Shortly after the Quebec MPs pledged their renewed loyalty to Pearson, a delegation of MPs from the Ontario caucus — including Ian Wahn (St. Paul's), Robert Andrews (Port Arthur), Joseph Macaluso (Hamilton West) and Stanley Haidasz (Parkdale) sent word through Liberal caucus chairman Russell Honey requesting that Pearson make known the decision about his future retirement plans as soon as possible.

If Pearson is persuaded to

Arthur Mayse

On a bright day next spring, Beach Drive dog-walkers may be startled to observe what looks uncommonly like a beer sausage scudding across and a trifle above our narrow waters. This, if the Air Transport Board approves its species for coast use, will be a Hovercraft outward bound with its passengers on the Victoria-Vancouver run.

At full scoot, it will attain a speed of about 60 miles an hour, and though its nine-foot prop generates a considerable roar, those on board will find their air-cushioned ride smooth and relatively quiet.

I can pass these facts on to you from personal experience, even though my Hovercraft ride was no more than a St. Lawrence River scurry in the company of other Expo pilgrims.

I wasn't too keen about committing myself to a wingless flying boat that supported itself by means invisible to the viewer, and was persuaded only after we had watched the sausage propel itself briskly between its ports several times.

Then, convinced that the craft was stable and functional, though still mighty odd, I tagged after my eager wife to join the lineup at the Hovercraft's berth.

★

This consisted mostly of a broad, concrete apron that sloped gently to the river.

In came the chunky monster, roar descending to a growl as it eased up against the current. At close range, it looked rather like an outsized doughnut life raft with cabin and cockpit let into it.

Its outer hull, if such it may be called, was a pneumatic cylinder four feet in diameter, colored medium blue and reassuringly plumped out with air.

The know-it-all behind me in the lineup explained to his wife that this cylinder was called the skirt, and told her to watch what happened next.

Still under power, the Hovercraft nosed the concrete, slid out upon it, and advanced in our direction. At the top of the apron it skidded itself sideways. The skirt collapsed, the craft settled, then a bow door opened outward neat as you please to form a ramp.

Passengers clambered out of the Hovercraft's bowels like so many Jonahs emerging from a whale. They looked kind of pleased with themselves, and it was obvious they had weathered the crossing in good fettle.

★

An attendant counted us off in twos from our double rank. By this time I was chafing to board and test our luck; but the count ended just short of Win and me.

The Hovercraft, its quota gulped, closed its mouth, expanded its skirt, and hitched itself about. Then it slid slick as a seal into the river, to ride on a cushion of air with its bulk clear of the current.

We didn't have to wait long before another ship of the pudgy fleet hove into sight with a rainbow of spray arched over its bows. It repeated the landing manoeuvre, swallowed about three dozen of us, and took off.

We had been anticipating a wild ride, but to our disappointment, the Hovercraft could have passed for a bus travelling a more than ordinarily smooth road in a sun shower. Its driver, or pilot as I suppose he should be called, handled his craft with proper British nonchalance.

By no means an exciting trip, we decided—but after all, it wasn't supposed to be.

So much for that brief encounter, and to it I can only add that the Hovercraft in its various types and sizes is by no means unproved in serious service. Invented, designed and manufactured in Britain, the sturdy skimmers have been subjected to tests that include rigorous land and water travel in the Canadian Arctic.

I don't know how they'll take the Gulf of Georgia if their use is approved, but this I can assure you: when you see a Hovercraft, it'll be some time before you can really believe it!

Bunn Fears 'Patsy' Curriculum Committee As Teachers Quit Over Peterson Snub

By BRUCE YEMEN

The danger of a "patsy" high school English curriculum committee approving "Pablum" course content was raised today in the wake of the mass resignation of the seven-member committee that chose a controversial Grade 12 textbook.

But Greater Victoria School Board chairman Peter Bunn, who issued the warning, said he agreed entirely with the committee's stand in the face of "gross interference" by Education Minister Peterson.

The seven-member committee of the B.C. Teachers' Federation quit in protest against the minister's handling of the controversy over a four-letter word for sexual intercourse which appeared in the optional Grade 12 text, Story and Structure.

IGNORED

The committee said Mr. Peterson ignored its professional judgment in his public pronouncements. Resignation was mainly on the matter of principle.

Miss Mabel Conibear, head of English at Esquimalt Secondary School and the only Victoria member of the committee, said she felt the resignation would strengthen the position of a new committee to be appointed by the curriculum branch of the education department.

Usual procedure for

appointment is for the department curriculum branch to ask the teachers' federation for nominations to the committee.

There is a possibility the federation might refuse to put forward any names as a matter of principle but this would be an extreme measure that could harm the future English curriculum, one Victoria federation member said.

The department doesn't have the manpower to take over the work, he said.

Mr. Bunn was concerned that Mr. Peterson's demonstration that "political expediency over-rides all other considerations" would make it extremely difficult for a future committee to hold the line against "pablum" influences in English course content.

WORDS DELETED

Mr. Peterson announced Oct. 30, two weeks after the controversy erupted, that an alternate text had been approved for the Grade 12 course and later said arrangements had been made to delete the four-letter words from the story in question, Defender of the Faith by Philip Roth.

Neither Miss Conibear nor Mr. Bunn had any quarrel with Mr. Peterson's personal objection to the four-letter word but they stressed professional matters should be left to the professionals.

Miss Conibear said the story containing the word was "very moral" and that the revised English curriculum was making a healthy impact on students.

Mr. Bunn said the new curriculum was the most exciting thing to happen in high school English education in years.

HARMED SYSTEM

Mr. Peterson's interference has done "nothing but harm to the education system," Mr. Bunn said.

The committee was composed of senior B.C. English teachers and included three UBC professors. There was no chairman as such. John Meredith, education department assistant instruction superintendent, handled the meetings.

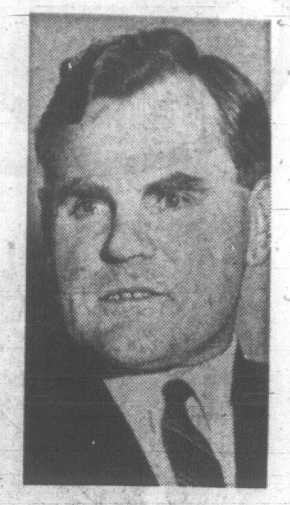

Committee members received an annual honorarium of $60 plus expenses for monthly meetings in Vancouver, but the reading of several possible textbooks during the selection process made great demands on the time of members, Miss Conibear said.

As an example, she said members had read eight anthologies before selecting Story and Structure.

The mass resignation was announced Tuesday in Vancouver and were accepted by the education minister.

Mr. Peterson thanked the committee for its service saying its only failure was in not advising the department about the controversial words in the Grade 12 textbook.

Mr. Peterson received the resignations in a letter from the committee. Another letter from Charles Ovans, general secretary of the teachers' federation, also objected strongly to the minister's handling of the controversy.

Jubilee Annex To Close

St. Joseph's Takes Isolation Patients

By PETE LOUDON

Royal Jubilee Hospital's infectious diseases annex is slated to close January 1.

All adult patients with diseases requiring isolation will be moved to St. Joseph's Hospital.

An isolation annex there will be expanded to become the main treatment centre for Greater Victoria.

Children aged under 14 will still be treated at Royal Jubilee under the plan, a St. Joseph's official said today.

He said both hospitals are agreed on the creation of a single isolation centre for adults but the plan requires approval of Metro medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

Dr. Whitbread, who is responsible for isolation facilities and reporting of all communicable diseases, said today he expects the move to proceed.

The plan removes a duplication of facilities and makes fuller use of available isolation beds. The new ward is expected to be located in an annex at St. Joseph's which previously was only partly used for isolation cases.

Patients with polio, scarlet fever, infectious hepatitis, chicken pox, measles, and mumps and several other infectious diseases would be sent to the new ward at St. Joseph's.

FIRE TRAP

Vacating the old annex at Royal Jubilee is expected to revive a controversy about whether or not the old ward should be demolished. It has been called a fire trap.

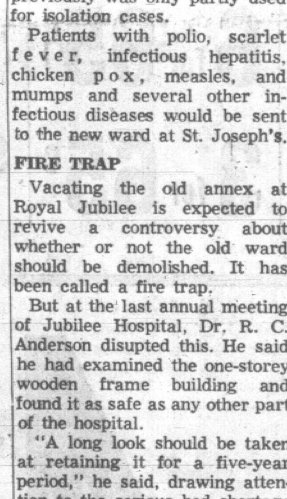

But at the last annual meeting of Jubilee Hospital, Dr. R. C. Anderson disupted this. He said he had examined the one-storey wooden frame building and found it as safe as any other part of the hospital.

"A long look should be taken at retaining it for a five-year period," he said, drawing attention to the serious bed shortage in Victoria hospitals.

Other doctors have said privately that in view of the need for chronic care beds in the city it would be wrong to destroy the annex before alternative bed space is available.

Dr. Whitbread believes the annex should be removed as soon as possible.

He indicated the expanded isolation centre at St. Joseph's should also be regarded as a stop-gap. He said a new separate isolation hospital is required. He said it should be located near the public health laboratory which is located at Royal Jubilee.

NEW MODERATOR of the British Columbia synod, Presbyterian Church in Canada, is Rev. A. Gordon Faraday of Esquimalt. He was elected by a unanimous vote of Presbyterian clergy attending the provincial synod (parliament) in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Victoria, today. Mr. Faraday is command chaplain (Protestant) to Canada's Pacific defence force. Born at Ottawa, he served as chaplain with the Royal Canadian Navy in Korea from 1952 to 1953 and was posted to Esquimalt in 1964 as senior chaplain to HMCS Naden.

Ald. Stewart To Seek Re-election

Ald. Ian Stewart, completing his first term on Victoria city council, announced today that he will seek re-election in December.

Ald. Stewart said he will file his nomination papers Thursday immediately following city council's ratification of city clerk Morran Waller as returning officer.

A lawyer, Ald. Stewart said if re-elected he will continue to press for the energetic development of the downtown core.

"We have to answer two questions," he said. "One, do we have a city core now? and two, do we really want a solid and thriving core in the city?

"I think we do. And I think that with progressive planning we can in quite a short time see the redevelopment of the area between Cook and Blanshard and the redevelopment of the Wharf Street area.

REALITY

"With these two areas developed the downtown core we often talk about would become reality."

Ald. Stewart said one of his prime reasons for seeking a further term on council is a desire to see city council find a solution to the present housing problem in the city.

"Housing has not been an area of my responsibility in the past," he said. "But if I am returned to council in December I intend to make it an area of responsibility in the future. We have to find a solution to the housing problems facing our citizens, particulary those in the low income bracket."

$50 REWARD

Aluminum Bars Lost At Dockyard

The disappearance of 14 small aluminum bars from a jetty at Esquimalt Dockyard could put a crimp in a year-long research project being carried out by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The bars, each measuring 24 inches long, two inches wide and one-quarter of an inch thick, attached to a rack, were tied to a rope and lowered into the water from the jetty early this year.

Officials of the Defence Research Board, who are assisting Alcan in the project, were to check the newly-developed alloy's strength and corrosion resistant qualities during the test period.

When members of the Pacific Naval Laboratory went to check the bars a few days ago they found the rope had been severed at the water line. Divers were called in to search the sea bottom around the jetty but they could not find the bars.

$50 REWARD

Officials believe the rope could have been severed by a drifting log. If so it might have been washed up on a beach with the bars still attached. A $50 reward has been offered for return of the bars.

An advertisement placed in newspapers Tuesday said the bars "are essential to an important research program."

Persons with information about the bars were advised to contact Ray Buckett, a technical officer with PNL.

It was learned that Alcan was anxious to have results of the Esquimalt test because the company is preparing a paper on the program for presentation to a symposium in the spring.

Although the new alloy is being tested in many parts of the nation the Esquimalt test was considered important in providing control data because sea water here has the lowest level of industrial contamination in Canada, it was reported.

Ask The Times

Q. Doesn't anyone know the name of those weights used not too many years ago to tether or anchor cart horses while their drivers made house-to-house deliveries? The weight was attached to a long strap which was fastened to the horse's bridle and when the driver left the cart he'd swing the weight to the ground and the resulting pressure on the horse's mouth discouraged it from moving away. R.J.L.B.

A. It was called a "frog." Reference: Birdcage Theatre Museum, Tombstone, Arizona.

Route Cleared For Sewer Plan

Regional District Approves

By JIM HUME

The Regional District this afternoon approved the amended letters patent covering the implementation of the master plan for a district-wide trunk sewer system.

The board also approved the hiring of a firm of consultants to design and plan the actual construction of the system.

The decisions clear the way for the financing and construction of the $23.5 million sewerage collection and disposal system recommended 18 months ago in the massive sewerage survey study prepared by Associated Engineering Services.

Individual councils still have to approve the project but no major hold-up is anticipated. Saanich and Esquimalt are already on record as fully approving the over-all plan. Oak Bay and Victoria have also indicated that they will approve once the cost-sharing formula is carefully spelled out.

The project, designed to be built in stages over the next 50 years, would be capable of serving a population of 420,000, the estimated population of the Greater Victoria district in 2017.

Present population is 170,000.

$17 ANNUALLY

The estimated per capita cost over the first 10 years of construction has been set at $17 annually, or $1.50 per person per month.

In the original report the engineers stressed that cost estimates were based on 1965-66 construction costs and that the ultimate cost of an adequate trunk sewer system could be well over the $23.5 million.

The engineers also stressed that much of the work to be done to provide an adequate sewer system is of an urgent nature and strongly recommended that 50 per cent of the total cost should be spent during the first 10 years of the 50-year program.

Colwood, Langford, View Royal and Brentwood were placed at the top of the priority list by the engineers.

Ferry Tie-Up Threatened If Cabinet Doesn't Budge

Cabinet inaction "could well result in a work stoppage" aboard the government ferries, a union spokesman said today.

Tom Gooderham of the Canadian Labour Congress said the cabinet has refused to date to give the 700-member ferry employees union an answer to recommendations made by B.C. Ferries to the cabinet.

Tentative agreement was reached last month between the union, which represents deck, catering and shore workers, and management of B.C. Ferries but cabinet approval also is necessary.

Issues involved in the tentative agreement include overtime, scheduling of hours and union dues checkoff in an amount greater than the government has allowed other civil servants.

"NO SUCCESS"

"The union has through numerous phone calls to the authority management, Attorney-General Bonner and the premier's office endeavored to get an answer but have had no success," said Mr. Gooderham.

"Union members are demanding their officers implement the program arrived at several weeks ago when the employees refrained from taking action to tie up the ferries.

"The employees were intending a stoppage on the Thanksgiving holiday weekend and again on subsequent weekends but refrained from taking action at the request of union officers, who asked for restraint in the hope of finding a settlement.

WAITING

"Union members have been waiting patiently for a reply from the government on the recommendations made by the ferry authority management but to date have not received an answer.

"Employees are becoming very impatient, but if a satisfactory answer is given by the cabinet a memorandum of understanding will be arrived at in written form between the ferry authority and union which would eliminate the need of work stoppages by employees at least for the duration of the memorandum and would pave the way for future good labor-management relations."

$1,000 LIFT FOR APPEAL FROM SAILORS

United Red Feather - Red Cross Appeal was swelled today with a pledge of $1,000 by the ship's company of HMCS Yukon, now en route to Esquimalt after an Australian cruise.

Instead of canvassing for the United Appeal, a series of small raffles were organized and nearly $100 a month has been raised in this manner.

Internship Program Designed to Avert Social Tragedies

By DON VIPOND
Times Education Reporter

Throughout our bustling economy are many people at work where they don't belong.

This is sad enough. But when some of them can't get to where they do belong, it's a social tragedy.

And often a terrible waste of talent.

Educators have done something about it.

The teacher internship program is tapping a rich supply of potential teachers now in industry, business or the home. These are university graduates, in their late twenties, who have developed a yen to teach after launching another career.

What stopped these people from moving into a profession always in need of more good men and women?

Money, of course. To qualify as teachers, they needed an additional year of university training. Not many could finance that without a job.

So the University of Victoria started its teacher internship program a year ago. Out of 226 inquiries to advertisements came 11 persons who spent last May and June getting a first-hand taste of teaching, under supervision.

Jim London is 31, married and the father of a baby boy. He has spent five years as a salesman with a downtown department store.

For him and the other interns it was a spring they won't forget. During the early part of the day they prepared lessons or taught. When school was out the interns headed for the university and a two-hour class. At night they prepared the next day's lessons.

●

During July and August the interns were at summer school classes. In September they began full-time teaching under Letters of Permission.

Through this year they will attend 16 Saturday morning seminars at the university. And they will spend next summer at school there too

But in the meantime they are being paid a salary.

"When this program came along it made it possible for me to do two things," says Jim, "complete my education and earn a living at the same time."

Both he and Ken Warren, another intern, are teaching at Elizabeth Fisher Junior Secondary School. If all goes well, they will be fully qualified teachers when the next school year starts.

"We've had nothing but favorable comments on the program," says Dr. Richard Monk, associate professor in the university's faculty of education. "And there have been surprisingly few bugs to iron out too."

It will be watched closely with a view to expansion, he added.

Can Christmas Be Far Behind?

The first mandarin oranges of the Christmas season will be on sale in stores here Thursday.

George Pears, manager of Slade and Stewart, fruit and vegetable wholesalers, said the oranges arrived in Vancouver from Formosa today aboard the Ss. Washington.

A part of the cargo of 38,000 bundles was being shipped to the city, he said.

The 14,361-ton freighter is about two weeks ahead of the first Japanese shipment.

Five Persons Now Seeking Saanich Seat

A fifth person announced today he will seek the single Saanich seat on the Greater Victoria School Board in the Dec. 9 election.

He is former city manager Cecil Wyatt, 3461 Mayfair Drive, currently secretary of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

He said this morning his knowledge and experience in local government, especially in financial affairs, "could be of value."

Other four candidates are William Hibbert, Richard Reeve, Mrs. R. B. Restall and Douglas Brown. Saanich trustee Mrs. Frances Thompson said earlier she will not seek re-election.

Rates Called Fair, Few Motels Gouging

Very few B.C. motels overcharge their customers.

That is the general opinion of delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Motels and Resorts Association at Holyrood House.

"We are satisfied that very few B.C. operators take advantage of the public when there is a shortage of accommodation," said Jack Luckhurst of Port Alberni.

"Generally speaking, I would say our rates compare favorably with any in North America. Most B.C. motels are listed in the green book and the majority post their winter and summer rates in the rooms."

Mr. Luckhurst said many delegates to the convention discussed motel charges after B.C. Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan urged motel operators to post their winter and summer rates.

'FAIR PRICING'

Mr. Kiernan said B.C. motels should establish a reputation for "fair dealing and fair pricing."

"No one would argue with the minister on that point," Mr. Lockhurst said. "But I don't think we should treat it as a criticism. We are satisfied that most B.C. operators give good value for money."

This view was endorsed by Ernest Shauer of Cache Creek who was elected president of the association for the coming year.

COURSES OPPOSED

Most of the 150 delegates opposed a suggestion that motel proprietors should have to pass test courses before being allowed to operate.

"This was never put in the form of a resolution," Mr. Shauer said. "It was simply a suggestion from the floor of the convention and, after discussion, it was referred to the executive for study."

Mr. Luckhurst said most members are in favor of high standards of motel-keeping but would oppose interference either by the association or the provincial government.

Larry Facey of Vancouver was elected vice-president in the motels division; William Ashworth of Savory Island, vice-president in the resorts division; and Walter Mueller of Parksville, vice-president in the trailer courts division.

The association supported a resolution asking the federal government to continue its efforts to revive the West Coast supply of herring and salmon.

Postmen Defy Union Order To End Strike

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Postal employees in St. Catharines, Hamilton and Welland today defied a direct union order to return to work and remained off the job to continue a dispute that began Tuesday.

There were indications the wildcat strike in the Niagara Peninsula might spread. Kingston postal workers said they supported the strikers, and in Toronto the executive of Local 1 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada warned its members to be prepared to support the strikers.

"The fire is there if we want to stoke it," said the local's president, Alex Brown.

In the affected area—Burlington, Stoney Creek, Hamilton, Grimsby, Welland and St. Catharines—470 workers remained off the job. The only services available were the purchase of stamps and deposit of mail. Some persons expecting important letters were allowed to search for them among unsorted mail in post offices.

Gail Dean, president of the St. Catharines local, warned Tuesday night that his members would defy an order by their national leaders in Ottawa to return to work.

"We are not going back to work. We are going to stay out until this man has won his case."

The man in question is Robert Embury, secretary of the St. Catharines local. He was suspended Monday for allegedly holding up mail delivery to help another postman with a heavy load.

OVERLOADS BAG

Mailmen are not allowed to carry more than 35 pounds and union officials called their members out in sympathy for Mr. Embury.

The national council of postal unions, made up of the LCUC and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, sent a telegram from Ottawa to the striking locals calling for a return to work pending negotiation.

But the St. Catharines local has told postal department officials its members will not return until Mr. Embury is back at work, Mr. Dean said. Other local officials went to Toronto to plead their case with provincial officials.

In St. Catharines, Postmaster Thomas Garriock said he has received no communication from the union since the strike started and Mr. Embury has not followed regular grievance procedure to appeal his suspension.

Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Cote, during a question period in the Commons, said his department cannot promise that Mr. Embury will not be dismissed.

Plaza Accident Costs Man $75

A man was fined a total of $75 in magistrate's court Tuesday as a result of an accident in the Town and Country shopping plaza Sept. 17.

A man was fined a total of $75 in magistrate's court Tuesday as a result of an accident in the Town and Country shopping plaza Sept. 17.

Christopher Reid, CFB Esquimalt, was the driver of a car which struck a parked car and a lamp standard.

He was fined $50 for careless driving, $15 for being a minor with no insureance, and $10 for failing to register a transfer of his vehicle.

Also fined Tuesday for careless driving were Gregory Manning, 135 Wellington, involved in an accident in the 1400 block Fairfield Oct. 10, $35, and Norman Urquhart, 418 B Craigflower, whose car struck a power pole on Craigflower Sept. 23, $40.

Remembrance Ceremony Slated For Buildings

A Remembrance Day ceremony will be held in the rotunda of the Legislative Buildings Friday at 4:30 p.m. to honor civil servants who died during war service.

Relatives of civil servants who lost their lives are invited.

The service will be conducted by Rev. Samueal Parsons, D.D., president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches. Three verses of the hymn, Abide With Me, will be sung and one minute's silence will be observed. A piper will play the Flowers of the Forest, and a bugler will sound the Last Post.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston will place a wreath at the base of the war memorial plaque in the rotunda after which the bugler will sound Reveille.

First Meet Held By Regional Hospital Board

The first meeting of the newly-formed Regional Hospital District was held this afternoon.

The meeting convened following the regular meeting of the Regional District.

Both boards are comprised of the same membership.

Prior to consideration of the regular agenda two new members from the Gulf Islands were sworn in.

Douglas Cavaye, Ganges, will represent Salt Spring Island at future meetings and Miss Joan S. Pudchase, Port Washington, the Outer Islands.

The combined boards unanimously accepted the letters patent establishing the new hospital district which will in future be responsible for the financing of hospital projects in the areas bounded by Sooke and Sidney and the Gulf Islands.

Conciliator Meets Board, Teachers' Group

D. W. Dysart has been named conciliation officer following a breakdown in direct salary negotiations between Greater Victoria School District and its teachers.

First meeting with Mr. Dysart was held Tuesday and another meeting is planned for Monday evening.

George Curran, board spokesman, said negotiations have been "cordial, with give and take on both sides."

Deadline for a conciliation board settlement is Tuesday midnight after which the dispute will go to binding arbitration.

Details of teacher salary demands have not been disclosed.

City Dwellers Don't Know Facts: Philip

By IAN MacDONALD

TORONTO (CP)—Prince Philip said today city dwellers who believe they are superior to farmers just do not know the facts.

Farming in highly-developed countries has advanced as far or farther than other industries, he said in opening the first meeting in Canada of the Royal Agricultural Society of the Commonwealth.

Nineteen member societies from Africa, Australia, Canada, and the United Kingdom were on hand to discuss agricultural engineering at the two-day meeting.

The society, which meets in one of the Commonwealth countries every two years, was founded in 1957 at the suggestion of Prince Philip who serves as president. It was founded as a forum for exchanging information and to encourage the exchange of farmers among Commonwealth countries.

PRODUCTION INCREASED

The prince said mechanization has been the most important single factor responsible for increasing agricultural production. Other factors were the use of fertilizers and pesticides.

After delivering what he termed "a rather bald recital" of the society's past accomplishments, Philip questioned whether it was in man's best interest to keep populations expanding.

He also asked whether it was wise to convert more and more land to agricultural use to the detriment of wild life.

Ontario Premier John Robarts told the meeting factors that unite Canada are much stronger than the divisive factors that the press plays up in foreign newspapers. He said Canada needs a national agricultural policy.

Prince Philip is here for a four-day visit and will open the 1967 Royal Winter Fair here Friday.

Pair Jailed

Two men with previous convictions for the same offence, were sentenced in magistrate's court Tuesday, to jail terms on impaired charges.

Albert Tervo, 3498 Lovat, was sentenced to 20 days and had his licence suspended for having care and control of a car on Oct. 8 while impaired.

He admitted a conviction for the same offence in Dec. 1965.

Stephen Davey, 196 Bushby, was sentenced to 20 days and had his licence supsended for impaired driving on July 31. He admitted being convicted of the same offence Aug. 15.
